'Impossible to get anything done without squeeze'

Tunney calls N.Y. most corrupt city in nation

SACRAMENTO (AP) — "The most corrupt city in the northern Western Hemisphere" is New York, U.S. Sen. John Tunney says.

The California Democrat said Tuesday it was impossible to get anything done in New York City without "squeeze," which he defined as political payoffs.

Tunney, who said he was a native of New York who practiced law there, made these comments in a question-answer session with a class of about 100 students at McGeorge Law School in Sacramento.

In his prepared remarks, he repeated his suggestions that antitrust action be taken against major oil companies.

On New York City, he said its financial condition is "a national tragedy" and that the federal government cannot just let the city default on its bills without an adverse effect on all other U.S. cities.

But, Tunney said, the federal government should "get its pound of flesh" out of New York by imposing strict controls to prevent further deficit spending.

"Put it into receivership" like a bankrupt corporation. "Take away from the city council and mayor authority to set the budget," Tunney said.

Tunney added that in his view, corruption is widespread.

"In my view it's the most corrupt city in the northern (half of the) Western Hemisphere," he said. "You can't get anything done without squeeze."

Speaking about oil companies, Tunney said the federal government should not take them over. But he said it should enforce current antitrust laws and that Congress should pass new ones to break up so called "vertical" companies.

Vertical companies are those which take part in all four phases of the oil industry: crude oil production, refinement, pipeline distribution and retail sales.

Joint operations by major companies of pipelines squeeze independents out of a competitive position, he said. Joint ventures in offshore and foreign operations also take away the element of competition in oil, Tunney said.

"What we must do is employ new legislation and the antitrust laws swiftly and forcefully to break up this unhealthy concentration of power in our vital industries," Tunney said.

"We must break up the monopolies within the oil industry itself. The eight largest oil companies now control our oil from the time it comes out of the ground until it is pumped into your gas tank.

"I also find it appalling that the very same companies which monopolize our petroleum industry may be in a position to slow development of alternative energy resources — nuclear power, shale oil, coal, solar energy and geothermal power," he said.

Chino names Doyle new police chief

Gerald W. (Jerry) Doyle, 39, a lieutenant and team leader with the Riverside County Sheriff's Dept., was named this morning as Chino's new police chief.

Chino city manager Bob Fast announced the appointment at a press conference. He said that Doyle will assume the post on Nov. 1 at a salary of $24,000.

Doyle replaces Frank Meehan, who resigned recently after serving eight years as chief of Chino's police department to take the same position in Redondo Beach.

"We were looking for a top-level professional who could relate well to the community," said Fast. "Our selection was objective and nondiscriminatory and we sought a person who could understand the concerns of our citizens."

Doyle is a native of the Riverside-Corona area. He is a graduate of Riverside City College, holds a bachelor's degree in vocational education at Cal State Long Beach and received a master's degree in public administration from USC in 1974.

The new police chief joined the Riverside County Sheriff's Department in 1960 as a deputy and has worked up through the ranks. His latest assignment was a team commander of the Jurupa area. He was in charge of all law enforcement and community relations in this area, which includes Mira Loma, Pedley and High Grove.

Doyle and his wife, Terry, reside in Riverside. They have two sons, Gregory, 18 and Jeffery, 16.

Ontario, speedway give world's fair 'go-ahead'

Decision to support proposal unanimous

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
PB Staff Writer

The Ontario City Council and the Ontario Motor Speedway board Tuesday night gave the green light to Expo 81, a proposed world's fair on the site of the speedway in 1981.

At an adjourned meeting in the conference room of the public library, the council, board and officials of Expo 81 debated the $10 million proposal that would mean turning over the speedway to the federal government. Council members and the speedway board then withdrew to a closed-door executive session for an hour, after which they returned to vote unanimous approval of the measure.

Councilwoman Marie Sharpe moved that the council "adopt a resolution to work with Expo 81 in the best interests of the City of Ontario and the speedway bondholders" and to grant the Expo 81 request subject to inclusion of an agreement on the city's reversionary rights (that portion of the land and buildings that will be returned to the city when the fair ends). The OMS board passed a similar resolution.

During the meeting, attended by some 25 people, dozens of difficult pertinent questions were put to the Expo 81 officials by the council and board members. What will the city have when the exposition is over? Will the racing program be continued? Will the bondholders be paid in full? The exchanges between the applicants and the governing bodies sometimes grew testy, with council and board wary and suspicious, the exposition officials indignant.

"We're asking your okay to go to the bondholders," said Richard M. Pittenger, Expo 81 president. "It's not going to ruin anything you've got now. I think we should be welcomed like the Great White Father. The Department of Commerce will investigate us, you, everyone. We're protecting what you've got from foreclosure."

Pittenger made a veiled threat about a second site Expo 81 had in mind. "2,000 acres in your back yard."

"We'll give you the best fair in the world," he said. "There has never been a world's fair where the community did not come out 5,000 per cent better. I don't understand the suspicion here. We're not city slickers. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose."

Richard E. Hodge, Expo 81 attorney, was the principal spokesman for the group. He, too, was put out by the reception.

"We're a quasi-public, non-profit body," he said. "We thought we had come up with something that was a salvation, not a fright. I feel a great sense of disappointment in what I've heard tonight."

On the subject of the racing program at OMS, Hodge said the exposition would honor all racing commitments the speedway has made, but cannot guarantee continued racing during or after the fair.

Asked for "something on account" as evidence of good faith, Hodge said it raised "a chicken-or-the-egg syndrome." Expo 81 must have title to the speedway before it can get the funds; the city does not want to give up title until it has a guarantee of the funds.

"The only way we can effectively, efficiently and profitably renegotiate the speedway bonds is to have title to the property and permission from the bondholders," Hodge said. "We will deposit $7 million within one year of the property going into escrow. We must have bondholder agreement or we can't go forward. That's the best concerete predetermined evidence we can offer."

Trustees' attorney Edmund Hamburger pointed out to the council and OMS board that a foreclosure on the speedway is possible by February because of the city being in default of the bonds. This statement prompted Hodge's comment about the Expo 81 proposal being "salvation."

On what the city would have after the fair ended, Hodge mentioned an international industrial school to train skilled labor as a possibility. He said it would be like another college and would attract industry to the area. He further proposed that the still-to-be worked out reversionary rights be equal to the appraised value of the property today. It was suggested that an arbitration

A report to our readers

More than two weeks ago we published an editorial, "Stand up and be counted," in which, in our opinion, we identified serious crime as Pomona's No. 1 problem and invited a response from our readers if they felt the same way.

More than 2,100 have so far. The response has been overwhelming. It goes without saying that the overriding concern of those who have responded is that they are fed up with crime and want something done about it.

But what?

That, indeed, is the question. We feel that city hall, the police department, the courts, the district attorney's office, and the probation department are all equally concerned about the crime incidence.

We are certain that they or anyone else does not have the total answer. It's not that simple. We stated in our editorial that we would share the results of the public response with the appropriate leaders of the city. We have talked informally with some of them. They frankly admit that they do not know the total solution. We have to agree with them. We don't either.

The best judgment of those leaders we have talked to is that this is a job for a newly formed crime committee made up of representatives of the city, the school district, and the chamber of commerce. This committee is the outgrowth of the chamber's retreat for elected and appointed officials held last spring when crime was recognized as a major problem. It was not the only problem discussed, either.

The hundreds of people who have written to this newspaper literally pleading for action on this very serious community problem is indicative of the urgency that confronts the committee.

The committee's work will only be as effective as the cooperation it will get from the public and official governmental bodies.

In pledging our support, we admonish the committee that the public will demand and has every right to expect that good constructive programs designed to meet the problem will emerge from the committee's deliberations.

Ford OK after crash

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A teen-ager who drove his car into President Ford's armor-plated limousine said he entered the intersection and accidentally crashed into the presidential motorcade because he had a green light.

Ford was not hurt, but a member of his party was treated for a fractured finger after the incident Tuesday night.

The driver of the other car, 19-year-old James Salanites, was questioned and voluntarily took a sobriety test, Hartford police said. There were five other teen-agers in his Buick, but none of them was hurt.

"I don't see where he did anything wrong," police Lt. Thomas Grant said of the Meriden, Conn., teen. Police said no charges would be considered against Salanites until blood test results were available in several days.

It was the third incident to mar one of Ford's recent out-of-town journeys. He was the target of two alleged assassination attempts in California during separate visits in September.

A police spokesman, explaining how it was possible for an auto to get a clear run at Ford's car, said police were only guarding intersections within two blocks of the President's departure point. The incident occurred three blocks away.

"I feel fine, I feel great," Ford said shortly afterwards. The presidential limousine stopped only briefly before taking the President to the airport for the trip back to Washington.

A Secret Service spokesman said of the incident, there was "no reason to believe it was anything but an accident."

It was little more than a fender bender for the heavily fortified limousine. But the Buick sustained heavy damage to the front, which hit the limousine's right front fender.

"It was a very unfortunate incident, and I'm glad nobody, including the President, was hurt," said Salanites. He and his five companions then bolted past reporters and into a waiting car and sped away.

Man killed in robbery attempt

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A robbery suspect was shot and killed Tuesday night by an Ontario man during an attempted armed robbery at the Pepper Tree Motel, 1241 E. Holt Blvd., in Ontario, according to police.

Edwin Michael Huntsman, 31, of Red Bluff, Calif., died several hours after he was shot by Jim Kirts, 27, a welder, said investigators. Huntsman was one of three men acquainted with Kirts and allegedly involved in the armed robbery. Arrested was Jerry Allen Miller, 20, of Ontario. Still sought by police for questioning is Steven Mike Miller, 23, also known as Gary Miller, of Ontario. Huntsman died of the gunshot wounds about 2:40 a.m. at Ontario Community Hospital.

According to police, the elder Miller may be armed with a .22 caliber Winchester rifle with a scope believed used in the shooting.

Police said the incident was reported about 8 p.m. by Kirts, who claimed he had just been the victim of an attempted armed robbery in his motel room and he had shot one of the suspects. When police arrived they found Huntsman staggering into the motel room occupied by Kirts. He had two gunshot wounds of the abdomen.

In talking to Kirts, police learned that Huntsman was one of three men he knew who entered his apartment earlier to ask if they could borrow some money. Kirts said the elder Miller asked for money so he could buy some narcotics to sell to someone else. Kirts said he refused and Miller went out to his truck and returned with the .22 caliber rifle.

Kirts said Miller pointed the rifle at him and told him he wanted the money. When Kirts told him that the money was in the bank, Miller ordered him to lie on the floor. Kirts said he told Miller he would not and started walking towards the kitchen. He said Miller ran into the kitchen with the rifle to stop him.

Kirts said he saw the rifle barrel protruding from the kitchen door and made a grab for it. Kirts pulled the rifle and Miller towards him, managing to grab the man around the neck. Kirts said Miller began yelling to Huntsman, who was sitting on the bed, to help him. Kirts said Huntsman got up and advanced toward him. He fired one shot. He said he fired a second shot when Miller jerked him.

After the brief struggle, Kirts told

SLA created mannequin from Patty, attorney says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst has become a "leftwing person" but not a "super-militant radical," according to the attorney who filed an affidavit in which she claimed she was brainwashed and tortured by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

Terence Hallinan, who resigned from the Hearst defense team last week, said in an interview with the weekly Berkeley Barb published Tuesday that Miss Hearst "is now a leftwing person, and she was not" before she was kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4, 1974.

The 36-year-old radical attorney said he was not sure how much of Miss Hearst's leftist views "are independent thoughts and how much are something that somebody else told her."

He said she underwent many changes in her 19 months with the SLA and that she was never a part of the radical movement — "the mannequin that they created was, but not Patricia Hearst."

Hallinan was interviewed both before and after he withdrew from the team headed by flamboyant Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey to represent Miss Hearst on federal bank robbery charges.

He said only that "they didn't want me interfering" and declined to elaborate on why he resigned. He said he had become emotionally involved in Miss Hearst's case.

"She's so young," he said. "And that's the main thing that strikes you about her when you see her. You can say she's small, she's slight, but the main thing is she's a little girl."

He said the SLA used "a Facist method" to convert Miss Hearst.

"Kidnaping is definitely not a legitimate way of making political converts, because what it does to a person's mind is really incredible."

Hallinan said he believes the media has treated Miss Hearst unfairly — "It's as though they've taken everything that they can possibly blow up to show that she's still a radical extremist of some type — and blowing it all out of proportion."

In a telephone interview from Boston on Tuesday, Bailey's law partner, Albert Johnson, said two staff members have been assigned to the Hearst case as investigators to try "to determine the facts and, where warranted, seek out witnesses."

In Sacramento, meanwhile, a police spokesman said officers interviewed "a young white woman" at an address later determined to be the hideout of Miss Hearst and SLA companions Bill and Emily Harris. The Harrises, who were arrested Sept. 18 with Miss Hearst, are being held in Los Angeles on kidnap, robbery and assault charges that Miss Hearst also faces.

Lt. Robbie Waters said the questioning concerned a slaying that occurred next door but was unrelated to the SLA. He said the woman opened the door a crack to say she had heard or seen nothing unusual the night of the slaying. He said police did not take her name.

A published report this week quoted sources as saying Sacramento police records listed the three aliases of Miss Hearst and the Harrises among the names of persons questioned in the investigation.

Murder suspect faces high court

Mrs. Frances Lou Staats, 37-year-old La Verne woman charged with murdering an off-duty Los Angeles policeman early Sept. 22, was bound over Tuesday to Pomona Superior Court for trial.

Mrs. Staats, 1186 Nashport St., appeared before Pomona Municipal Court Judge Robert C. Gustaveson for preliminary hearing. The session was closed to the public and press at the request of defense attorney Theodore D. Piatt of Claremont.

Mrs. Staats is accused of murder in the fatal shooting of Robert Eugene Kearns, 41. Kearns, who had an apartment in La Verne, was shot in the chest with his own pistol, a .38-caliber revolver described as his off-duty weapon.

The shooting occurred near the entrance to Pomona Valley Community Hospital shortly after 2 a.m. Hospital guards found the victim and Mrs. Staats struggling outside the officer's parked car, police said. Kearns, who had been shot moments before, collapsed and was rushed to the hospital's emergency room where he died a few minutes later. He reportedly told authorities that Mrs. Staats shot him.

Investigators said that Kearns, a motorcycle officer assigned to LAPD's central traffic division, had taken Mrs. Staats to the hospital because she apparently had taken an overdose of some kind. When the couple arrived an argument developed during which Mrs. Staats is accused of grabbing the pistol and shooting Kearns.

Auto sales strong as new models debut

DETROIT (AP) — Strong initial sales of 1976 cars helped the nation's auto makers launch the new-model year in October with their best performance for the first 10 days of a month in nearly two years.

Deliveries of 243,642 cars during Oct. 1-10 were up 13 per cent from 216,110 last year, marking only the second time this year that sales have outpaced those of the same year-earlier period.

The sales figures, released Tuesday, provide the most convincing evidence yet that the industry was pulling out of its longest and deepest slump since the Great Depression.

The daily sales rate of 27,071 — there were nine selling days in the span — was the highest for an early-month period since November 1973, when the energy crisis sent sales toppling.

Auto executives credited the industry's showing to strong initial sales of the higher-priced 1976 cars, the first positive consumer response to new-model introductions in three years.

Meanwhile, Chrysler Corp., the last of the companies to put its 1976 cars on sale, debuted its 1976 lineup today, with formal introduction of most models slated for Thursday.

Company officials predicted the industry, including imports, would sell 10 million cars and 2.8 million trucks in the model year. The forecast was in line with sales estimates by other auto makers.

Chrysler, hardest hit by the industry's slump, is offering a new lineup of compact cars which the firm is counting on heavily to regain some of market share it has lost to the competition in the past year. The new Plymouth Volare and Dodge Aspen will not go on sale until early December.

Chrysler was the only company to report a decline in the latest period, with sales off 14 per cent from last year and its traditional 15 per cent market share down to 9.7 per cent. Analysts attributed the decline to the firm's late introduction of 1976 models.

GM sales were up 17 per cent in the period, partly due to strong sales of the new mini Chevette, the smallest U.S.built car. GM said it sold 6,100 Chevettes in the first eight days after the car's introduction and has orders for another 14,300.

Ford was up 16 per cent and AMC was up 25 per cent.

No Kissinger reply to order on secret info

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger failed today to respond to a House Intelligence Committee subpoena for a memorandum by a State Department official who has acknowledged that it gives details about mismanagement of the 1974 Cyprus crisis.

A. Searle Field, chief counsel for the committee, said a 10 a.m. EDT deadline for Kissinger to respond passed without receipt of the memorandum or any word on whether the secretary intended to comply with the subpoena later.

The memorandum was written by Thomas B. Boyatt, the department's Cyprus affairs director during the crisis. Boyatt has acknowledged in testimony to the committee that it provides details about what he considered mismanagement of the crisis.

During the crisis, Turkey invaded the island of Cyprus with a force of more than 40,000 and occupied about 40 per cent of the island. At the time, Turkish Cypriots comprised only about 20 per cent of the island's population. The occupation continues today.

The memorandum goes to the heart of a committee dispute with Kissinger over his order prohibiting State Department operations officers from testifying on what recommendations they make for U.S. policy — contrary to policy decisions or otherwise.

Chino school board, students clash over loitering, littering

Problems with the open campus policy and unruly youths in the Chino High School area led to an unexpected argument between the school board and high school representatives Tuesday night.

A loitering problem around 10th Street and Park Place and "trash" thrown on lawns has residents of the area angry over the open lunch policy which allows students to leave campus during the noon hour.

Residents on Catalpa Place, Benson Avenue, and Jacaranda Court last week complained to the Chino City Council about "rowdy youths" loitering and creating traffic problems.

Since then, police have increased patrols in the area and arrested 26 students on loitering charges. Most were detained in the hours between 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

The open campus policy was not emphasized by residents who addressed the council, but City Manager Bob Fast declared this definitely was part of the problem.

Kip Grubb and Rick Reidel, student body representatives, engaged in an unexpectedly heated debate with several board members over a contention that only a small percentage of the students are causing problems.

Reidel claimed only 3 to 5 per cent of the student body is creating the problem. "These students shouldn't be used as an example for the entire school."

He added that students should be given a chance to be "responsible" to residents opposing the open lunch plan.

"I don't think the problem's that severe."

Board member Roy Ward challenged Reidel, saying the school is being judged in the community by 3 to 5 per cent of the students. "One woman reported trash on her lawn. What are you doing about this?"

A final report will be presented on the open campus policy in November, said trustee Al McCombs. In the interim, police now are spending more time patrolling Chino High School than other district schools, he complained.

Out of 2,000 students at Chino High, if 3 to 5 per cent are causing a problem, "You're talking about 60 to 100 kids," said Ward.

Grubb retorted that "We didn't come here to become involved in an argument over this problem."

Pete Setlich, student activities director, said of 158 "students" picked up, only 48 actually were Chino High School students. "Of these, lots were only ditching school."

Board President Augie Tapia said people are "upset" in the community about the loitering and rowdiness.

Ward said his feeling is not to allow students to come in "with naive information." "They know who the bad apples are in the school."

A woman PTA member complained that Reidel was "shot down" by the board before he even finished his report.

McCombs made it clear the board only was seeking an accurate account of the trouble at the high school.

Cabbie loses fare, cash in holdup

A Claremont cab driver complained to Ontario police Tuesday that a passenger he had picked up in Claremont robbed him of a small amount of cash.

The driver, Andrew S. Catania, 73, of Montclair, told officers he picked up a fare at Indian Hill Boulevard and San Jose Street and drove him to Ontario. Near Park Street and Vine Avenue, Catania said, the passenger pulled a small gun and ordered him to stop the cab and hand over the cash from his billfold.

The robber fled to a nearby car with two other men inside. It sped off. The robber was described as a Caucasian, 5 feet tall, of a thin build, with a pointed nose and jaw. He was wearing a light blue shirt

UPLAND Police today continued their search for two men who robbed an Upland man of a small amount of cash as he was getting out of his car in a carport on Amber Court in Upland Tuesday.

Paul De Salvo told police that he was approached by a man with a knife. He said the man ordered him to hand over his wallet.

Demos tighten rules, eye quieter convention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss says new rules limiting floor fights and credential challengers will mean "a more harmonious convention" when the Democrats meet in New York City next July to pick their presidential candidate.

"I don't think there is any question about it," Strauss said after the Democratic National Committee, overcoming sporadic opposition from some liberals, approved the new rules Tuesday at its last scheduled meeting before the 1976 presidential battle begins.

The new rules substantially narrow the grounds for bringing credentials challenges and increase from 10 to 25 per cent the number of committee members needed to bring a minority report from the credentials, platform and rules committees to the convention floor.

If the new rules had been in effect in 1972, the bitter California and Illinois credentials fights and many of the platform battles that kept delegates in session throughout one night may have ended in commitee.

Adoption of the rules marked the climax of a three-year effort by party leaders to eliminate the causes of 1972 friction while retaining reforms that produced substantial increases in the number of women, minority and youth delegates.

Strauss had sought to achieve a consensus among major party factions before Tuesday's day-long meeting. As a result, virtually all proposed amendments were beaten and some were never even raised.

"I think the party is really interested in doing everything it can to stay together," San Francisco Lawyer Fred Furth, one of the most outspoken liberals, told a reporter.

About the only rumble of disunity was a threat from the committee's black caucus to introduce a motion censuring Strauss for not consulting them in the choice of convention officers. Two officers are black. Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., is one of two keynoters, and Mayor Thomas Bradley of Los Angeles is one of four cochairpersons.

But the threat evaporated after Strauss told the committee he was "truly sorry" if anyone was offended by his decision not to consult on various appointments. He agreed to strive for additional black representation on party committees and added Lt. Gov. George Brown of Colorado, the caucus chairman, to the arrangements committee.

board made up of Pittenger, city attorney Sam Crowe and a disinterested member work out a detailed list of the reversionary rights.

The approval of the city council and the OMS board of the proposed world's fair at the speedway is only the first step. When and if bondholder approval is obtained, Expo 81 must go to the U.S. Department of Commerce, to the President for approval, to Congress for funding and to the Bureau of International Expositions in Paris for formal sanction.

Prior to the discussion, the Expo officials rolled in a large scale-model of a suggested layout for the fair. The model showed four circular, hollow-center buildings, two stories high, in the infield of the speedway, and suggested hotels, office buildings and other structures around the outside perimeter.

"We're going to give you a new secondary airport and possibly a monorail," Pittenger said. "It will be a class A operation that will do nothing but help Ontario. We have a $26 million advertising budget that will spread the name of Ontario, California, throughout the world."

Hodge concluded, "This is the cleanest, shortest cut to a fantastic economic injection into this community."

officers that Miller managed to get the rifle and run out the door. Police asked Hunstman, still conscious after the shooting, what had happened. Huntsman said he did not know, excspt he was sitting on the bed and was shot.

A short time later Upland police said they had the younger Miller in custody at an Upland home. The younger Miller told officers his brother had run out of the apartment after the shooting, pointed the rifle at him and ordered him to drive to Fourth Street, where he got out. The younger Miller said he then drove to his grandparents home in Upland and told them what had happened.

The older Miller, described as a Caucasian, 6 feet 2, 190 pounds, with long blond hair combed straight back and wearing a jacket with the name "Warlords" on it, had not been apprehended by 9 a.m. today.

A short time after the shooting was reported, Donald Bowen of 817 Granada Ct., Ontario, called police to report that his .22 caliber rifle with a scope and 500 rounds of ammunition were stolen from him the night before. Police believe the weapon was the same used in the attemped armed robbery and shooting.

Also detectives were investigating the possibility that the elder Miller may have been involved in an earlier armed robbery in Ontario.

Donations for Reagan campaign picking up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A massive mail appeal for gifts to Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign has produced 15,000 donors and a rate of contribution nearly equal to that of President Ford's campaign.

Although Ford started earlier, has more cash and is getting more large donations, Reagan's backers are combing the conservative grass roots with what they consider heartening success.

Latest finance reports now show the Reagan campaign is getting a daily average of 74 cents for every $1 raised by Ford.

Reagan has not announced his candidacy. The conserative former governor of California says he hasn't fully made up his mind to challenge Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Yet Reagan has given formal permission for the "Citizens for Reagan for President Committee" to raise money on his behalf.

The Reagan committee, in its first report to the Federal Election Commission, said on Tuesday it began raising money July 15 and had received $396,463 by the reporting cutoff on Sept. 30.

Ford's campaign began raising money June 20, and got $706,926.

Thus, the Reagan group is raising an average of $5,083 a day, while Ford's campaign is getting a daily average of $6,863. That means Reagan's backers are getting nearly $3 for every $4 raised by Ford.

At the heart of the Reagan effort is a massive mail appeal for money. Some 1.8 million letters already have been sent to persons whose names show up on lists of Republican and conservative groups. Reagan backers intend to push the total to three million letters sent by year's end.

The Ford campaign hasn't begun mass mailings yet, so Reagan's financial support is currently more broadly based than Ford's. Two-thirds of Reagan's money has come in gifts of under $100, while less than 1 per cent of Ford's money is in these small donations.

Bradley asks spending lid for renewal project

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mayor Tom Bradley says the city should place a spending limit of $750 million on redeveloping the downtown business district.

Such a limit, Bradley said Tuesday in a letter to the City Council, would stop "once and for all" wide-ranging estimates "floating around" about the program's cost.

The goal of the proposed 35-year Central City project is to renew 255 blocks of the downtown area of Los Angeles. The City Council passed the program 12-1, but it has been stalled by two court suits and pending legislation which may allow the city's voters to say yes or no on the plan.

The mayor's action was an apparent attempt to counteract growing opposition to the project. He said his proposal would be "one additional safeguard" that the cost, all to be paid from taxes, would not be too great.

Bradley's letter said estimates of the cost of the project have ranged from $160 million "to the astronomical figure of $6.9 billion" over the lifetime of the project.

"Only the state of the economy and the success of redevelopment will detemine what the precise amount will be," Bradley said. "But any estimate at this time amounts to sheer guesswork."

The mayor said it "is unlikely" the redevelopment project will cost "anywhere near" the $750 limit he proposes.

"It is a safe, conservative maximum ceiling, providing the City Council with a margin for prudent flexibility," he said.

The two suits against the project were filed by Councilman Ernani Bernardi, who cast the no vote and questions the council's finding of blight in the downtown area. He also says the environmental impact statements are inadequate.

Obituaries

Helen Green

Mrs. Helen C. Green of 11735 Crystal Ave., Chino, died Tuesday in her home.

Mrs. Green was born Jan. 29, 1915, in Voss, N.D. She had lived all of her life in North Dakota, prior to coming to this area last January.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Raymond Arneson of Chino and Mrs. Mary Lou Buchanan of Drayton, N.D.; and a brother, John A. Landowski of La Verne.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be celebrated Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in St. Madeleine Catholic Church. Burial will be made in the Sacred Heart Catholic Cemetery, Minto, N.D.

Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona is in charge of arrangements.

Margaret Decker

Margaret S. Decker of Pomona died Monday at Garfield Cottage Hospital after a long illness.

She was born Sept. 26, 1910, and had resided in Pomona for 36 years. She was a member of the Church of Religious Science in Claremont.

Survivors include one son, Bruce, Upland; one sister, Mrs. Lois Quale, Arcadia; two brothers, Robert F. Smith, Moraga and Paul A. Smith, Olympia, Wash.

Private family services are planned at the Draper Mortuary. Entombment will be at the Bellevue Mausoleum.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Kelsey McMullen

Kelsey W. McMullen of Richmond died Sunday in Brookside Hospital, San Pablo, as the result of an automobile-pedestrian accident.

Mr. McMullen was born April 23, 1934, in Cleveland, Ohio. He came to Pomona in 1938 from Ohio and attended local schools. He was graduated from Pomona High School in 1952. He studied at the Pasadena Playhouse for two years. Mr. McMullen served with the U.S. Marine Corps for three years during the Korean War. He was also graduated from San Francisco State College. Mr. McMullen was a teacher for 10 years with the Richmond Unified School District and at the time of his death, was teaching at the Riverside Elementary School in Richmond.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Virginia McMullen of Pomona; a brother, David C. McMullen of Campbell; his father, Chester A. McMullen of Wadsworth, Ohio; two nephews and one niece.

Services will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. in the Pomona Mausoleum. The Rev. Thomas R. Marshall, Rector Emeritus of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Pomona, will officiate.

Friends may make memorial contributions to Peppermint Ridge, a resident home for mentally retarded, Box 301, Corona, California 91720.

Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona is in charge of arrangements.

Judge rules against law

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A judge has ruled that Utah's marriage law is unconstitutional because it discriminates against men.

The law requires males under 21 to have the consent of their parents before being issued a marriage license but sets the age for women at 18.

Neighbors accused of driving blacks out

NEW YORK (AP) — Three law enforcement officers and a stockbroker have been indicted in an alleged scheme to drive a black family from their white neighborhood on Staten Island by vandalizing and then burning down the family's rented home.

U.S. Atty. David G. Trager said Tuesday that Alberto Charles, 44, his wife, Dorrell, and their three children rented the $37,500 house in the middle class community of New Dorp early in April 1972 with the option to buy.

The four defendants allegedly began their vandalism campaign after an unsuccesful effort to raise money for a down payment on the house by a white family.

Before the early morning fire on April 22, 1972, the four allegedly shot out the windows of the house and then flooded it, causing extensive water damage.

Charles, a contract compliance officer for the city's Department of Social Services, and his wife, who is studying for a master's degree at Princeton University, have since moved to another Staten Island community.

Charged with perjury and conspiracy to violate Charles' civil rights were Albert Anzalone, vice president and treasurer of Swiss American Securities, Inc.; Anthony Vivelo, a New York City police sergeant; Nicholas Lombardi, 29, a Correction Department officer; and Robert Barbieri, 31, a Housing Authority police sergeant.

At the time covered in the federal indictment, all four lived on Milton Avenue, where the Charles home was located.

Wallace sees Demos more like him

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace said today most aspirants for the Democratic nomination for president are beginning to see things his way.

Answering newsmen's questions at the end of a half-hour meeting with Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans on the second stop of a European tour that started in London, Wallace said he didn't know whether his trip would improve his chances in running for the nomination.

"Polls say I'm the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination," Wallace noted as he was being wheeled from an elevator to the courtyard at the Belgian premier's office, "but I am the governor of the state and I've been staying in that state and I haven't been getting outside throughout the United States."

"I do know," the Alabama governor said, speaking in a low voice, "that most of those who aspire now sound more and more like I used to sound and the people I support used to sound which I think is a very good thing."

Wallace discussed European and Atlantic alliance problems with Tindemans.

Cancer Society installs officers, presents awards

Dr. J. Douglas Smith of Arcadia was installed as president of the American Cancer Society's Northeast Los Angeles County Unit at its annual meeting held in Pasadena recently.

Other new officers are Lawrence Sheehy, Altadena, president-elect; Dr. Diane Crocker, Pasadena, vice president for fund-raising; Sandra Whaley, South Pasadena, program vice president; Dr. Paul Geleris, Glendora, vice president for personnel; Anne Stark, Monterey Park, secretary; and Robert S. Lund, Arcadia, treasurer. Phineas Goldstein is immediate past president.

The unit's 1967 Crusade will be headed by Jack Buchart Jr.

Outstanding awards were presented to volunteers. The prized "Volunteer of the Year" was awarded to Jan Miller of La Puente.

Also receiving top honors for outstanding performance in specific areas of service were Don Yokaitis, 1975 Crusade chairman; Cy Lichtman, for branch development; Mrs. Bettye Simon, for service to the Lemon Tree Benefit Shop; and Robert G. Syverson, an administration award.

The Order of the Golden Sword went to Mrs. Betty Paul for work with the Reach to Recovery program at Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center and a special award to "the most determined volunteer" Alfredo Cordoba was accepted by Mrs. Gloria Corboda.

Mrs. Peggy Casato accepted an award on behalf of the unit's Reach to Recovery volunteers, whose activities included presenting 38 programs for high school students.

Other awards presented went to Mrs. Kenneth Veronda, for leadership in public information; Sandra Whaley, service volunteer; Dr. Sydney Schall, professional education; Merlyn Lowe, office volunteer; Betty Bergman, for 2½ years of service as coordinator of transportation program while confined to a wheelchair; and Mrs. Mary Guerrero, a 20-year service certificate.

Ross Neal accepted an award to Premium Distributing Co. of West Covina for use of its trucks on many occasions.

Neighbors, S.D. back industrial use zone

The San Dimas City Council has approved a proposed amendment to the General Plan land use element which will split the uses of residential and industrial zones on parcels located in a westside neighborhood.

The council okayed the change from high density residential and commercial to industrial for properties located between Cataract and Oakway avenues from Third Street southerly to the Santa Fe Railway. The change was requested by residents within that area.

The amendment was stimulated by a request for light manufacturing zoning by a businessman wanting to open a welding shop. A petition supporting the industrial zoning at the rear of lots currently zoned residential was signed by all the residents within the boundaries of the change.

Mark Goldberg, planning director, said the split usage is not the best possible land use but if people in the area were willing to put up with industrial zoning at the rear of their properties, "then so be it." The Planning Commission recommended approval of the residents' request.

During the public hearing, Paul Spencer of Sycamore Groves, a small industrial park, spoke in favor of the amendment.

Delia Lee who lives immediately adjacent to the property where the welding shop is to be located asked the council if the welder will have to abide by certain standards for fire safety and noise pollution. She said she and her husband, Henry, wanted some precautions to protect their property.

Lee voiced concern about the noise from the welding shop, particularly on weekends. The shop has not been built yet, but the business is operating anyway, said Lee. He is concerned that the shop will not be built on the rear of the adjacent property away from his living quarters.

Goldberg answered that the welder has no permit for industrial uses in the single family zone now and, therefore, he is operating illegally at the present time.

"He cannot operate except on the part of the property which is to be zoned industrial. We will enforce any violation for his operation now," said Goldberg. "When he moves to the facility in the rear of the property, there should not be a problem with noise and electrical sparks."

Any structure built at the rear of the lot must adhere to both building department and fire regulations, the planning director noted. In the meantime, the welder must cease his operations until he obtains a permit for industrial use and builds the facility for such a business.

Goldberg instructed the Lees to return with a statement if the noise continues within the next two weeks.

In other action, the council accepted a report from Jim Clampett, spokesman for the Solid Waste Ad Hoc Committee, which outlined the solid waste management plan to be included as an element of the General Plan.

"The solid waste problem is very simple. At this point, we have no problem," said Clampett. "Along with other San Gabriel Valley cities we have adequate disposal sites for 15 to 20 years. We are fortunate, much more fortunate than cities in the west Los Angeles area."

Clampett said the specific recommendations from the committee was that the City Council direct the city staff

The continuous program, formerly offered at the Chaffey College Skill Complex at Ontario International Airport, is taught in two sessions by John A. Serra.

Claremont trying to beat law on land sale

The Claremont Unified School District board has decided to try to sell the district's Garey Avenue property and the house at 905 S. Harvard Ave. before a new state law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1976.

The new law states that before a school district may put property up for bid by private organizations or individuals, the property must be offered first for such uses as park or recreational purposes, or to UC regents, to trustees of state colleges, the county and the city, and others.

The district has been attempting unsuccessfully to sell its 13.2-acre Garey Avenue-Dartmouth Street site more than two years. The last attempt ended in January this year when the high bidder told the district he could not get the density he wanted in the county area, and that he was unable to annex either to Claremont or Pomona.

Family Services of Pomona Valley will vacate the district's house at 905 S. Harvard Ave. by Oct. 31, so the district would like to sell that land as quickly as possible.

The district has owned the property since 1945 and used the house as the district offices until the present educational center was completed in 1964. The house was leased to the city of Claremont which subleased it to Family Services.

to maintain a file on new developments in solid waste management, retain the citizens committee on an as-needed basis, and start procedures for adopting the management plan as an amendment to the General Plan.

Mary Ann Kastead, planning assistant, and Mozafar Behzad, formerly assistant public works director for the city, helped the citizens committee develop the plan.

The council instructed the Planning Commission to begin the public hearings to amend this to the General Plan.

The council also directed the staff to investigate violations of outside storage areas becoming an eyesore in the community. Resident Joe Shepherd requested action from the council in curtailing stockpiles outside businesses which are generating visual pollution to neighborhood residents throughout the city.

In final action, the council appointed Rick Rodriguez of Holy Name of Mary Catholic Church to the Senior Citizen Advisory Committee. He replaces Hazel Hooper who resigned.

Brown has been with Bank of America since 1949. He formerly was an assistant vice president with accounts receivable in Los Angeles. He succeeds Charles Hugelman who was moved to the Bishop office.

He attended UC Berkeley and the American Institute of Banking.

Claremont planners ask downtown parking change

The Claremont Planning Commission, with a goal of bringing new business into the village shopping area, has recommended that the City Council relax the existing parking requirements and differentiate that area from other commercially zoned areas in the city.

The commission recommended that the area bounded by Indian Hill Boulevard, Harrison Avenue, the Santa Fe railroad tracks, and Harvard Avenue be rezoned to a new classification of "CV" for Claremont Village District.

The commission decided that instead of recommending a $3,000 fee per parking space for a business with no parking, the City Council set a standard fee on an annual basis. Such money would be used to acquire parking facilities to serve the uses for which the spaces are required.

In other actions, the commissin approved a conditional use permit for the Rodeway Inn to hold an art fair on weekends on the American Avenue frontage.

L.V. scout honored

Mike Riley, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Norton Riley of La Verne, has earned the new World Conservation Award made by World Wildlife Fund, Washington, D.C., through Boy Scouts of America. Riley is a member of Boy Scout Troop 413 which is sponsored by the La Verne Heights Presbyterian Church.

To earn the award, he had to earn conservation and environmental skill awards and merit badges in environmental science, soil and water conservation, fish and wildlife management and citizenship in the world.

The purpose of the award, according to Old Baldy Council executive Ronald Brundage, is to point up to young people that countries of the world are closely interrelated through natural resources and that America is interdependent with the world environment.

Brown hails first year relationship with legislature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he had a very good first year with the California Legislature, but he expects things to get tougher for him in future years.

"I consider this legislative session one of the most productive in California history," Brown said.

"The legislative and executive branches worked more closely together than they have in over a decade," he added.

But the view from legislators was partisan and a little different.

Republicans complained the Democratic governor has taken over the legislature, while Democrats generally defended him.

But the concensus was that the freshman governor is getting along better with the legislature than most Capitol observers expected. And Brown has a closer working relationship with the legislature than did his Republican predecessor, Ronald Reagan.

That is the picture of Brown's first year with the Democrat-controlled legislature, as put together from interviews over the past two weeks.

Brown was obviously pleased that the legislature passed all or part of the 11 proposals he made in his Jan. 6 inaugural address. That included a landmark farm labor election bill.

But the 37-year-old governor tempered his enthusiasm. He said historically a governor's first year is always the easiest to get his programs through the legislature, especially when it involves a change in the political party in control.

"You will find very, very few terms in which more has been done across a broad field," Brown said. "Nutritional programs, labor bills, consumer protections, credit reporting controls, housing finance; farm labor, a very broad-based program.

"The legislative and executive branches worked more closely together than they have in over a decade.... When the preceding administration is of a different party, many things pile up on the agenda, and then are passed.

"When a governor gets into his second and third years, if history is any guide, then it's not quite so easy to get these things accomplished. It gets harder. And since I expect everything to get more difficult, I don't expect being governor to get any easier," Brown said.

Brown has won praise from both parties for holding more meetings with legislators, Republicans as well as Democrats.

That was a change from candidate Brown, who campaigned last year as a crusader against politicians of both parties. He received little support from legislators. His relations with them were cool, due both to his campaign stance and his aloof personal style.

But Brown was also criticized by legislators of both parties, just as Reagan was, for meddling in the drafting of legislation.

"He took over the legislative branch of government," said William Campbell, a Republican assemblyman from Whittier.

"I don't think I've personally seen a governor get personally involved (in writing legislation) as often as Jerry Brown did this year. With Reagan, it was one or two items each year. Brown was up there wheeling and dealing on every major item," Campbell said.

"I think everyone underestimated Jerry Brown as a politician. I think what everyone thought was a starry-eyed philosopher turned out a pragmatic political power broker," Campbell said.

"The amazing thing about it," Campbell continued, "is most of us thought it would be the exact opposite of that, that the legislature would really assert itself."

Another Republican leader, Sen. George Deukmejian of Long Beach, sharply criticized Brown for bypassing the legislature, but he added that it wasn't until Reagan's second term as governor that he finally came around to working with the legislature.

Several Democrats are also critical of Brown, particularly the authors of bills which Brown vetoed on school funding and programs for the aged. But most Democrats have muted their opposition.

Generally, even Brown's legislative critics had a few words of praise for his accessibility. And his supporters sometimes complain that accessibility has been uneven and unpredictable.

Sen. Bob Presley, D-Riverside, said after Brown vetoed his bill on programs for the aged that Brown's objections to technical points could easily have been amended by the legislature.

"I was never told of the governor's objections while the legislature was considering the bill," Presley said.

Senate Democratic floor leader George Moscone of San Francisco also said he was disappointed over a Brown veto of one of his bills on technical grounds. But his overall assessment of Brown was high.

"My relations with the governor are terriffic," Moscone said. "In respect to the legislature in general, they're better than could have been anticipated in view of the campaign, and they're getting better every day."

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 15, the 288th day of 1975. There are 77 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1964, it was announced in Moscow that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev had been ousted from office.

On this date:

In 1522, King Charles V of Spain named the conqueror, Hernando Cortez, governor of New Spain — what is now Mexico.

In 1851, gold was discovered at Melbourne, Australia.

In 1917, the German spy, Mata Hari, was shot by a firing squad outside Paris.

In 1928, the German dirigible, Graf Zepelin, landed at Lakehurst, N.J. after the first commercial flight across the Atlantic.

In 1945, former French Premier Pierre Laval was executed for betraying his country to Nazi Germany during World War II.

In 1946, Nazi war criminal Hermann Goering committed suicide by taking poison one day before he was to have been executed.

Ten years ago: The Roman Catholic Vatican Council denounced anti-Semitism and the idea of collective Jewish guilt for the crucifixion of Christ.

Five years ago: A span of a bridge being built at Melbourne, Australia collapsed, and at least 32 workmen were killed.

One year ago: The Nobel prize in chemistry was awarded to Professor Paul Flory of Stanford University.

Today's birthdays: Economist and writer John Galbraith is 67 years old. Broadway director Jose Quintero is 51.

Thought for today: To know the truth is easy; but, ah, how difficult to follow it — from the Chinese.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, at Cambridge, Mass., General George Washington awarded the first certificate of good conduct for military service in the Revolutionary War to Michael Dowdie of York County, Pa.

Teachers' strike looms as wage talks stall

By CONNIE CASLER
P-B Staff Writer

Possibility of a teacher strike in Upland loomed closer today as wage hike talks broke down over how negotiations should be conducted.

Teachers are asking an 8 per cent pay increase while the school board of Upland Elementary School District has offered 3.6 per cent.

About 100 teachers appeared at Tuesday night's board meeting at Citrus School, demanding the board negotiate in good faith. Teachers sat on the floor, stood behind board members and spilled into an outside corridor when all seats were taken in the meeting room.

Posters charging "Bad Faith Negotiations," "Budget Integrity Is the Issue," and "Recycled Teachers Need a Recycled School Board" lined walls in the meeting room.

Rick Minnis, Upland Teachers' Association president, asked that school trustees declare next Tuesday a short school day so that teachers could meet with trustees and administrators to bargain and reach a compromise in the impasse.

Supt. Bill Plaster strongly opposed any public meeting on salary negotiations stating that subject should be conducted behind closed doors.

Several teachers representing UTA members at the district's 11 schools, read statements stumping for the pay hike. Several claimed Upland pay scales are the lowest among West End and eastern Los Angeles County school districts ranging from $8,600 for beginning Upland teachers to $9,260 for beginning teachers in Pomona.

Plaster said salary talks are not closed and the 3.6 per cent raise offered by the board is not necessarily final.

The superintendent also showed teachers a strike plan which would recruit volunteers and substitutes in case of a teacher walkout.

Minnis avoided a direct question about a strike stating it would be up to UTA general membership to vote for a strike if members believe one is necessary.

Left unsettled was when and how negotiators will get together in an attempt to iron out differences and compromise on the 4.4 per cent separating both sides in the wage dispute.

In other action, trustees set Oct. 27 as a school holiday in commemoration of Veterans Day. Most other districts changed that celebration back to Nov. 11 this year.

Trustees also approved 10 of the district's 11 school sites as polling places for the Nov. 4 tax override vote which would give the school district another 30-cents per $100 valuation if passed.

New zone denied K-Mart

Residents of La Verne have succeeded in blocking the establishment of a shopping center featuring a K-Mart store on Foothill Boulevard.

The residents claim the shopping center would have dumped too much traffic on a subdivision directly south of the proposed development.

They presented petitions bearing more than 500 names to the Planning Commission at a long public hearing Tuesday night opposing a zone change for five acres of land sought by Development Systems, Inc., of San Diego, which was acting in behalf of K-Mart.

The firm wanted to add the five acres, now in a residential zone south of Foothill Boulevard and west of B Street, to another 12½ acres which is already zoned commercial.

Steve Davis, partner in Development Systems, told the commission that his firm planned to build a shopping center that would enhance the area.

But residents from the neighborhood objected, contending that the additional traffic dumped on the narrow streets of the subdivision would be hazardous to children who attend the Grace Miller school.

The commission recommended that the City Council deny the application on three points: it was inconsistent with the general plan, it would create a traffic problem and that the city already had too much land zoned commercial.

Development Systems will get another chance next month when a public hearing is held before the council.

FLAGS AND GINGHAM

Jodi Miller, left, Cameron Moline and Michelle Holmes are all smiles as they don gingham and flag design fashions for the Yankee Doodle Fair at La Verne Heights School in La Verne on Nov. 1. The Service Club of the school will re-create the Revolutionary era from 11:15 a.m. to 4 p.m. with games, prizes and food for the festivities.

Year-round school still is undecided

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

The year-round school controversy in Chino — the issue that refuses to go away — still is not settled.

School board members Tuesday night postponed a decision on whether to place the issue before voters on March 2. They indicated it would be considered again Nov. 10.

Trustees voted, however, to publish a notice of intent to "operate a continuous school program in such a manner as to require some pupils to enroll in the program."

In the 3-2 split vote, Augustine Tapia, Pete VanderPoel and Al McCombs favored showing the intent, and Lyle Briggs and Roy Ward opposed it.

Supt. Royce Lapp urged the board to approve the notice to reserve any possibility of changing the current program for the 1976-77 school year.

The district currently operates an optional year-round and traditional scheduling system.

Trustees have been haggling over whether to call an election to decide the controversy since July. They strongly favored an election at one meeting, but postponed action after a public hearing in which most residents opposed it.

In approving the notice of intent Tuesday, they made it clear it would be "null and void" if the board does not schedule an election on March 2.

Lapp explained that by law, publishing the notice in a local newspaper is mandatory now, but a resolution calling for the election could be put off.

Whether a year-round school election is held may depend on success or failure of the $8.5 million bond vote Nov. 4.

McCombs emphasized that if the bond issue fails, "our ability to designate certain schools as year-round would increase our options." Double sessions are possible if the bonds are voted down, since they are needed badly for new classrooms to house a growing enrollment, he said.

If the YRS election is held, a "yes" vote would authorize the district to mandate year-round scheduling for some schools, said Lapp. A "no" vote would "put us right back where we are now," he added.

Briggs noted that if the November bond vote fails, trustees have said they might place the same bond issue on the March 2 ballot. "Then you'd have YRS and bonds on the same ballot."

Ward indicated he felt YRS was a "dead issue" now. Waiting lists, criticized earlier by year-round foes, have been eliminated, he said. All students are being enrolled in traditional tracks.

Tapia agreed, but apparently believed the district should keep its options open to hold an election if the bond issue was defeated.

Suspects in slayings facing Oct. 21 trial

The trial of three reputed motorcycle gang members on charges of murder, attempted murder and kidnaping as the result of two valley slayings was continued Tuesday for one week.

The action was taken by Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Earl Brody who scheduled Oct. 21 for the start of the trial.

The defendants are Donald Kelso, 25, Ontario, Charles Evans, 34, Lawndale, and David Dupres, 19, Torrance. All three are being held without bail.

A fourth man, Gregory White, 20, Hacienda Heights, was convicted of the charges when he was tried individually last August in Brody's court. The prosecution had asked the death penalty for White, but the jury rejected the action. White is scheduled for sentencing Nov. 21.

The four were charged with murdering one man, kidnaping and murdering a second and attempting to murder a third. The incidents began Feb. 5 in an Industry motorcycle shop.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard L. Jenkins, who is prosecuting the case, said he expects the trial to last from two to three weeks. He has not asked for the death penalty against any of the three remaining defendants.

The two men slain were Michael O'Hara, 25, of Pomona, former president of the Warlords Motorcycle Club, and Adelbert Hempy, 34, Ontario, who reportedly belonged to no club and who was a peacemaker between the rival factions.

The trials originally were scheduled for trial in Pomona Superior Court but were transferred because of legal issues raised by the defense.

Mortuary offers $200 reward in theft of flag

Pomona Valley Mortuary is offering a $200 reward for information concerning the theft of the "Bennington Flag" which has been flying daily at the mortuary for the past three months.

William C. McNamara, general manager, said the flag was stolen late Monday afternoon. The reward, he said, is for information leading to the capture and conviction of the thief.

The flag, a replica of an American Revolution battle flag, measures 10 feet by 5 feet.

McNamara said the flag has little monetary value in itself, but has sentimental value and was to have been flown at the mortuary through July 4, 1976 in celebration of the nation's Bicentennial.

Persons having information about the flag may call McNamara at 623-6563.

Legislators slated for Pomona appearances

U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston and elected representatives from the valley will make a series of appearances Thursday in Pomona.

Cranston, Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., Assemblyman William McVittie, D-65th Dist., and Los Angeles County Supervisor Peter Schabarum will all attend the Pomona Chamber of Commerce "Government Day" luncheon at Buffum's in Pomona beginning at 11:30 a.m. They will be joined by the members of the Pomona City Council and Pomona school board.

From 2 to 3 p.m. they will participate in a community meeting at the Pomona School District education center at 800 S. Garey Ave.

Cranston's schedule will also include a meeting with local labor leaders at an 8:30 a.m. breakfast at Griswold's Inn in Claremont; a tour of the Drake Manor senior citizens' housing complex in north Pomona at 10:30 a.m.; a presentation ceremony at the Pomona Valley YMCA at 3 p.m.; and a reception in his honor at Griswold's Inn at 5 p.m.

Car runs off road; man hurt

A Claremont man escaped with minor injuries when his small foreign car ran off Mt. Baldy Road south of the south tunnel Monday afternoon and somersaulted down a steep, 75-foot embankment.

Felix A. Manley, 65, of 510 W. 6th St., told highway patrol officers he did not know what made him lose control of his car. It went through a dirt turnout, over an embankment and end over end down the slope, coming to rest on its hood. Manley was treated at Kaiser Fontana Hospital.

School assault cases reviewed under proposal

A bill authored by Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-60th Dist., will require that all aggravated assaults by juveniles on teachers and other school personnel during school-related duties be reviewed by the Juvenile Court.

Montoya said the bill (AB 693), which becomes law Jan. 1, "signifies a trend toward tighter disciplinary controls to cope with the growing problem of juvenile violence.

"Presently, many teachers feel that aggravated attacks upon them go unreviewed by anyone," Montoya said. "There are even assault cases where the juvenile is back on campus from the police station before the teacher. I feel this bill is a step in the direction of greater safety in our schools."

The measure was supported by the United Teachers of Los Angeles, the Los Angeles City Council and the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

Dryland skiing class offered

Pomona Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor a class in Dryland Alpine Skiing beginning Oct. 27 at the Ganesha Park Community Center.

The four-week class will meet Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Cost is $5.

The class will be instructed by Dick Morris, a professional ski school director. Plastic ramps will be set up outside for use by students, who must furnish their own skis, boots and poles.

On Tuesday, Oct. 21, the Pomona Public Library will have a free ski program at 7 p.m. including films, equipment display and discussion of techniques by professional instructors.

Weekend guest: Indian summer

Indian summer without smog has come to the valley and is expected to stay here through the weekend.

A high pressure front from the ocean has created a warming trend that will drive afternoon temperatures to 90 degrees.

A moderate wind that is part of the pressure system is expected to prevent formation of smog, according to the weatherman.

The mercury hit 85 degrees Tuesday and is expected to reach 90 today and Thursday.

Welding unit, truck burned

A commercial welding unit and a one-ton truck were destroyed by fire Tuesday at 4:29 p.m. at the construction site of Countrywood Estate Homes in Hacienda Heights.

The welding unit was mounted on the back of the truck, county firemen said.

The fire started in the welding equipment and spread quickly to the truck motor, firemen said. The loss estimate was $10,000.

Claremont hears pros and cons on asphalt plant

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

An official for the Montclair firm which is proposing to move its asphalt concrete batch plant to the San Antonio Wash west of Upland Tuesday night invited protesters at the Claremont City Council meeting to be his guests on a tour of the site.

William E. Cozzo, vice president for Industrial Asphalt, assured the 40 persons protesting the move that the wash area will not be disturbed in any way.

Cozzo displayed large color photos taken from the top of an 8-foot dike west of the 2.5 acres on which the plant will be constructed, and explained that the proposed plant would be only 48 feet high, and difficult to see in the center of 44 acres proposed for rezoning.

Cozzo said that the firm will install bag house devices so there will be no air pollution of any kind, and that it will be substantially less than created at the present plant at 4700 Huntington Drive in Montclair.

The City Council, after given the pros and cons five minutes to state their views, continued the matter to its Oct. 28 meeting after the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors hears an appeal Oct. 20 on the environment impact report.

Cozzo told the council that the area under question has been in industrial use for 20 years, and that a pipe company has been operating there 9½ years.

Cozzo said that the firm has spent $20,000 to relocate the plant at the new site on the west side of Benson Avenue, north and south of 20th Street in unincorporated county territory west of Upland.

He said his firm uses 500 tons of rock and sand a day, and that it takes 467 tons of rock and sand to produce one ton of asphalt.

He said the Conrock Co. at Huntington Drive and Claremont Boulevard has depleted its present supply of rocks at its Montclair site after 30 years, and will move its operation to the wash, "no matter what happens to us."

He stressed that if his firm doesn't get the requested zoning and has to stay in Montclair, Conrock will have to truck the rocks from the wash to the Montclair site, and "trucking will increase, as well as truck emissions."

Cozzo said the 60 acres the firm will be vacating in Montclair will be a good site for an industrial park. He added that Industrial Asphalt's presence in the wash will expedite Conrock's flood control basin digging 10 years sooner than if it were not there.

Upland City Councilwoman Ina Petokas told the council that Upland last February expressed concern about the requested rezoning for the plant, and explained that the area on the city's master plan is open space for flood control purposes.

Mrs. Petrokas said that Conrock's operation in the wash is all right.

The city staff assured the council that it could make a stronger statement on the asphalt plant if it waited for San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors to rule on the appeal.

Realtor Gordon Curtis told the council that land use will have a definite effect on property values in the county area, and urged the council to take an "early and forceful stand."

The council received 16 letters from residents in the county area north of Claremont and from three Claremont residents, all protesting the establishment of the plant.

Councilman Frank Hungerford suggested postponing any decision until Oct. 28. "I don't see that any more input on the EIR would be advantageous," he said.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald said it is "quite a complicated issue. I want two weeks more to get more information."

Beginning a new life

If the history of most American families is traced back far enough, chapters are found telling stories very similar to what now is being experienced by Pomona's newest residents, the Vietnamese refugees.

The adults in this new group have endured a lifetime of war. They have lived under political and military rule which they philosophically opposed.

They chose to leave their homeland and carve out a new life in a totally foreign land thousands of miles away.

Like most of our immigrant ancestors, many of the adult Vietnamese refugees are low both in material possessions and in job skills. Few of them understand the languages spoken here.

There are many humanitarian reasons why these people should be received warmly in the valley. They certainly deserve not only our admiration and respect but a helping hand extended in sincere friendship.

Kind and caring treatment of our new friends could be interpreted as an expression of appreciation for the foundation our immigrant ancestors built for us in this land of opportunity.

The Progress Bulletin extends to the Vietnamese a very hearty welcome, and a wish for happy, productive lives here in the community.

Farm export ban reaps problems?

Picture the Soviet Union sending buyers to the United States with firm orders, and hard money to back them up, for a billion dollars worth of automobiles.

Now extend this impossible dream by imagining certain politicians and labor leaders demanding that the government scotch the deal because additional sales abroad might cause car prices to go up at home.

Ridiculous? But just substitute grain for automobiles and you have today's "insane demand" by some to shut off further grain shipments to foreign customers.

That is the analogy drawn by Keith C. Barrons, an agricultural scientist with Dow Chemical Co. and author of a just-published book, "The Food in Your Future."

For years the American farmer has been raising grain for export just as much as for domestic consumption, says Barrons. Currently he is harvesting more than two billion bushels of wheat, knowing that all the bread, crackers, pasta and pastry we will eat in the U.S.A. during the coming year, plus a reasonable addition to our reserves, will require less than half that amount. The remaining billion-plus bushels were raised to be sold, just like every automobile that rolls off the assembly line, and this grain must be sold abroad.

Farm production for export has been a lifesaver for our economy, Barrons contends. Last year we exported $21 billion worth. If all this food had been retained at home just to keep domestic prices down, the resulting high deficit in foreign trade would have caused further deterioration in the value of the dollar and higher costs for everything we import.

Even if a block to the free export of farm commodities had a temporarily depressing effect on food prices, the long-range effect would be higher prices, he says.

"Any manufacturer faced with the possibility of a ban on exports would gear his output to meet only the domestic market. With lower volume his costs would go up,and these increases would eventually reach the consumer.

"Farmers will certainly not plant for the superabundance we have been blessed with in recent decades if their foreign markets are in jeopardy. Do those advocating an export shut-off expect farmers to produce a high surplus in future years just so the prices they receive will go down?"

With higher taxes and greatly increased costs for equipment, fuel, fertilizer and everything that goes into a crop, many farmers are already on the ropes, says Barrons. An export ban could knock them completely out of the ring.

Thoughts

"This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." — John 15:12, 13.

"So long as we love, we serve; so long as we are loved by others, I should say that we are almost indispensable; and no man is useless while he has a friend." — Robert Louis Stevenson, English novelist.

Job snobbery

Dear Editor:

Many of your readers agree that the immediate solution to the crime wave is that criminals be given swift and severe punishment, and that they not be glorified. While we often hear about the apparent lack of crime in Communist countries, most of us would not want to go to their extremes to accomplish it here: the accused being taken from their home in the night with no chance to prove innocence, no trial, no goodbyes, never to be seen or heard from again. We want the accused to be proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, but not to be released on technicalities when guilt is obvious.

While there will always be some criminal types beyond help, I feel there are many young people just starting to get into trouble who are all worth saving. Many are victims of unavoidable neglect. Many come from loving homes and have concerned parents, but have nothing to do. For so many there is no feeling of self worth. This is especially true in poverty areas, but it occurs at all economic levels. Some feel less important than their parents' selfish pursuit of things, money or status; or worse yet, feel in the way or unwanted. When a person feels rejected by family and/or the world, he may lash out against them or try to destroy what has hurt him.

Many young people never get excited about book learning, but if offered a chance to DO something that produces results or a finished product or a useful service they become enthusiastic about life, and themselves as someone important. One big problem in this country is JOB SNOBBERY. All honest work is important, but many jobs are looked down on as inferior employment, especially those most essential to health and well-being: cleaning, washing dishes, hauling garbage and trash, farm labor. While one might desire easier work, there will never be anything more important than these jobs.

In Japan there are often more people doing a job than are really needed, and none of them make a large wage, but they all have work. We may all have to take less pay so that everyone may have the chance to earn SOME.

If young people who want to work and are old enough to do it were given a chance to learn a skill that is productive, they would have a desperately-needed sense of importance. Don (Father) Bosco discovered this in 19th Century Italy, when he took young boys who were getting into trouble off the streets and taught them trades. From this beginning have come technical schools all over the world. This can be done on a large scale, and for girls, perhaps through the public schools, industry, unions, churches and civic organizations. Much could be taught on television. If some trades are overcrowded we must learn new ones to meet our current world problems. As Ann Landers said, ". . . if you think education is expensive — try ignorance." We MUST care about them all, while they are yet young. Are we unselfish enough to do that? When we are that unselfish, morality will automatically follow. — J. H., Claremont

Strike is a crime

Dear Editor:

As a concerned citizen I agree crime is a major problem in our area and I commend the Progress Bulletin and others for taking a positive stand against it. However, I feel a word of constructive criticism is in order.

Our city police departments need the concerned cooperation and respect of all citizens in order to do an efficient and proper job. I do not feel they deserve this whenever there is a strike or threat of strike for whatever reason.

We have a right to demand the highest integrity and morals from the people we choose to protect us. The people who enforce the law must obey the law stringently or they put themselves in a position of compromise. The moment city policemen threaten or begin a strike, they are defying the law which they have sworn to uphold.

On one hand we are told to always obey the law or face punishment, yet on the other hand, city police departments say we may disobey the law by striking for more money, better morale, etc. Regardless of all contentions concerning the right to strike, it is against the law for city employes in the State of California to strike. The moment a city policeman goes on strike he commits a crime.

I would suggest the laws must be obeyed and enforced equally, as a starting point, if we are to combat crime in a realistic manner. — Dean Taylor, La Verne

The spiritual perspective

Dear Editor:

Your editorial of Sept. 28 was commendable. I would agree with you concerning the disagreeable nature of the realities of crime. I am certain also that your "spotlight on crime" has been of help to make us aware of the serious crime problem in Pomona.

Although church and state have traditionally been held in separation, occasionally churches should voice their opinions on certain humanitarian and spiritual issues. Certainly, from the church's perspective, crime is a problem that can be classified by these two terms. While we encourage our government on all levels to deal with crime, we also recognize the church's responsibility to meet the problem from the spiritual perspective.

Faith Church claims to preach a life changing message. We believe that when a person is confronted with the reality of God's love in Jesus Christ that significant personality changes will follow. One change can be a person's capability to love his fellow human. Respect for person and property become a by product of this change. Obviously, the resultant influence on society will be positive rather than criminal. Thus the church has a responsibility to do its best to proclaim the life-changing message of life in Jesus Christ.

Faith Church believes Pomona and the Pomona Valley is a good community. We agree that "it is too good a community to let it go down the drain." We stand with those who want the best for this city and its surrounding communities. We will do our part to meet the spiritual perspective of the crime problem by our continued proclamation of God's love. — Peter Torry, Pastor, Faith Missionary Church

Problem is not new

Dear Editor:

Congratulations on the forthright stand the Progress Bulletin is taking on the crime situation in Pomona. Along with the thousands who are answering your appeal to stand up and be counted, I too, feel it is a problem that has brought this city virtually to the crossroads. The thing that bothers me, however, is that most of the letter writers harken back to the good old days, sigh nostagically and moan because something isn't here that used to be. Everybody agrees that we OUGHT to do something, but no one seems to know exactly what. And in that connection it may interest you to learn what was being proposed to correct a similar situation in Southern California 124 years ago.

In 1851 The Los Angeles Star, Southern California's earliest newspaper, carried an editorial which read:

"The people of this city it is believed are in favor of punishing offenses by due process of law. A few, indeed, have hinted at a Vigilante Committee, not because the laws of the land are insufficient to protect us, but that they are not rigidly administered. let it not be said of Los Angeles that her citizens were obliged to resort to this measure."

But by 1853 crime had become so prevalent in the Los Angeles area that The Star reversed its original stand and in no uncertain terms presented this plan to cure the evil:

"This county is in a state of insurrection, and clearly and plainly so. A large gang of outlaws are in open rebellion against the laws, and are daily committing the most daring murders and robberies. Good citizens should devise plans to defend themselves. One of two things must result: the orderly industrious inhabitants must drive out this worthless scum of humanity, or they must give way before the pirates and be driven out themselves. — Let good citizens combine and drive the rascals headlong into the sea."

Yes, that's the way it was 124 years ago — and maybe, if the sea is too far away, we might compromise on Puddingstone Lake. Once again congratulations and keep up the good work. — Doc Peirsol, Pomona

The mayor speaks

Dear Editor:

I have watched and read with great interest the articles that have appeared in the Progress Bulletin regarding your front page editorial "STAND UP AND BE COUNTED." Many of the solutions that have been advocated by the readers vary greatly, but one can be sure, the simple fact that over 2,100 copies of the editorials have been sent in indicates the public is concerned and fed up with the crime increase that has occurred and there seems to be no end in sight.

The mere fact that crime is prevalent throughout the country today does not rationalize its existence here in Pomona, nor do the citizens in our outlying cities condone its actions there. The root of the problem seems to be somewhere between what causes the perpetuator of the crime to commit a violation of the law, and what happens to the individual after he has been apprehended by the law enforcement officer.

Since most court records show that the offenders are almost immediately out in the street again to repeat their actions, it leaves the police officer with a deep sense of frustration. But what about the victims? Many are physically or mentally not so fortunate to be able to survive the ordeal.

The Progress Bulletin is to be complimented by daring to write the editorial and put it on the front page for all to read. By virtue of their action, they have put themselves up to be counted. What happens now? Shall we start a scrap book? The answer is obviously NO. Let's all stand up and be counted by doing what we can ourselves. First, the community needs to get behind the Police Department and support them, because only by your support can they be more effective in their efforts to enforce the law. The police are "not all things to all people" and must be completely backed by the community. Suspicious people, and what appears to be unlawful acts in the neighborhood should be reported immediately to the Police Department. One must be careful not to take the law in his own hands. The Police Department have information and can help in many ways toward organizing a "Surveillance Program" in your neighborhood and also provide you and your group many ideas and ways on how to protect yourself and your property. I have attended some of these neighborhood meetings and they have shown to be effective. The first immediate step citizens must take to discourage "would be" criminals is to eliminate the opportunity for them to commit an offense. Until parents can teach their children the meaning of "Respect", a seven letter word, but so hard to comprehend; until they begin taking their children to church to give them a sense of decent morality and obligations; until parents start taking the responsibility of rearing their children by accepting that obligation that has been entrusted to them, then we concerned citizens will have to shoulder that responsibility. — Sincerely, Ray J. Lepire, Mayor of Pomona

A shameful reflection

Dear Editor:

The announcement that the Claremont Colleges have accepted a teaching contract from Angela Davis is a shameful reflection against these fine institutions.

Those persons, within the colleges who are responsible, must take immediate action to cancel this contract.

This decision by the college is of serious concern to all of us who live and work in this area and we must not allow this person to enter our comunity. — M. Castle, Montclair

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

Who says that some of the old time virtues are a thing of the past? —At our service stations we're still getting fast, courteous, friendly service aren't we? Of course it's self service and I'm not so sure it's service with a smile. But why quibble over a little thing like a smile?

After all, isn't it enough that once again we are beginning to realize God helps those who help themselves? —And isn't it interesting how, "Women and children first, "has once again become the rule rather than the exception? Of course that saying should be revised to read, "Old women and children first," for that's the way our fearless criminal punks are operating these days.

Unnatural gas prices

WASHINGTON — The Federal Power Commission doesn't intend to let the truth stand in the way of its push for higher natural gas prices.

President Ford, the gas industry, and the top brass at the FPC have concluded that the producers need prices deregulated as an incentive to find more gas and stave off an anticipated shortage.

But there is only the industry's word to support the predictions of shortage. Indeed, the U.S. Court of Appeals has heard evidence that the gas companies are simply holding back their product until they get higher prices. The court ordered the FPC to determine if natural gas curtailments on the East Coast were deliberate or unavoidable.

FPC officials, therefore, have reluctantly instructed their staffs to find out whether the shortage really exists. A confidential study for the House Energy subcommittee states, however, that the FPC investigation is "doomed to failure."

The probe is "miserably understaffed," the study states, because FPC Chairman John Nassikas "has reassigned the more competent staff to work on deregulation."

Only two full-time people have been assigned to go through 109 crates of documents in the case. They have only one lawyer working with them, but he is also assigned to two other investigations.

The Commission has other natural gas probes under way, but they also suffer from understaffing.

One is supposed to determine whether there is more gas available in wells that the industry has shut down, as some critics have alleged.

The FPC Has received 50 volumes of technical material on the case from gas producers. The staff working on the investigation, therefore, asked Chairman Nassikas for an expert consultant to help them decipher the data.

Internal FPC memos show that the request was made in July. But two months and a flurry of memos later, Nassikas finally decided that the funds for a consultant were not available.

Nine months of staff work has gurgled down the drain, and the producers' side of the story has yet to be investigated.

Nassikas, apparently, is more interested in getting the gas industry higher prices. And those higher prices will mean higher utility bills for American consumers.

KENNERLY CONTROVERSY: The most controversial figure in the White House is turning out to be David Hume Kennerly, the former Associated Press photographer whom President Ford personally chose to be his official lensman.

Kennerly, who is close to the Ford family and members of the international jet set, has brought some of the world's most glamorous figures to the White House, creating a few minor scandals in the process.

He has thus managed to offend top Ford aides, who feel that a photographer's opinions on profound domestic and world affairs are scarcely worth listening to.

In an effort to ease him out, therefore, top White House officials have begun spreading stories about Kennerly. One of the tales they have been whispering is that he accepted a $790, leather-encased edition of a new oil game called "Petropolis" from rock music superstar Mick Jagger.

This would be a gross violation of White House regulation which forbids any official from accepting a gift valued in excess of $25.

We carefully checked the story and found it to be only partially true. Kennerly was indeed given a Petropolis game worth $790, but not by Jagger. It came instead from Baron Arnaud de Rosnay, another international socialite and the inventor of the game. Kennerly, to his credit, realized it would be improper to accept the gift, so he returned it.

Female guards

Now that we have established the fact women guards work in male inmate housing units and men guards work in female housing units of state correctional institutions, may I ask why?

The possibility of men guards seeing undressed women inmates is limited to a small chance and that only in the event of emergency.

On the other hand, women guards watch while the male inmates use the toilet. Why? Why in the name of common decency with all the duty areas in the prison are women placed in the housing units to humiliate the men?

The 1964 Civil Rights Act has been prominently mentioned but what about the 1965 verdict of the United States Supreme Court to insure the sexes will be separated in ALL PLACES that involve sleeping, disrobing and other private functions. This edict has been completely ignored, which indicates to me that the California Department of Corrections is violating the law.

I also wonder what kind of official will allow male inmates to be so degraded as to have to perform a very personal function as using the toilet while a woman watches?

This is the United States and not some half-civilized country. Which way are we going? — M. P., San Dimas.

Your letter was written in August. It refers back to one you wrote in July and another from an Ontario reader which appeared in Action Line just before we received yours.

It took us awhile to get an answer to the letter above. The answer came from a woman, Dorothy S. Roby, assistant director of the state department of corrections.

She didn't reply directly to your reference to your inquiry about the 1965 verdict although she said privacy of inmates is respected and all measures consistent with reasonable security have been considered when placing females in housing units.

Toilet areas are open in state correctional institutions, she said, and must be for security reasons.

As did Bertram S. Griggs, superintendent of the California Institution for Men in Chino, answering your previous letter, Roby said departmental practices are within the law as mandated by the Civil Rights Act of 1964. It prohibits discrimination in employment based on sex, race, religion or national origin.

"It is departmental policy that correctional officers, male and female, are expected to perform all duties of their assignments in a professional manner," she said.

Today in the mail I received an American Heritage paperback dictionary worth $1.25, sent by priority mail to the tune of another $1.82.

It was sent by Dictionary Rally in Maryland without my ordering or requesting it. The accompanying information leaves some unanswered questions. Perhaps you can help.

Do I get to keep the dictionary regardless of my participation in the contest? Or must I return it? Or must I pay for it later?

The person with the highest score wins but what is the prize? Is there just one prize?

Who is sponsoring this contest? Where does the financing come from? Where did Dictionary Rally get my name?

Is this a legitimate contest or are there hidden costs which Rally will zap me with later? Why haven't I heard about it through newspapers, TV, magazines or radio? How many others were sent the dictionaries?

The cost of the dictionary, 28 instruction sheets, packaging and mailing probably amounts to $3 or $4 per contestant. The cost of Dictionary Rally probably lies in the millions of dollars. What's the catch?

The funny thing is, this sounds like a fun contest! — C. M., Claremont.

As we have had no previous inquiries regarding Dictionary Rally, we asked the firm itself to answer your questions.

Charles Bostick John Ferguson and Walter Penney, Rallymasters, said theirs was a small-scale operation for lovers and puzzlers like themselves.

They said they were enclosing a flyer giving a general idea of the Dictionary Rally but it wasn't in the envelope.

You, however, were told that your dictionary was paid for by your uncle. So was your entry fee. Neither of us knows the amount of the fee.

Bostick, Ferguson and Penney answered some of your questions as follows:

—Prizes will be trophies awarded to the top 10 per cent of entrants.

—The financing is covered by the entry fees.

—There are no further costs.

—Dictionaries and rally instructions were sent to 265 entrants this year. The rally has been conducted for six years and the number of entrants has averaged about 240 per year.

—There are no tie-breakers or other puzzles to work. No other reference works are needed and nothing more need be bought.

BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, Oct. 16

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others won't show you the same consideration you have shown them. Don't expect to receive a favor just because you've done a good turn.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not nearly as alert as you should be in handling your business affairs. Someone much more wide-awake is going to get the drop on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A well-meaning but poorly advised friend is going to get you off on the wrong foot today. Listen to what others say, but use your good judgment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You tend to brush things under the rug today. These sins of omission will later come back to haunt you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Overlooking and excusing the faults in one you love will seem charitable to you today. However, you'll only weave a tangled web that you'll have to unravel later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to make financial requests from members of your family. You'll only embarrass them, as well as yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're prone to divulge personal matters to the wrong set of ears today. Be very selective as to the person you discuss intimacies with.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you have occasion to contract someone to do work for you today, be extra cautious of your choice. Overpayment is likely if you pick the wrong party.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to be too much a gambler for your own good today. Don't bank on Lady Luck to save your bacon if you take silly risks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some confidential information about the family is going to leak out today. You'd better find the source and plug it up quickly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The fact that you could let a friend down today is disturbing. If you try to rationalize later with flimsy excuses, you'll only make matters worse.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you want to buy something today, keep your top price in mind and stick to it. Otherwise, you'll let your desire exceed your means.

Your Birthday Oct. 16

The coming year has many good things in store for you. However, it will take the edge off your success if you align yourself with a partner of questionable motives.

Why celebs get away with it

Dear Ann Landers: I was interested in the letter from the restaurant owner who didn't know what to do about those slobs who bought Chinese food at a carryout joint down the street, brought the cartons into his place, took a booth, and helped themselves to the salt and pepper, napkins, and silverware. They soiled the tablecloth, used the washroom, said goodbye and left no tip. The mess — including the floor — took 15 minutes to clean up.

Of course these people are trash, but how different are they, really, from the celebrities who bring their so-called "health food" to the most exclusive bistros in Hollywood? I've seen these big names take plastic sacks out of their tote bags, eat the carrots, lettuce, green peppers and radishes, order a glass of skim milk and get treated like queens.

The waiters knock themselves out for these people because they are well-known. Why does the management overlook such nonsense? It irritates me no end. Please comment. — Resident of Beverly Hills.

Dear Beverly: The answer is found in your letter. "Because they are well-known."

The patrons who frequent these bistros are willing to pay top dollar so they can go home and say they saw Gloria Swanson or Carol Channing.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 19-year-old girl who has been trying to deal with a problem for two years, but I'm getting nowhere. Will you please get it all together for me?

There were seven kids in our family. My oldest brother, Jeff, died in 1973, on his 21st birthday. Now there are six kids left — four boys and two girls.

Whenever I meet someone new they ask about my brothers and sisters. I don't know whether to say I have four brothers or five. I hate to leave Jeff out. Even though he is dead he is still very much a part of my life.

Next the question of his age — should I say 21, the age Jeff was when he died, or should I say 23? Please help me, Ann. I still get crying spells when I think of what a great guy he was. — Grieving Sister

Dear Grieving: Say, "There were seven kids in our family — five boys and two girls — until two years ago, when my brother Jeff died. He was 21. So now there are only six of us and we miss Jeff every day of our lives."

After you've said it once or twice it will be easier. But do memorize the speech and get it out somehow because unless you tackle it now it will be a problem forever.

Dear Ann Landers: It's 3 a.m. I had to get out of bed to write this letter and tell you how right you are. My son was like "Harold" and I was too blind to see it.

When his daddy died I became too much mother and refused to let my brothers do anything for the boy because I wanted to be his whole life. I told myself he needed a "double mother." Now I see I did too much for him and a lot of it was damaging.

Harold is 21, and can't decide what pair of slacks to wear to church. He couldn't stay in a college 40 miles from home because he missed me. He won't date girls because they are "boring." He doesn't have any friends because they are "too rough." In short, the boy is a mess and I'm to blame. I feel better for this confession. Thank you. — Damn Fool Mother

Dear Mother: Your confession doesn't help Harold much. Your son needs counseling and I urge you to see that he gets it at once.

Joe Firman

Bandit's lot not a happy one

Have you ever had one of those days when everything just seemed to go wrong? (There's ANOTHER kind?)

You know what I mean — weather lousy, kids fighting, car won't start. The boss chews you out, you louse up a sale — I mean, you shoulda stood in bed, right?

This sort of psycho-sociological trauma, hem, is bad enough for the average citizen, for machinist or clerk, butcher, baker, bookie or businessman, but think how awful it would be to have "one of those days" if you were a bank robber.

As a usually law-abiding citizen, I can only rejoice when some brigand is baffled in his unlawful assault on ill-gotten gains, but I must admit to a twinge of sympathy for one poor oaf who had one of those days while sticking up a bank.

The usual routine — grim note, hidden weapon, terrified teller, grrr. But the poor girl was so frightened she kept dropping money on the floor as she tried to fill the bandit's bag. Finally he panicked. "That's enough!" he said, seized the bag, ran out and comandeered a getaway car. Or almost.

The driver, parked in front of the bank, looked the desperado up and down and said, "Get lost." (Great line, eh?) The bandit tried to get lost; believe me, he would have liked nothing better.

He ran for a car parked by the bank. The bank alarm went off and startled him so he dropped the bag of money. He jumped in the car. It wouldn't start. He jumped out — right into the arms of five policemen.

An even better (or worse, depending on whose side you're on) muff of a bank job occurred in Maywood some time back. "Hand over $10,000," read the note. "Be real quiet. All I want is the money." (What else did anyone in the bank want?)

The teller, who gave his name as A. Harlan Ashby — which I find the most difficult part of the story to believe — read and re-read the note. He polished his glasses, lighted a cigarette and finally said, "Maybe that gentleman can help you," indicating the bank's operations officer.

A good choice — this was certainly an operation. But here's the point: the bandit, even as you and I when faced with the mysterious intricacies of big business, meekly did as he was told. Sure, he had resolved to risk his freedom and possibly his life, but he was such a creature of habit that he didn't dare violate the ritual of the bank.

He went to the operations officer (while the teller pushed the silent alarm and turned on the movie cameras). The operations officer quite rightly turned the applicant over to the bank manager — the thing was clearly not in his field. And Joe Bandit trudged unhappily on over the readmill of red tape. If the bank manager had asked him for his ID card and three credit references, he'd probably have dug them out.

The manager said, "I'm afraid we don't have $10,000 just now." Joe Bandit, by now despairing of the whole business, said "All right, I'll take $2,000." Reasonable chap.

By then, of course, there were more cops than customers in the bank, and our befuddled Everyrobber was led off to the slammer, still not quite sure where things went wrong.

Some days it just doesn't pay a stickup man to get out of bed.

Dr. Lamb

Arteries and brain disease

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 61-year-old female weighing about 136 pounds and am 5-feet-6 inches tall. I do not smoke or drink. A few months ago I had a complete physical examination including blood work, cardiogram and chest X rays.

My physician gave me a clean bill of health but said the X rays showed a tendency toward hardening of the arteries. I asked him what I could do about that he replied, "nothing."

This report has caused me quite a bit of concern because I have seen the mental confusion in older people caused by hardening of the arteries. Naturally I do not want this to happen to me. Could you give me any encouragement for my future health?

DEAR READER — Encouragement coming up. In the first place the kind of changes you can see on routine X rays in the arteries is not the kind that causes heart and brain disease. That ought to make you feel better. I am sure your doctor saw the kind we worry less about.

The kind of change we see in the arteries that causes heart attacks and strokes is the deposition of fatty-cholesterol particles just under the inside lining of the artery. The deposits bulge into the opening and shut it off partially or completely, or rupture, leading to the local formation of a clot in the artery. This causes a stroke (big or small) and heart attacks, depending on what artery is involved.

Another change we often see is the formation of calcium in the middle part of the arterial wall. This will make the artery hard, like a lead pipe, but it won't cause it to become obstructed. The calcium is radio-opaque, and it can be seen on the X ray. These deposits are commonly present in the wall of the main big artery, the aorta, that supplies all the blood except the lungs.

To see the changes that obstruct arteries, you need to inject a radio-opaque dye into the artery and then take special pictures. This is what is done to see the changes in the coronary arteries or to visualize the arteries to the brain. That is not the kind of test you have on a routine medical examination, so that is not what your doctor is talking about.

Senility changes can and do occur even when there is no impairment of circulation to the brain. Nevertheless, if you can maintain normal circulation you have a better chance of avoiding the changes you want to escape.

To do this you should try to avoid or eliminate any tendency to obesity, use the kind of diet we recommend to prevent atherosclerosis, the formation of fatty-cholesterol deposits, and maintain a regular exercise program.

Your doctor may have checked your cholesterol levels and found they were normal. Your blood pressure was normal and you don't smoke, so in that case you have eliminated all three of the major factors you can do something about that contribute to an increase in atherosclerosis. If your blood pressure was high I would suggest treating it to protect you longer. You are now in the age when a woman has to consider these things just as much as a man does, but it sounds like you are doing all right.

Jacoby's bridge

East could set wily Sherlock

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Sherlock Holmes bid his full values and a little extra with today's hand. West opened the king of hearts. East studied carefully, overtook West's king and led back her singleton club.

This brilliant play forced Holmes to adopt extraordinary measures. He cashed his king of diamonds, overtook his queen with dummy's ace and carefully discarded his last heart when East put her jack of diamond on dummy's 10. East led a heart but it was all over. Holmes ruffed, knocked out the ace of trumps, ruffed the next heart, drew the last trumps and claimed.

Betty Castle, sitting East, had played brilliantly, but not quite brilliantly enough. The club shift was fine, but when she got in with the jack of diamonds she could have led a fourth diamond and cooked Holmes goose.

He would have been forced to ruff high to shut out West's nine. That would take care of one of his honors. He would have had to lead a second one. Betty would win that trick and lead a fifth diamond. Holmes would have to ruff high again and West's nine of trumps would have become a sure winner.

Opening lead — K ♥

Ask the Jacobys

A writer from Illinois asks for an explanation of the "Rule of Eleven."

One of the standard leads against a notrump contract is the fourth best from the longest and strongest suit. This means when your partner opens the seven of spades you subtract seven from 11 which means four spades higher than the seven are in the hands of the remaining three players.

Thus, if you are third hand, you can tell how many cards declarer holds that can beat the opening lead by totalling the number in your hand plus the dummy and subtracting this from four. The declarer can also determine the number you hold by the same process.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

New York City default may trigger financial crisis

By The Assoc. Press

Urban officials say they are afraid a New York City default will trigger financial crisis in other metropolitan areas, including some that are in sound fiscal condition.

Cities already are finding it harder to borrow money, to sell their bonds. They are forced to pay higher interest rates.

"The investor ... is afraid of a New York situation and doesn't have the information about whether it exists in other cities," said Frank Strahsmeier, a partner in William R. Hough & Co., a bond trader in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Although the Ford administration has steadfastly refused to bail out New York, federal officials are beginning to admit that a default could have serious implications for the rest of the country.

An Associated Press study shows that no other city even comes close to New York in terms of the seriousness of its financial problems.

Let's look at the financial health of some of the big cities.

Standard & Poor's Municipal Bond Selector showed that as of the end of August, New York City owed more money, in both absolute and relative terms, than any other city.

What does that mean?

In absolute terms, New York City's overall bonded debt for which the city taxpayers are responsible was $7.7 billion. The next closest city was Chicago, with an overall bonded debt of $1.2 billion.

Economists also measure debt in relative terms, however, comparing it to the number of residents, to the value of the city's property and to the income of its citizens.

The New York per capita debt was $983, equal to 9.4 per cent of the city's property value. Per capita debt represented just over 20 per cent of per capita income.

In Chicago, the nation's second largest city, per capita debt was $363, equal to 3.8 per cent of property value. Per capita debt represented only 7 per cent of per capita income.

A look at 20 of the nation's largest cities shows no other city where per capita debt is more than 15 per cent of per capita income.

The runner-up to New York, according to Standard & Poor's, is Pittsburgh, where per capita debt is 14.9 per cent of per capita income and overall debt represents 10.3 per cent of property value.

Pittsburgh, however, gets an AA rating from Standard & Poor's on its municipal bonds, meaning that the rating service believes the Pennsylvania city is very unlikely to default or fail to pay part of its debt on time.

The higher a city's bond rating, the easier it is for the city to raise money and the lower the interest rate it will have to pay. (The highest rating, AAA, indicates that the experts believe the quality of city management is superior and the payment of the bond when it falls due is a virtual certainty; the double-A bond is only slightly less certain to be paid off on time.)

Standard & Poor's suspended New York City's rating on its general obligation bonds — long-term debt — last spring and has not restored it.

Why does Pittsburgh get a double-A while New York City doesn't get a rating at all?

One reason is that debt isn't the only factor taken into consideration by Standard & Poor's and Moody's Investor Service, the other main rating agency.

They also look at long-range local improvement plans, at general financial operations, at the overall health of the region's economy and at spending.

New York City has, for many years, engaged in a series of budgeting techniques criticized by economists. It has borrowed money, year after year, on a short-term basis to cover deficits that occurred when revenues didn't live up to expectations and spending exceeded them. Pittsburgh has not.

New York City also spends more money on various services, paying for items like welfare and education which, in other areas, are financed by county, state and federal governments or by separate taxing districts.

The Tax Foundation Inc. reports that for fiscal 1973, the latest year for which complete statistics are available, New York spent $1,224 for every resident, including $296 for education and $315 on welfare. Pittsburgh spent $216 per resident, including less than a dime on welfare and education combined.

If no one else is in as bad shape as New York, why is everyone so worried?

"New York's problems ... have a snowballing effect on the marketplace," said Henry G. Simmons, the New Orleans director of finance.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns said, "Many soundly run, creditworthy communities and public agencies could have great difficulty or suffer excessive costs in raising needed funds ... The process of economic recovery now under way in our nation could be injured."

There are two separate but overlapping groups of cities which would be adversely affected if New York City defaults.

First are those cities — mainly in the East — which have serious, long-term financial problems. The problems are not so critical as those in New York, but they are similar. Urban experts generally believe that these cities can and will recover if they are given time, but they warn that a default might take away that time. Financial analysts differ about which city is in worst shape, but the list of trouble spots includes Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Buffalo, N.Y.

The second group of cities includes areas with outstanding bond anticipation notes. A bond anticipation note is a city IOU, sold to an investor with the promise that it will be paid off after future bond issue is sold and the short-term debt is converted into long-term debt. These notes are not backed by local taxes or revenues. (They are different from the so-called general obligation bonds that make up over-all bonded debt.)

A New York City default would temporarily make it very difficult for the cities with anticipation notes to float a long-term bond to pay off these short-term debts. They would have to find the money somewhere else or face default.

An Associated Press spot check showed the cities on the second list include Cleveland; Philadelphia; Lincoln, Neb.; Columbus, Ohio; Boston and Buffalo.

Cleveland, Philadelphia and Buffalo are on both lists, but the shock of default would not necessarily hit these cities first. It could hit Lincoln, Boston or Columbus, depending on the timing of default and when the notes are due.

Boston treasurer James Young said his city has $30 million in anticipation notes that come due Nov. 24. "I think we would be able to refinance or sell the bonds," he said, but added: "That's not to say I don't have major fears (of what would happen if New York defaults.)"

James Lebenthal, executive vice president of Lebenthal & Co., a bond house, estimates that the fear of a New York City default has cost municipal borrowers $1.84 billion this year in extra interest.

"This is what the brinksmanship of default already has cost city taxpayers and they got nothing for it," he said.

No matter who gets hit first by a default, the impact will eventually affect almost all municipalities.

"Any city that has a welfare problem, any city that has short-term unfunded debt, any city that is borrowing for current expenses, any city that has made unwise settlements with police or other workers, any city that is less than kosher, could eventually be a candidate for default," said one bond dealer who asked to remain anonymous.

Many urban officials believe that increased federal aid is needed no matter what happens in New York.

"The problems aren't going to end until the federal government stops pursuing a policy of throwaway or disposable cities," said Dick Glauman, an aide to Milwaukee Mayor Henry Maier.

Cities' bonded debt

By The Associated Press

Here is a list of 20 of the biggest cities in the United States and the amount of the overall bonded debt for which their taxpayers are responsible. The figures are from Standard & Poor's Municipal Bond Selector issued Aug. 31, 1975. A large debt does not necessarily mean cities are in trouble.

The first set of figures is the overall debt, in millions of dollars; the second is the per capita debt; the third is debt as a percentage of property value; and the fourth is per capita debt as a percentage of per capita income.

Pomona chamber revives student project

Junior Achievement is being revived by the Pomona Chamber of Commerce.

Under the direction of John Felton, chairman of the chamber's education committee, advisers from seven valley firms have volunteered to assist nine Junior Achievement (JA) companies.

Working through Pomona's three public high schools, 1,053 students signed up for participation.

The nine JA companies can serve a maximum of 460 students. To accommodate more of those who wish to become involved, Felton is recruiting additional advisers from valley businesses.

Those committed are Sunkist Growers Inc., the Progress Bulletin, General Dynamics Pomona (three JA companies), General Telephone Co., Southern California Edison Co., Security Pacific Bank and FMC Corp., Wayne Sweeper Division.

According to Feiton, this marks the first time in JA history that a chamber of commerce has stepped forward to serve as coordinator between business, JA and the schools.

Nolan Stockton, vice president and manager of Bank of California, is allowing the chamber to use without charge the vacant Bank of California building in downtown Pomona as JA headquarters.

Advisers met with their students there Tuesday night to select products, give them names and issue stock which students will sell in order to go into business.

The building will be open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. for JA use.

JA provides high school students opportunities to learn about business and the free enterprise system. Each group formed will be actively involved in finance, production, marketing and administration.

Pomona school district had students involved in JA three years ago, but the program was discontinued because of national JA difficulties.

Ken Noonan, coordinator of secondary educational programs in Pomona's public school, worked with the chamber in signing up students at the high schools who wished to participate.

Portuguese mother confused

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Mrs. Maria Morais, the sewing lady, has a son who's a Red and a son-in-law she thinks may be a closet fascist. She says she's so confused about what's going on in Portugal that sometimes she wishes for a miraculous transfer to a far-off island.

It is as if all the divisions, all the serpentine complexities of the country's revolutionary drift had symbolically descended on the head of a 52-year-old seamstress whose brown eyes now reflect the bafflement of a hamster banging against the walls of an experimental labyrinth.

"My son Carlos calls up breathless the other day: 'Come quick!' he says, 'You've got to baby sit for the kid. There may be a coup and I'm on security detail at party headquarters.' I rush over, scared to death. A couple of days before, my son-in-law, who's in an army commando unit, was one of the soldiers they sent in to break up the protest demonstrations at the Spanish embassy. He loved it, the son of a gun. But we're supposed to be against Franco now, no? How do you follow it? I don't understand anymore, and to tell you the truth, I'm a little scared ...

"My God, nobody understands!" says Mrs. Morais. "Except maybe people like my son and son-in-law and what they understand is completely the opposite."

What she does comprehend is this: That although many workers like herself have made more money since the ouster of the authoritarian right-wing regime in April 1974, she is still getting the equivalent of about 50 cents an hour. Food is more expensive and her rent is still about $35 a month for a tiny apartment.

There are other things. When she went away for three days last summer she had to leave clothes hanging on her line to dissuade squatters, many of them refugees from Portugal's crumbled African empire, from taking over her place.

"Some good it did," she said. "They tried to get in anyway. There were jimmy marks on the door when I got home. But the squatters gave me an idea. They don't pay any rent, so why should I? When I didn't the owner's wife came to the door and said she had a shotgun. So I paid after all. But are the landlords big captalists? No, they're working people too. She's a seamstress and he's a clerk.

"If the squatters had gotten in, I don't think I could have gotten them out. The cops just steer clear of any kind of trouble now. I feel insecure."

Mrs. Morais' son, Carlos Marques, says his mother's confusion is the product of a lack "of ideological sophistication and a reactionary attempt to bewilder the masses."

Carlos works in a pharmaceutical warehouse where somehow the great political issues of the day get sorted out with humbling clarity. If only his mother, and all those people like her, had a little more confidence "in the real representatives of their class," Portugal could be rid of all its hesitations about marching down the road toward communism, he says.

One of the problems for Mrs. Morais in getting in step is her son-in-law, a decent provider and a good husband for her daughter, in spite of the fact that Carlos calls him a militarist and a discipline-freak to his face.

The nagging thing, she admits, is that the son-in-law may be a secret rightist and won't talk to reporters, but that he also has some pretty reasonable opinions about law and order.

"This confuses me," says Maria Morais. "Here are two good boys and they are the exact opposites. They can state their opinions for me, but when they try to explain what's going on in the government, it's two different stories. I sometimes think they don't know what's going on. I sometimes think nobody in the government knows what's going on.

"That's when I want to get out of here. For a long time I just thought people were confused. Now I think they hate each other too, and that it's more than just talk now. When I think about my family, and how much hatred there is, and how many bad things could happen, I close my eyes and sometimes I would like to be far, far away."

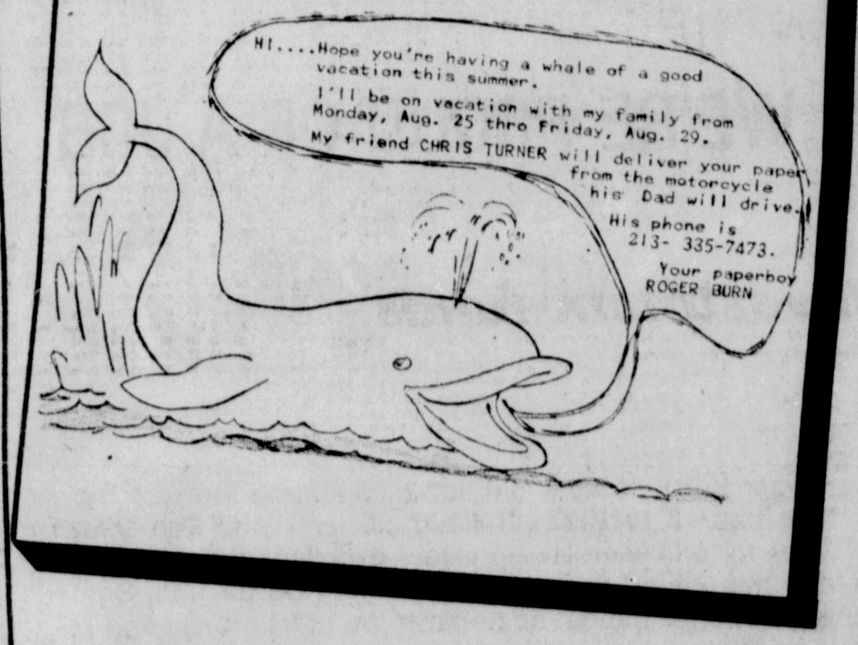
John Ardelan, Circulation Manager
PROGRESS BULLETIN
Pomona, California

Dear Sir:

I wish to commend Roger Burn, our paper boy, for his thoughtfulness to his customers and his conscientious attitude toward his job. During the rather long period of time in which he has been delivering the paper to us, he has always shown a responsibility that would be commendable in one even much senior in years.

I am enclosing a notice that he sent us notifying that he would be gone for a brief period. I'm sure that you can tell from it that he is a responsible young man, carrying out the obligations and duties he has assumed with his position in the finest American tradition.

Sincerely,
Frank L Hammond
Frank L. Hammond



MR. FRANK L. HAMMOND OF SAN DIMAS WROTE US COMPLIMENTING THE COURTEOUS AND RESPONSIBLE SERVICE GIVEN HIM BY HIS PB CARRIER, ROGER BURN.

THANK YOU, MR. HAMMOND

We like to hear about the young girls and boys who do a great job in delivering your Progress Bulletin. They are carrying on a fine tradition established more than 150 years ago during the days of the Penny Press.

They are also learning to become responsible citizens by managing their own businesses in the tradition of free enterprise . . . a valuable experience for their future!

Thank You, Roger Burn

WE'RE PROUD OF A JOB

WELL DONE

Roger Burn, 13 year old son of Rev. and Mrs. Ed Burn has been a Progress Bulletin carrier in the San Dimas area for one year. His service is excellent and pays off in the many kind things his customers do for him. Some save rubber bands, some save the plastic bags and return them so he may use them again. Roger states that he considers the thanks and compliments he receives from his satisfied customers are more valuable to him than money. He feels that his route has been valuable to him, not only from a financial standpoint but has helped him to have a better understanding of people. He also says his route is his responsibility but also is a team effort with his family helping him when he needs it. Roger attends Lone Hill School where he is active in drama and music. He plays the bassoon and trombone. He is active in the youth group of the San Dimas United Methodist Church where his father is minister. Earnings from his route go into a savings account. He is saving especially for a drum set. He does give a part of his earnings to his church. His plans include college with a future in acting or music. He also keeps active around the home with hobbies of models, trains and different family activities.

Levi rejects special prosecuting unit

White-collar crime increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi says the documentation of white-collar crime has undergone a "disturbing increase" in the past year but that the Justice Department doesn't need a special unit to prosecute corporate crimes.

Levi announced his decision against forming a permanent division within the department in a letter to four members of Congress and consumer advocate Ralph Nader. The letter was released Monday.

"It may be debated, of course, whether (the increase in documented white-collar crime) reflects a deterioration in standards of corporate conduct or an increase in the reporting of violations or more strenuous efforts to ferret out and prosecute violations," Levi wrote to Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., a cosigner of the original request.

Levi went on to say the department's existing criminal, tax and antitrust divisions are adequate to cope with whitecollar crime. He said a special advisory committee within the department "currently is reviewing existing programs and efforts in this complex field and is making recommendations for some procedural changes."

The attorney general said the committee, created earlier this year, includes 11 top department officials, including the director of the FBI and the U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York.

To demonstrate what he said was the Justice Department's concern about white-collar crime, Levi pointed to recent convictions of a corporation and its two top officers on tax fraud charges, and he wrote that "at least 11 other major corporations are currently under investigation for similar offenses."

Levi also said "in excess of 50 investigations in the area of illegal political contributions" are currently pending at Justice. Levi did not name any of the corporations or officers.

Nader later issued a statement saying Levi's "response does not reflect a sense of urgency over our corporate crime wave.

"A crescendo of illegal business disclosures since the beginning of the year should lead Mr. Levi to let us know his own views on this epidemic...."

At the same time, Levi called on the legislators to support the revision of the U.S. Criminal Code pending in Congress, and said the proposal includes new tools for dealing with white collar offenses.

He listed among these "clarified means of reaching commercial bribery; substantially higher penalties for large scale theft, fraud, and tax evasion operations; (and) increased penalties for all unlawful corporate practices that seriously endanger human health."

In their Aug. 22 letter to Levi, Nader and the lawmakers wrote, "An unprecedented wave of corporate illegality has been sweeping the business community." They asked that a new division be given authority to "investigate and prosecute a wide range of business crime, from mail fraud to regulatory offenses to illegal distribution of political contributions or bribes, here or abroad, by corporate officers or their agents."

Reps. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y.; Toby Moffett, D-Conn.; and Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., and Nader associate Mark Green also signed the letter.

Chino Soroptimist program announced

The Chino Soroptimist Club is participating in the national Soroptimist program, "Women Helping Women," and award presentation.

Each Soroptimist club will recognize one woman in their community who has been judged from entries as having done the most to help other women by example or by direct action.

All service organizations and churches in Chino have been contacted and asked to nominate such a woman.

The winner will be announced at a luncheon Nov. 5.

Mayor Bob McLeod is honorary chairman and judges for the event will be Art Rowe, Bob Fast, John McMurtry, Betty Brennon and Hazel Weller.

The honoree will receive a $100 savings bond and will have the opportunity to participate in the Soroptimist regional competition next spring.

Compact

Now that elegance has returned to fashion to carry it through with a small compact of cream perfume. They are available in gold-tone Florentine finished metal with natural inlay top or in shiny silver. These are small enough to slip into the tiniest purse and are offered by many of the finest perfurmers.

Schertz and Pierce vows are exchanged

MRS. SCHERTZ

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Schertz have established a home in Brighton, Mass., following their marriage at the First Presbyterian Church in Exeter.

The bride, Diana Gayle Pierce, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Pierce of Exeter. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Schertz of Claremont.

Honor attendant was Pam Gildez of Visalia. Best man was Harry Hoffman of San Dimas.

Bridesmaid was Lauralyn Jones of Exeter. Usher was David Brownlee of Claremont.

MRS. RICHARD REED

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reed have established a home in Glendive, Mont., following their marriage at the Pilgrim Congregational Church in Pomona.

The former Miss Loretta Taylor is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Taylor of Pomona. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rex Reed of Pomona.

Honor attendant was Miss April Sharp of Pomona. Best man was Curt Chubbuck of Pomona.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sue La Frenz and Mrs. Faith Mason. Ushers were Mel Reed, Larry Braden, Ralph Taylor and Philip Young.

Scale

If you're perfectly proportioned but small-boned make the most of your figure: wear soft, easy dresses in small scale prints. Wear a minimum amount of small scaled jewelry and accessories and shoes with a medium heel. Big capes, coats and jewelry are not for you. Your hemline should cover your knee but not your calf.

Inspection good for cars now

With the heavy driving days of summer over, now is the right time to inspect your car to prevent any damage from getting out of hand in the months ahead. Check the engine, tires, wiper blades, exterior finish, interior and all safety devices.

Grime and road chemicals, can be rough on your car's mechanical parts and appearance, says Leslie Wood, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax. Especially if you've neglected regular washings because of summer heat.

"You'll also want to examine fan belts, radiator hoses, tires, wiring, battery terminals, fuses, light bulbs, windshield wipers and seat belts for damage or wear.

"Once you've washed your car, clean it and wax it in one operation with something like Kit that comes in both paste and liquid," she added. "It can be applied in sunlight or shade and needs only to be wiped with a soft cloth to turn the light haze into a long-lasting paste-wax shine."

Joyce Brothers
Divorcee's problem

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a divorcee and I don't like the position I find myself in. Not that I want to remarry my former husband — I don't — but I would like to be able to form some close friendships with eligible men as I'd like to be a Mrs. again. I don't like being single and I find it difficult to meet men. When I do meet one, I'm as nervous as a 16-year-old. — P.L.

Dear P.L.: Usually, the best way for a divorced person to meet new friends is through the help of old friends. But often, the newly divorced person needs a much wider variety of people to choose from than the formerly married or bachelor males who happen to be available in her group of friends.

If you work, or have some special interest or hobby, you may meet new people in this way. If you don't, it might be wise to try to develop new interests, and this might even involve enrolling in adult education courses that you've always thought about but never felt you had the time to pursue.

Almost every city and community has some clubs or organizations that offer opportunities to meet new people. If you are a parent, you might find out if there is a chapter of Parents Without Partners in your community. This group bring together people with a common problem. They have many strictly social events such as cocktail parties and dances. You may also discover that there are many other groups — art and literary clubs, for example — that are fundamentally organized to introduce and provide social activity for lonely persons who are anxious to make new friends.

Often divorced people have to get back into the dating routine and they may find, at first, that even the thought of dating produces anxiety. In spite of this problem, three out of four formerly married persons begin dating within the first year after their divorce, and according to Morton Hunt, author of "The World of the Formerly Married," 9 out 10 do before the end of the second year.

If you are patient with yourself, you'll find that you'll soon feel quite comfortable meeting new men. The healthy mind has a great capacity to repair the hurt and damage that may have been done to it. This may happen faster if you have a couple of good women friends you can discuss your problems with and even talk over the pain and hurt of your former marriage. This helps you unburden yourself and still doesn't threaten any new relationship with a male friend.

Often after a divorce one needs to spend a little time rebuilding the ego. It is important, therefore, that you should be able to share good times with women friends as they are more apt to be understanding without being frightened by your problems. Men have a tendency to identify with the former husband when you hear about marital quarrels.

You have to learn to trust yourself again before you can begin to feel at ease. Chances are when you do meet and date a man, he will have many of the same anxieties you have as he, too, may have experienced an ego-bruising relationship. If you can find a common interest, such as music, a sport, or even a good book, part of your troubles will be over.

Don't rush into anything you don't feel like doing. Be patient, give yourself time to recuperate and you'll find life as a divorcee will be easier.

MRS. BRINGHURST

Auxiliary to install officers

The new East Valley Branch of Battalion 2, Los Angeles County Firefighters Auxiliary, known as Cinders, has elected officers for the ensuing year.

Replacing Mrs. Lyle Hurst of Alta Loma as president of the former Claremont Firefighters Auxiliary, is Mrs. Robert Bringhurst of La Verne. She will be installed at a dinner Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Cask 'n' Cleaver Restaurant in Cucamonga.

Also taking office will be Mmes. Gene Wright, Claremont, vice president; Richard Hood, Alta Loma, secretary; David Horn, Upland, treasurer; and Robert Lee, Claremont, publicity chairman.

Installing officers will be the Division 2 assistant fire chief, Ron King, of the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

The auxiliary is a nonprofit organization designed to promote and help the welfare of firefighters and their communities.

The group will hold its first philanthropic activity Nov. 9 when they hold a Christmas Boutique sale at the Montclair Plaza Shopping Center.

The layered look is fall's fashion leader. However, work for a non-bulky, lighter look using a skirt, matching capsleeved coatdress and funnel-neck sweater.

Home clean suggestions are offered

Whether heavy traffic from frequent summer guests, the oozing contents of a peanut butter and jelly sandwich or a canape from a cocktail party have left their marks on your carpets, you can clean them yourself, says Leslie Wood, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax. Even if the stain results from a pet disaster.

"Use a knife or spatula to lift solids off your rug or carpet," Miss Wood advises. "If the spot still is moist, blot it using clean cloths or paper towels. Blot lightly to avoid spreading the spot."

She suggested using a professional strength spray foam such as Glory Rug Ceaner, being sure to test for color fastness on a piece of unexposed carpeting first. Follow label directions carefully, being sure not to get the carpet too wet as this may cause browning of the carpet.

For a free booklet on carpet care, write to Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax Consumer Information Specialist, c/o Johnson Wax, 900 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 114, Los Angeles, California 90017.

Welcome to Fun City

Actress mugged in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Maid Marian, in civilian life an actress named Misty Rowe, left Sherwood Forest last week to come to Gotham to publicize her new ABC series called "When Things Were Rotten."

Forsooth, she should have brought along the sheriff of Nottingham, no matter how mean he is to Robin Hood & Co. in the new show.

She said a tall, heavy-set lady mugger had shoved her up against a wall and stolen her wallet while she, Miss Rowe, was in the ladies' room of a midtown New York department store putting on fresh makeup.

MISTY ROWE

For Miss Rowe, a blonde, gentle spirit born in San Gabriel, Calif., the incident made her first stay in Fun City memorable in a way she'd just as soon forget.

To top things off, she added somewhat disbelievingly, when she told a sales clerk of the theft moments after the mugger fled, the clerk commenced talking to her as if she had no smarts.

"I told her my wallet had been robbed and she said, 'Where was it?'" Miss Rowe recalled. "I said it was in my purse. She says, 'Where was the purse?' I said, 'On the floor, next to my packages.'

"She says, 'On the floor?' and she starts yelling and screaming at me. She says, 'You ought to know better than to leave your purse on the floor in New York.'"

The young actress shrugged, then laughed infectiously, "What could I say? I just told her this was my first time in New York. I didn't know."

She appeared to have recovered nicely, perhaps because she was headed that evening to Nashville, Tenn., a somewhat less abrasive city to tape new segments for "Hee Haw," in which she has appeared for four years.

Another aid to recovery is the fact she has the starring role in a soon-to-be-released movie called "Goodbye, Norma Jean," a film based on the life of the late Marilyn Monroe.

Miss Rowe, who went into acting studies and acting right after graduation from high school in Glendora, has appeared in a number of TV series, including regular shots on "Happy Days."

But she said she landed her Maid Marian role because of what she considers a "horrible picture of me" in a national magazine article about her "Norma Jean" movie.

She said Norman Steinberg, producer of "When Things Were Rotten," saw the picture while browsing through the magazine one day and thought she might be ideal as Maid Marian.

"So they called me in and I met Mel Brooks," she said, referring to the acclaimed comedy actor-writer who created "Rotten."

"But when I first met Norman, he said, 'Oh, what great skin. You have such pale skin you'd be great for the part. I want you to meet Mel Brooks, but I don't think you'll live another three days.'"

What Steinberg meant is that anyone with pale skin in California is suspected of ill health. Happily, it turned out that his fears were wrong. She got the part and a free trip to New York to publicize the new show.

But methinks Maid Marian won't leave her purse on the floor in New York anymore. Or even Sherwood Forest, for a while.

Dance troupe set at Cal Poly

The Hallmark Dancers of Covina will perform in the University Theater at Cal Poly at 8:15 p.m. Saturday and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

The programs are benefits for the Hal Roach Memorial Student Loan Fund. Roach, a Cal Poly graduate, was business manager of the Associated Students for seven and a half years until his death last February.

The Hallmark Dancers perform classical ballet, jazz and modern ballet. Carol Harder is choreographer. The dancers are Julie Beer, Patricia Callaway, Consuela Howard, Michelle Hulse, Debra Solle, Christina Rodriquez and Kimberly Wetzler. Guest performers will be pianist Holly Wetzler and soprano Nancy Solle.

The concert will include music by Prokofiev, Beethoven, Glazunov, Bernstein, Puccini, Gounod, Moore and Saint-Saens.

Tickets are $2 general, $1.50 for students. They are on sale at the University Union business office.

Piano recital slated

Pianist Donna Turner Smith will present a recital in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

A former Pomona College student, Mrs. Smith will play Bach's Toccata in D Major; Novellette in F Sharp Minor by Schumann; Third Sonata by Hindemith; Ravel's "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales," and Andante Spianato and Polonaise by Chopin.

Mrs. Smith studied piano locally with Lois Lynn Rogers and also studied with Sergei Tarnowsky, Horowitz's teacher, at DePaul University in Chicago, and with Muriel Kerr in New York. She studied in Europe with Geza Anda, under a Rockefeller grant, and at Mills College with Alexander Libermann.

Among her awards are the Andra-Buhrle prize, received in Lucerne, Switzerland, and the Creativity Award of the Associated University Women, Palo Alto. She has given solo recitals through-out the United States and in England and Germany. Her orchestral appearances include four concerts with the San Francisco Symphony and performances with the St. Louis, Oakland, Vallejo and Utah Valley symphonies.

She has also taught privately in Chicago, St. Louis and in the Bay Area.

MSAC plans concert

The 15-piece Thad Jones/Mel Lewis Orchestra will present a jazz concert in Gymnasium 3 at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Saturday. It is the first West Coast appearance of the group.

Tickets are $4 general, $2 for students.

Jones, a composer, arranger and fluegelhornist, was a sideman with Count Basie, and Lewis was drummer with Stan Kenton. Their band is consistently voted the top band in nationwide polls. The group has received public and critical acclaim on tours of Europe, Russia and Japan.

Whale pact signed by Japan, Russ

TOKYO (AP) — Japan and the Soviet Union, the world's two major deep sea whaling nations, signed an agreement today on inspecting each other's whaling catches in the southern hemisphere, the Japanese Foreign Ministry said.

Under the agreement, running until Aug. 31, 1976, one observer is to be assigned to each fleet to make sure quotas are not exceeded.

The observer is to report to the International Whaling Commission.

JOHN DENVER was named Country Music Entertainer of the Year Monday night at the annual Country Music Association Awards. Nominated for five awards, Denver also took Song of the Year award for "Back Home Again."

Women boxers given go-ahead

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Female fighters will trade punches Oct. 23 at the Multnomah County Exposition Center.

The Portland Boxing Commission, by a 3-2 vote recently approved a bout between Caroline Svendsen of Virginia City, Nev., and Jennie Josephs of Menteca City, Calif.

The women, each weighing about 137 pounds, will appear in a regulation match, not an exhibition. The main event will be a 10-round fight between Randy Shields of Glendale, Calif., and Alejo Jimenez of Mexico City.

Nobody is really sure when eyeglasses were invented.

The Chinese are said to have invented eyeglasses long before they came into use in Europe. According to legend, they were used as early as 500 B.C.

The Roman emperor Nero used a lens mounted in his ring to watch gladiators fight. By medieval times eyeglasses were common in Europe.

These early glasses were simply magnifying lenses inserted in frames, and often fitted so badly that they weren't very helpful.

Bifocal glasses, which are two different kinds of lenses in the same pair of glasses, were invented by Benjamin Franklin to save the trouble of changing his glasses when looking from near objects to distant ones.

Contact lenses were invented less than 100 years ago. They are small plastic lenses which are worn directly on the eyeball.

Since they are not easily broken, they can be worn while participating in active sports.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

GHOST-TO-GHOST FAVORITES

Combine ¼ cup mayonnaise with ¼ cup yellow mustard. Stir in 2 cups finely diced cooked ham, 1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese and ½ cup finely chopped green pepper. Spread on 10 slices of bread. Top each with 1 slice of tomato and 1 slice of onion, then cover with another slice of bread. Spread softened butter on the outside of each sandwich and arrange on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Turn over and bake another 10 to 15 minutes or until sandwiches are golden brown. Serve with milk.

Germans known for good food

The hearty German people, well known for their appreciation of food and fun, brought their dining customs with them when they came to this country. German gemutlichkeit became American good fellowship, feasting and fun.

Food favorites from the homeland flourished here beef, beer, pretzels and pickles among them. Hot sweet-sour potato salad, cole slaw and cheese cake crossed the Atlantic and won converts of the many nationalities in the American melting pot. Today when it's "hail, hail, the gang's all here" and the gang has a hearty appetite, it's time to bring on some of these flavor packed foods.

Throughout the years, however, some changes have been made. For example, the raw steak tartare of Hamburg, when broiled and served on a bun, became the popular hamburger. Many variations of the basic burger have been developed.

In the recipe for Beerburgers, ground beef patties are given a German flavor accent with the addition of beer, crushed pretzel sticks, onion and pickle. Substitute German rye bread for buns. This makes a delightful variation of "old faithful." Add a snappy garnish of small sweet pickles speared on pretzel sticks and these tasty Beerburgers will receive a hearty toast — "prosit!"

Beerburgers can fill the entree role at an informal supper or can be served for "Brotzeit," the Munich expresion for snack time. Keep the recipe a secret, for guessing what's in these flavorsome ground beef patties is half the fun.

BEERBURGERS

2 pounds ground beef
½ cup beer
1 3 cup crushed pretzels
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons drained pickle relish
1 teaspoon salt
6 small sweet pickles, if desired
Pretzel sticks, if desired

Combine ground beef, beer, pretzels, onion, relish and salt, mixing lightly until ingredients are evenly distributed. Shape into 6 patties ¼ to ½ inch thick. Place on rack in broiler pan or on grill, 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 5 to 6 minutes on first side, turn and broil 6 to 10 minutes, to degree of doneness desired. Just before serving make a hole in each pickle with point of metal skewer, fit pickle on end of pretzel stick and stick other end in broiled burger.

Game leads to $20,000 in damage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two boys far under driving age played "bumper car tag" with three trucks and two fork lifts outside an empty chemical plant.

When it was all over Sunday there was $20,000 damage and officer Phil Toledo wanted to know more from a 12-year-old and a 14-year-old than why they were driving without a license.

"It looked like World War III," groaned the officer, who took the youths to jail for processing by juvenile officers. The two weren't identified because of their ages.

Officials said the pair scaled a fence at the North Hollywood plant yard, then started up engines for a slam-bang time into other plant vehicles.

The boys also bashed into giant 500-pound bags of chemical made at the Redco Inc. plant. The chemical, an ingredient of plaster, got splattered around the plant yard.

A factory worker in the area alerted the officer who made a successful pursuit on foot.

Writer knocks criticism of British cooking

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Despite the shafts of criticism hurled at it from so many quarters, I like English cooking. It may be more on the substantial than epicurean side, but most of it is delicious and some dishes are superb.

What can surpass an English roast joint of beef, brought to the table ringed by panbrowned potatoes and accompanied by Yorkshire pudding? Or what is better for lunch than a veal and ham pie served cold with crisp greens? Or that wonderful English salmon chilled and dished up with mayonnaise and cucumber salad? And how about the crisp, crackling fish and chips, which are England's answer to the hot dog, for an evening snack?

At Christmas time, the English outdo themselves with their classic fruit puddings, rolled in cloth and plumped into a big boiler to cook for several hours. When it is finally brought to the table, the pudding is usually wreathed with holly and flaming with brandy.

One of the nicest English traditions in my opinion is their high tea which provides an excuse to glut yourself with such calorie-laden delights as Devon scone served with butter, raspberry jam and thick Devonshire cream, lemon cheese tarts and those tiny tea sandwiches filled with crisp cucumbers, tomato slices or slivers of chicken breast.

Another old English custom is the country breakfast, now usually limited to Sundays or holidays. It is not just the bacon and eggs that Americans go in for with such enthusiasm. These morning meals are usually served buffet style and feature such specialties as grilled kidneys, tiny browned sausages served with grilled tomatoes, grilled mushrom caps, smoked kippers and finnan haddie poached in milk, then laced with butter.

The English boil many of their beef, lamb and mutton dishes and to my mind one of their greatest achievements is boiled beef served with carrots and egg dumplings. Here is a recipe for that venerable dish.

6 pounds beef brisket
15 carrots peeled
1 marrow bone
1 teaspoon crumbled, dried thyme
1 parsley sprig
1 medium onion peeled
1 teaspoon salt
Egg dumplings (see below)

Place beef, 1 carrot and rest of ingredients, except dumplings, in kettle and cover with water. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer about three hours. One hour before meat is done, add rest of carrots. Ten minutes before end of cooking time, drop egg dumplings on top of liquid, spoon by spoon. Cover and steam 10 minutes. Serve with mustard and fresh horseradish. Serves 8 persons.

To make egg dumplings: mix 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon milk and ½ teaspoon salt. Beat in 3 tablespoons unsifted flour, and beat till light. Fold in 2 egg whites and beat till stiff.

Buying release of prisoners

BERLIN (AP) — West Germany expects to bring out 1,200 political prisoners from East Germany this year at a reported cost of $16,000 each.

The number was estimated recently by Bonn's minister of all-German affairs, Egon Franke.

His estimate is close to the annual average number for whom sources say freedom has been bought since the officially secret program began in 1964.

Informants say the program began after the Berlin Wall went up in 1961 and East Germany began jailing would-be defectors to the West.

The Bonn government has refused comment on a report that West Germany so far has paid the East Germans $100 million to let prisoners go free.

Sources say, however, the money is included in trade agreements with the East Germans, with apparently no actual cash involved but with the amounts agreed on presented in the form of goods or credits.

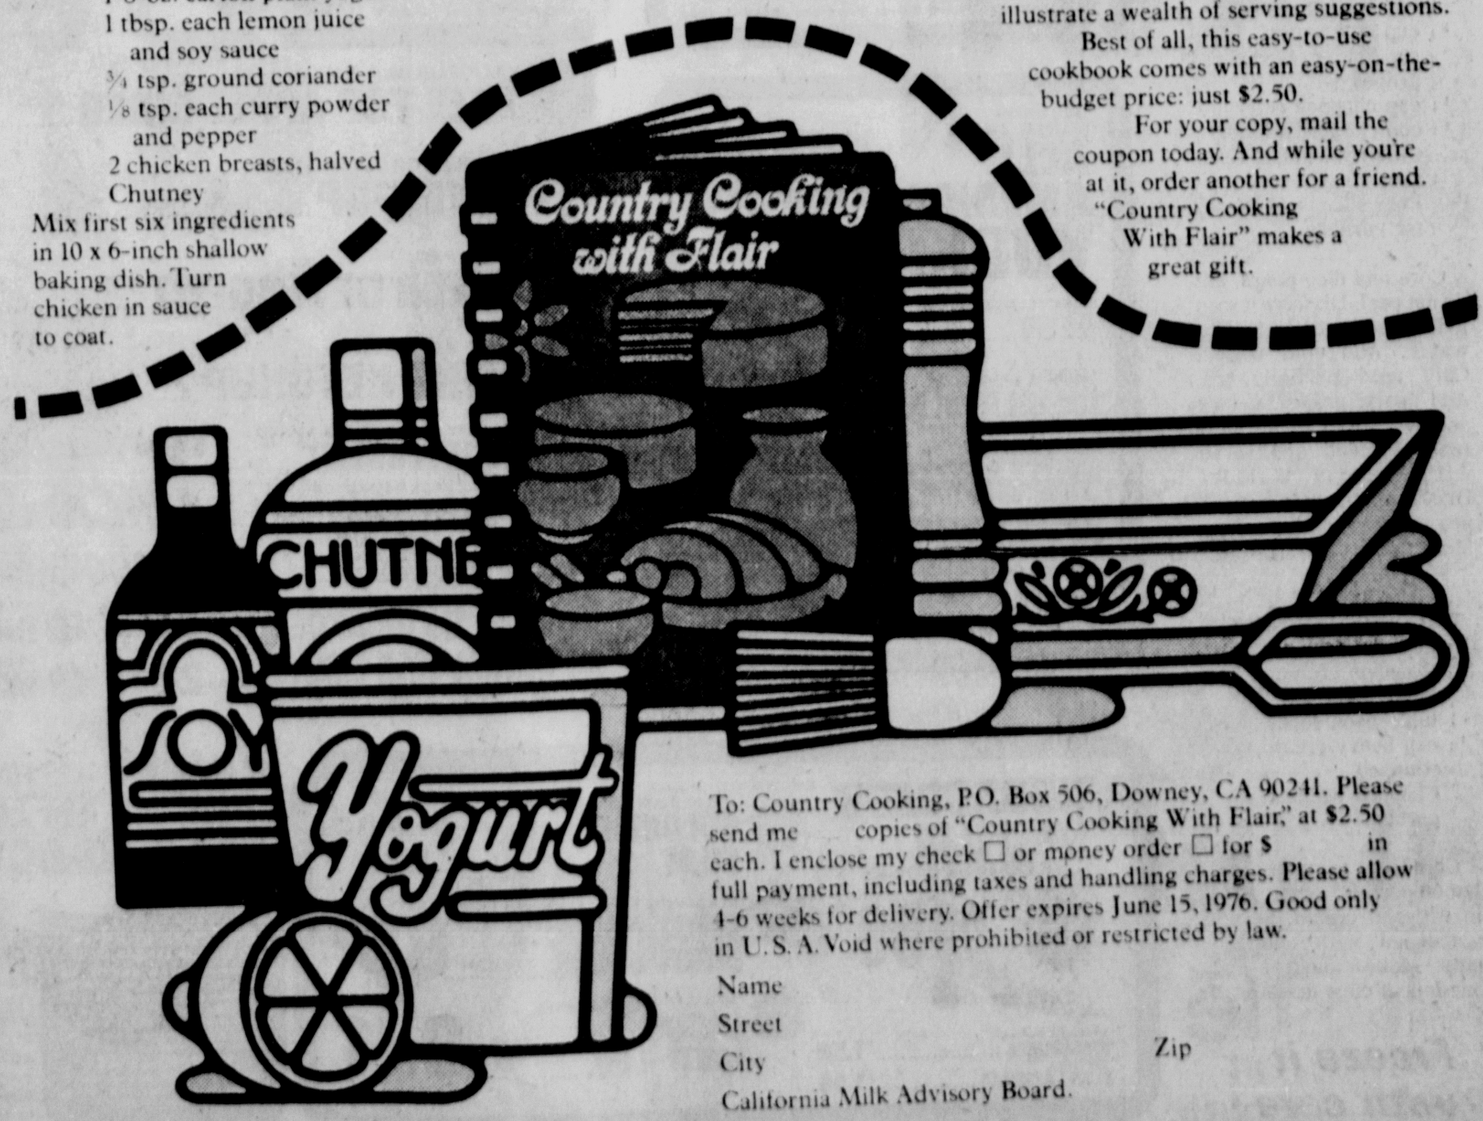
Country cooking with yogurt.

A sneak peek at just one of the 250 recipes featured in the new cookbook, "Country Cooking With Flair"... a collection of fresh new ideas based on the country goodness of dairy foods.

Baked Yogurt Chicken.
1 8-oz. carton plain yogurt
1 tbsp. each lemon juice and soy sauce
¾ tsp. ground coriander
⅛ tsp. each curry powder and pepper
2 chicken breasts, halved
Chutney

Mix first six ingredients in 10 x 6-inch shallow baking dish. Turn chicken in sauce to coat. Cover and marinate several hours or overnight in refrigerator. Bake uncovered in 375° oven 55 minutes or 'til tender, basting often with pan juices during last half hour. Serve with chutney. If desired, double the yogurt mixture and use half as a chilled sauce to pass with the hot chicken. Makes 4 servings.

And don't forget to serve yogurt all by itself. It's a super snack.



"Country Cooking With Flair."
Our new 208-page hardcover cookbook contains 250 kitchen-tested recipes.

It starts off with Western appetizers and goes on to farm-style soups, hearty entrées, country ways with vegetables, home-baked breads, dairy desserts and beverages for all seasons.

To go along with the country-good recipes, over 40 mouth-watering color and black and white photographs illustrate a wealth of serving suggestions.

Best of all, this easy-to-use cookbook comes with an easy-on-the-budget price: just $2.50.

USDA wants your comments on pork labeling

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has called for public comment on a proposal to establish a new standard of identity for pork products labeled as "country ham", "country-style pork shoulder", and similar names.

The proposed standard would establish minimum preparation requirements to help maintain those characteristics traditionally associated with country-cured products.

Under the proposal, federal meat inspection regulations would specifically define products such as "country ham", "country-style ham", "country pork shoulder", or "country-style pork shoulder" as being uncooked, dry-cured, smoked, or unsmoked products made from a solid piece of meat coming from the ham or shoulder of a hog.

These products could not be injected with, nor put up in, liquid solutions. Also, such products would have to be prepared in accordance with other specific requirements including the following:

— The entire exterior of the ham or pork shoulder would have to be coated with an amount of salt or a mixture of salt and other curing agents sufficient to insure complete penetration of the cure mixture. Optional ingredients which could also be used include sucrose, dextrose, corn syrup solids, honey, pepper, spices, and other approved flavorings.

— Hams would require at least 45 days for cure penetration and equalization with an additional minimum of 25 days required for the drying period. Likewise, pork shoulders would require at least 25 days for cure penetration and equilization with an additional minimum of 25 days required for the drying period. For both hams and pork shoulders, the internal temperature when produced under controlled atmospheric condition, could not exceed 95 degrees Fahrenheit during the drying period.

— The finished product would have to shrink at least 18 per cent from its fresh weight.

— Hams and pork shoulders would have to be treated to destroy any live trichinae.

— Products labeled as "country" or "country-style" would have to be capable of being distributed without refrigeration, and labeled as such.

The proposed standard would not differentiate between products labeled as "country" or "country-style". Rather, these terms would be considered as generic when used in labeling hams and pork shoulders — as a reference to their curing characteristics rather than the geographic location where they are produced.

Officials emphasized that adoption of the new standard would not prohibit the production of products — under natural climatic conditions — which are held for aging for much longer periods, provided the safety and wholesomeness of the finished product is assured.

Years ago, it was common practice for people to prepare meat during winter months so that it would not spoil when warmer weather arrived. This involved applying salt to the meat, and removing the natural moisture through "aging". The warmer temperatures of spring and summer continued the drying process and completed the preservation — which killed any trichinae, preserved the product, and contributed to the flavor, texture, and other characteristics associated with products prepared in this manner.

While refrigeration and other technological advances since then have eliminated the need for this type of perservation, many people retain a preference for such products. Therefore, USDA's proposal is designed to establish minimum requirements that will approximate those traditionally associated with country-cured products.

Copies of the proposal are available from Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, USDA, Washington, DC 20250.

Those wishing to submit written comments concerning the proposed amendment are urged to do so by filing them in duplicate with the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, USDA, Washington, DC 20250. Deadline for all comments is Nov. 4, 1975.

NATURE'S TOOTHBRUSH

If you can't brush after every meal, eat an apple. The apple has superior cleaning powers, according to dental education authorities.

While dentists have given the nod to the virtues of the apple, they in no way imply that it will ever replace thorough brushing and flossing. But for snacking and a good way to end a meal, it's a good thought and a good food.

And a timely one. Apples are coming to market this month in a big way. According to marketing specialists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the total fall crop is expected to reach a hefty 173.7 million bushels. That represents a 12 percent increase over last year's figure and establishes a new commercial crop record.

From the apple industry comes word that the fibrous texture and the non-adherent nature of the fruit make the apple a natural aid in cleaning the teeth. Gums, teeth, and facial muscles all come into play for some healthy exercise when apple munching.

Grapes, pears add to salad

Molded salads are part of the American way of eating. There's something refreshing and attractive about a shimmering mold that is shot throughout with crunchy fruit and nuts. To go with your favorite meats this season, try diced fresh pears and tasty red grapes combined with celery and chopped walnuts in a lemon flavored gelatin. Top with a rich, creamy Waldorf dressing.

PEAR WALDORF MOLD

- 2 fresh pears
- 1 (3 ounce) package lemon flavor gelatin
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup boiling water
- ¾ cup cold water
- ½ cup halved, seeded red grapes
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup chopped walnuts
- Creamy Waldorf Dressing
- Pear slices and grapes for garnish

Core and dice pears, but do not peel. Dissolve lemon gelatin and salt in boiling water. Add cold water. Chill until partially set. Add pears, grapes, celery and walnuts. Pour until firm. Unmold and serve with Creamy Waldorf Dressing. Garnish with pear slices and grapes. Makes 6 servings.

CREAMY WALDORF DRESSING

- ¾ cup mayonnaise
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ cup heavy cream, whipped
- Chopped walnuts, for garnish

Combine mayonnaise, lemon peel and sugar. Fold in whipped cream. Serve, garnished with chopped nuts. Makes about 1 and one-fourth cups dressing.

Freeze it with care

Most sausages may be held frozen at 0 degrees F for one or two months. Longer freezer storage may cause undesirable flavor changes, report food technologists.

STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Cut thin slice from stem end of six medium green peppers. Remove seeds and membranes and wash peppers well. Cook peppers 5 minutes in boiling salted water. Remove from pot and drain on paper towels. Cook 1 pound ground beef in skillet until meat is light brown. Drain off fat, then stir in a package cheeseburger-macaroni main dish mix. Heat to boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Place peppers with open side up in ungreased baking pan. Spoon beef mixture into peppers. Cover and bake 25 minutes. Before serving, garnish with sprigs of parsley. Serves 6.

Squash adapts to many recipes

For vegetable lovers, one of the most versatile is the squash, a gourd type, native to the Western Hemisphere, which comes in a wide variety of sizes, shapes and colors.

The Indians called it askutasquash, meaning "green thing eaten green" and were growing squash in Peru as long as 2,000 years ago.

Squash is usually classified broadly as "winter" and "summer." This does not refer to the season but rather the stage of maturity when harvested. Summer squash is immature, soft-skinned and generally small; winter squash is mature, hard-shelled and comes in many sizes.

The hard-shelled variety like Hubbard, butternut, sugar pumpkin and acorn have richer, meatier flesh than the summer, such as zucchini and yellow straightneck or crookneck.

The acorn squash makes a delicious dish baked with a stuffing or sausage and cabbage. Apples can also be used in the filling.

Butternut squash has a fine flavor, too, and is good cut in cubes after paring and sprinkled with spices and brown sugar. Drizzle melted butter over it and add a touch of fresh lemon juice for extra tang. Then bake in the oven.

Hubbard squash is good in many ways. It is especially tasty mashed and seasoned with maple syrup. You can sprinkle it with chopped toasted pecans before serving for added flavor.

The orange-hued sugar pumpkin, which usually weighs from 10 to 20 pounds and is associated with Halloween, is famous as a pie filling.

Summer squashes of all types are best cooked young. The small ones do not require peeling and the seeds are hardly noticeable, or tender enough to eat when cooked.

The high water content of summer squashes makes it preferable to fry, bake or steam them rather than cook them in water.

Best-known member of the summer squash family is the zucchini, which makes a delicious casserole mixed with the yellow straightneck or its cousin the crookneck. Here is a recipe I like.

¼ cup butter
½ cup onion rings
2 cups sliced zucchini
2 cups sliced straightneck or crookneck squash
1 tablespoon salt
3 cups diced fresh tomatoes

Melt butter in skillet. Add onion rings and cook 5 minutes or till transparent. Add squashes and seasonings and cook 10 to 15 minutes. Add and stir in tomatoes and cook another 15 minutes, till squash is tender. Serves 6. Good with a chilled Rhine wine.

Meat requires proper storage

Today's inflationary prices for meat make it necessary to use every last scrap. But the meat must stay fresh. How to keep it that way requires a bit of expert thinking and planning in your kitchen.

First, it requires a good refrigerator. The September issue of "Consumer Reports" has a study made of several types of refrigerators. It states in part:

"Assuming you need a 17-to-20 cubic foot refrigerator-freezer, your first decision will be to choose between a top-freezer or a side-by-side model. Although the side-by-side refrigerators offer larger, more convenient freezer space, the top-freezer models usually cost less to buy and run, need fewer repairs and take up a lot less room in the kitchen.

"All units tested keep food cold satisfactorily.) You may find that you are better off considering a low-rated model that satisfied these requirements. In making a choice, price-shop carefully. Our shoppers who checked prices in 12 metropolitan areas were quoted a wide range of prices."

"Consumer Reports" sums up its advice: "Whichever type you choose, you'll want a refrigerator that can keep food at suitable temperatures — one with specifications and features that suit your individual needs — and a refrigerator that's relatively inexpensive to operate."

The American Meat Institute in Washington, D.C., gives its advice on how to keep meat fresh once you have bought it:

When buying fresh meat, appearance is your best guide.

Keep meat cold before and after it is purchased. Meat should be the last item selected at the supermarket and taken home immediately and refrigerated or frozen immediately.

Store meat at temperatures between 32 and 40 degrees. Tests show that for every 10 degrees rise above these temperatures during storing, the storage life of meats will be cut in half.

Store fresh meats, prepackaged for self service, unopened in the original wrapping in the refrigerator for use within two days. But fresh meat, not prepackaged, should be removed from the market wrapping paper and wrapped loosely in waxed paper or aluminum foil and returned to refrigerator for use within two days.

Ground meat should be cooked within 24 hours or frozen.

Meat should be cooked immediately after removal from the refrigerator. Allowing meat to come to room temperature encourages bacterial growth and spoilage. Frozen meat should always be thawed in the refrigerator. Otherwise, the outside of the meat may reach room temperature before the center is thawed.

Cooked meats must be refrigerated within two hours after being cooked. Store in refrigerator for one or two days. If longer storage is needed, leftovers or cooked meats can be frozen for three to six months.

Casselman all-purpose plum is in markets now

Here's some very good news for fresh fruit lovers. We're going to have juicy fresh California plums around longer than usual this year — through September, in fact, because of the crop's late start last spring.

The late California plum variety in our markets now — the crimson Casselman — is an excellent all-purpose plum for your favorite fall recipes — sauces, pies, tarts and salads. For those of you who'd like to "put up" some plums to enjoy with winter meals, the Casselman is particularly marvelous in jams, jellies and preserves, and it freezes well with or without a sugar syrup.

Of course in addition to their cooking and preserving qualities, late variety California plums are healthful, out-of-hand snacks. Pick up plenty of extras for easy desserts and after-school nibblers. Keep just a few in the fruit bowl and store the rest in the refrigerator since fresh plums can turn over-ripe quickly if left too long at room temperature.

As September days begin turning cool, the late California plums will be especially luscious in warm, home baked desserts such as this super simple Fresh Plum Pudding Cake. A sprightly plum topping laced with allspice is poured over a light cake batter prepared right in the baking dish. During baking, a fruity-cake layer rises to the top bubbling over a tart-sweet plum sauce that forms on the bottom. Serve plum pudding cake piping hot in dessert dishes topped with cool sweet cream or vanilla ice cream. It's a delectable way to enjoy fresh California plums in autumn meals.

For additional exciting ways to use and serve fresh California fruits, this beautifully illustrated booklet contains more than 100 tested recipes. Please send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to "Fruits of Summer", P.O. Box 4640, Sacramento, CA 95825.

FRESH PLUM PUDDING CAKE

Plum Topping:

3 cups sliced fresh California plums (about 1 pound)
¾ cup water
¾ to 1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon allspice

Cake Batter:

¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk

Topping:

Put plum topping ingredients into saucepan. Bring to boil. Remove from heat. (There should be 3 cups combined fruit and juice. Add water if necessary.) Let stand while mixing cake batter.

Batter:

In two-quart casserole, cream butter and sugar. Sift flour, baking powder and salt; stir into creamed mixture alternately with milk. Beat smooth. Spread evenly on bottom of casserole. Pour plum mixture over batter. Bake in 375 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes. (During baking, a cake-fruit layer rises to top and a plum sauce forms on bottom.) Cool 5 minutes. Spoon some cake and sauce into each dessert dish. Makes 6 servings.

Interesting leftovers

Odds and ends of leftover beef make great lunches and snacks. Slice cold pieces of cooked beef into thin strips across the grain. Toss with vinaigrette dressing and chopped vegetables for a tasty salad to eat at home or pack along in a covered container. For quick energy nibbles, spread the beef strips with mustard or seasoned cream cheese, then roll up and spear with toothpicks.

Pressure saves fuel

Get out that pressure cooker and use it on occasion for a dish you usually prepare in the oven because surface heat uses less fuel than oven heat.

Inflation changing old habits

Inflation is forcing us to shift our cooking and eating habits. Today, more and more women are returning to home cooking, passing up the often more expensive ready-to-serve or ready-to-eat meals.

So observes Rheba Staggs, who for 36 years has been with the National Livestock and Meat Board, a non-profit organization. She is its home economics director and is recognized as one of the outstanding American meat cookery experts.

"High food prices have forced women into some kind of budget-saving economy. Although we are not in a desperate situation, we must shape up our food-buying habits to get in line with continuing and predictably higher prices. That means we must learn to buy more intelligently, more realistically," Miss Staggs says.

Future beef prices will have some minor reductions but in general beef prices will continue upward, she says.

She exudes Midwestern enthusiasm and a certain loyalty to the established ways of cooking meat. Missouri born, educated and honored, developer of many meat recipes for the American home, she has taught or lectured in every state.

She is not a fast-food enthusiast yet does realize its place in our current tension-producing way of life.

"I feel beef is the best and most economical meat buy today. It is packed with protein — top quality protein — everyone seems to like it and it is health-assuring. Chopped beef is now the most popular and most economical form of beef," she reminds us.

"We are now getting more requets for stuffed green peppers and stuffed cabbage recipes. Women are seeking new ways to use chopped beef or hamburger. It is a thoroughly satisfactory meat form and is economical and flexible in use."

She suggests braising, too. "Use a large cut of meat, brown it in a small amount of fat, then cover, and cook slowly until tender. Use less expensive cuts. Braising will tenderize them. The combination of pan gravy, meat flavor and vegetable juices combine to make wonderful flavor. Think of a well-cooked pot roast.

"Braising may take more time than frying or broiling. But the economy in money is large, and the results wonderful."

She also mentions the growing popularity of calf meat. More mature than veal and less mature than beef, it costs less than either and is being used in the South and on the West Coast.

With her home economist assistants, Miss Staggs reviewed recipes accumulated during 50 years by the Board. They selected 50. These have been published in an attractive paperback book called "The Bicentennial Beef Cookbook" ($2.00, Beef Industry Council, 36 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60603.) Besides the 50 favorite recipes for beef dishes, the book contains many practical hints on cooking, storing, etc., as well as charts of the beef carcass.

The fact is, for over 12 years we've offered . . .

Lower Prices Overall.

Back in 1963, Lucky was the first supermarket to take action against high food costs. We abolished costly coupons and gimmicks, and instead offered lower prices across the board. At Lucky, you can do all your shopping leisurely at one store, and know you're saving money. That's the kind of savings you can depend on, day after day, week after week.

PINEAPPLE VINAIGRETTE

Drain a 20-ounce can of pineapple chunks, reserving 2 tablespoons syrup for dressing. Prepare dressing by mixing ½ cup oil, 1/3rd cup red wine vinegar, 3 tablespoons pimiento pieces, reserved syrup, and 1 teaspoon each salt, Dijon mustard and crumbled basil. Mix well. Thinly slice ½ pound Polish sausage or dinner franks to measure 2 cups. Combine with pineapple and an 8 and ¾-ounce can kidney beans, 1½ cups sliced celery, ½ cup sliced green onion and ½ cup sliced mushrooms. Cover and chill at least one hour. When ready to serve, garnish with a few small lettuce leaves and arrange in salad bowl on a bed of lettuce.

New corn also good off cob

Fresh sweet corn goes a long way in a variety of dishes other than when eaten on the cob. As a change make a corn and ham saute using kernels cut from the cob and seasoned with a dash of sugar, green pepper and basil.

CORN AND HAM SAUTE

2 ears fresh corn
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sliced onion
12 ounces (2 cups) diced cooked ham
1 cup diced green pepper
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon basil leaves, crumbled
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground pepper

Remove husks and silks from corn. Cut kernels from cobs (makes about 3 cups); set aside. In a large skillet melt butter. Add onion; saute for 1 minute. Stir in ham, green pepper, sugar, basil, salt, black pepper and reserved corn. Cook and stir for 5 minutes. Makes 4 portions.

SPARE RIBS NEVER . . . tasted so good!

Western Barbecued Spare Ribs
Baste ribs on both sides with "Woody's" Cook-in' Sauce. (For maximum flavor baste 2 hours before cooking.) Outdoors: Place ribs in split basket or lace on spit. Baste often with equal parts "Woody's" and water added to pan drippings. Indoors: Sear both sides under broiler. Bake 45 minutes.

Italian food for dieters

There are those of us who find "eating Italiana" makes them feel happier. Such an attitude is fine unless there is a serious weight problem involved. Just to play it safe, you may still enjoy some Italian-style dishes prepared to cut down on calorie intake. Such recipes were created by a diet workshop. Enjoy such dishes as Pizza Romano, Veal Scallopini and Chicken Cacciatore again by eliminating some of the more fattening ingredients and by eating smaller portions at each meal.

PIZZA ROMANO

1 thin slice toast
2 ounces provolone cheese
½ cup sliced mushrooms
Pinch garlic powder
Pinch oregano

Put mushrooms on toast and cover with cheese. Sprinkle with seasonings and broil until cheese is hot and bubbly.

VEAL SCALLOPINI

8 ounces veal
Salt and pepper to taste
1 envelope instant bouillon
4 ounces tomato juice
4 ounces mushrooms
Garlic powder to taste
Oregano to taste
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

Brown seasoned veal. Add bouillon or tomato juice and simmer until tender or about 15 minutes. Add mushrooms, oregano, garlic and sprinkle with grated parmesan cheese.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

2 onions
4 stalks of celery
½ pound mushrooms
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 cups instant bouillon
1 fresh chicken, cut into eighths
1 1-pound can water-packed tomatoes
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
Dash of oregano and basil
Artificial sweetener to taste

In large pot, saute onions, celery, mushrooms, salt and pepper in bouillon for 6-10 minutes. Add chicken and other ingredients. Cook until chicken is tender; do not overcook or chicken will fall apart. Lift chicken out carefully. Do not eat sauce.

FRUIT 'N HONEY®

Choice California fruits with a difference.

Fruit 'N Honey is sweetened naturally with a light delicious syrup of pure honey and brown sugar. Try its delicate flavor for desserts, snacks, breakfasts and lunches. You'll like the true fruit taste complemented by the golden touch of honey.

Pears are regarded as the 'blushing fruit'

Bartlett pears, the "blushing" fruit, have made their yearly debut in our markets. Dr. George K. York, food science and technology specialist, Cooperative Extension, Division of Agricultural Sciences, University of California, Davis, calls them the "blushing fruit" because when they ripen they develop a rosy blushing cheek.

"Bartlett pears are good candidates for canning and freezing," says Dr. York. However, he cautions against canning overripe pears. "Allow pears to ripen to the firm-ripe stage. Overripe pears will not hold their shape or color when canned."

For canning or freezing it is economical to buy or pick a lug or a box of pears, either from a farmers' market or from orchards in the Santa Clara Valley, California foothills, or Hood River or Medford areas of Oregon or the Okanogan-Wenatchee-Yakima country of Washington. The pears should be picked green and allowed to ripen at room temperature. Pears that ripen on the tree become mealy or gritty. Now, with all this information and Dr. York's directions, you should be able to put up a pantry- and freezer-full of Bartlett pears that will be as beautiful and flavorful as grandma's blue ribbon ones. Bartletts will be in peak season August through September.

HOW TO CAN PEARS

1 box pears (46 pounds) yields 16 to 20 quarts canned. 1 L.A. lug (24 to 28 pounds) yields 8 to 13 quarts canned. 2 to 2½ pounds yields 1 quart canned.

Use only perfect canning jars without cracks or nicks, and NEW lids. Check lids to make sure that they fit jars perfectly. Wash jars in hot, soapy water and rinse well just before using.

Pears for canning should be picked green and ripened at room temperature to the firm-ripe stage. Do not allow them to become soft. Pears may be dipped in a lye solution to soften skins for easy removal.

Lye Solution: Use an iron, stainless steel, or enamel kettle (not aluminum). Put 6 tablespoons of concentrated lye into two gallons cold water. (Lye spatters when added to hot water). Stir with a wooden spoon. Bring to a boil. Place a few of the fruits at a time in a wire basket or sieve and immerse in boiling lye solution.

Let fruit stand 30 to 60 seconds or until the skins loosen and partially dissolve. Remove the sieve or strainer to the sink. Be sure that no liquid drips onto the floor or other surfaces. Or transfer the fruit from the lye solution to another container (not aluminum). Use a wooden spoon or stainless steel dipper. Rinse fruit thoroughly under a strong stream of cold water, washing skins away. Can the lye-peeled fruit immediately.

Dispose of the lye solution as soon as the peeling is finished. Carefully pour the solution down the sink and rinse the sink with large amounts of water.

Pare fruit (if skins are not removed by lye solution), cut in halves and trim out cores.

Pears are usually canned in medium-light syrup or in juice, but plain water may be used. Sugar helps improve flavor and preserves shape and color of fruit so fruit that is packed in water only, will suffer in quality. Honey may be substituted in part for sugar but gives a different flavor to the fruit.

Syrup: Boil together 1 cup sugar (or 1/3 cup honey and 2/3 cup sugar) and 2 cups water.

Juice: Crush soft, juicy pears, add a little water and heat to boiling. Strain.

To Pack Hot: Drop fruit into syrup or juice that is boiling hot. Just heat through. Pack hot pears into clean hot jars and cover with boiling syrup or juice to within ½ inch of top of jar for quart size or smaller. Run knife around inside to move air bubbles. Seal with lids and bands that have just been scalded in boiling water. Place each jar in a pan of very hot water while you fill the other jars.

To Pack Raw: Pack pears in clean hot jars with the cut sides down and the edges overlapping. Cover with boiling syrup or juice, to within ½ inch of top of jar for quart size or smaller. Run knife around inside to remove air bubbles. Seal with lids and bands that have just been scalded in boiling water. Place each jar in a pan of very hot water while you fill the other jars.

To Process: Place jars on a rack in a deep kettle. Cover with boiling water. Gently boil HOT PACK 15 minutes for pints and 20 minutes for quarts, and RAW PACK 20 minutes for pints and 25 minutes for quarts. Jars should be completely covered with gently boiling water throughout processing time. Add more hot water if needed.

To test Seal: The next day, check to see if jars are tightly sealed. Press center of lid. If lid stays down, the jar is properly sealed.

HOW TO FREEZE PEARS

Have all materials and equipment ready before you start. Work quickly because pears darken. Use firm-ripe pears. NOT overripe ones. Wash well. Pears are usually frozen in syrup.

Syrup: Yields 5½ cups (½ to 2/3 cup per pint container)
3 cups sugar
4 cups water
¼ teaspoon ascorbic acid
or 1 tablespoon lemon juice per cup syrup

Combine sugar and water and bring to a boil, stirring to dissolve sugar. Peel, core, slice, or quarter pears working with one at a time and dropping it into gently boiling syrup for 1 to 2 minutes. This will stop the enzyme action which causes darkening. With slotted spoon, transfer pear to a bowl and cover. When all pears are finished, cool syrup and pears. Add ascorbic acid or lemon juice to cold syrup. Pack fruit into freezer containers. Cover with cold syrup leaving ½ to ¾ inch headspace. Put enough crumpled foil or waxed paper on fruit to keep in under syrup.

Storage time at zero degrees — 8 to 12 months.

Old family recipe hails Bicentennial

When I asked my friend Modane Marchbanks, whose forbears were among Georgia's early settlers, what recipe had been in her family "forever," she answered, "Quince preserves!"

Modane's English ancestors, on her mother's side, were colonists and her brother still owns "a tiny piece" of the family's original Georgia estate. Her father's family came to Georgia from Scotland and were also early settlers; originally their name was "Marjoribanks" but somewhere along the line the spelling got changed. This was not unusual; a genealogist once told Modane that he had tracked down 152 different spellings of the original name!

It was her Grandmother Dean (on her mother's side) who taught Modane, when she was a little girl in Georgia, to make quince preserves. It's a recipe we might well revive in celebration of the Bicentennial because it appeared in the first cookbook, written by an American, published in this country. In that recipe, oranges were added to the quince; Grandmother Dean used no additional flavoring.

Modane graduated in home economics from the University of Georgia and went on to work in the food division of the Georgia Power Co. and then with the National Peanut Council when it was based in Georgia. After that she moved to New York where she worked in the food division of an advertising agency and for an international food company. Nowadays she free-lances — food research, recipe development and food photography are her specialties.

Modane worked out the quince preserve recipe in exact amounts. "At home," she says, "my grandmother simply weighed the prepared fruit and added an equal amount of sugar." Either way these preserves are made, by weight or cup measurement, they work out delightfully as we found from the samples Modane bestowed on us.

MODANE MARCHBANKS'S QUINCE PRESERVES

2 (each about ¾ pound) quince
3½ cups water
3½ cups sugar

Quarter, peel and core quince. Add peel and cores to the water in a large saucepot. Bring to a boil, then boil gently for about 20 minutes. Strain (discarding peel and cores) and pour liquid back into the empty saucepot. Thinly slice the peeled and cored quince and add to liquid. Boil gently until fruit is slightly tender — about 20 minutes; add about one-quarter of the sugar and stir until dissolved. Set aside for several hours or overnight. Bring to a gentle boil, add another quarter (about) of the sugar and stir until dissolved; set aside as previously. Repeat two more times; the last time, cook until the syrup is reduced to a jellylike consistency and the fruit is translucent. Ladle into clean hot half-pint jars. Seal according to the jar manufacturer's directions. Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes. Makes four ½-pint jars. If you like, you may omit the processing and store the preserves in the refrigerator.

Halloween traditions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sparks, flame and fire have been part of Halloween ritual since earliest times. Nov. 1 marked New Year's Day for the pagan Druids who inhabited Wales, Ireland, Scotland and parts of England and France, according to Hallmark historians.

On Halloween, the night before New Year's, it was traditional to let old fires die out and light new ones. These fires, often lit on hilltops, were believed to drive away witches, ghosts and evil spirits. In Scotland the fire-lighting custom is called Samhnagan, after Samhain, the god of death. In Wales, Halloween fires were called Coel Coeth. Welsh people would mark white stones with their initials and throw them into the fire. If any stone was missing next morning, its owner supposedly would not live to see another Halloween.

School lunches are an old-time bargain

School lunch is served. Come and get it.

But a great many who could don't take advantage of the free or reduced cost school lunch program. In New York State alone, for example, nearly 3.5 million have access to the National School Lunch Program but two million do not take advantage of it.

Among reasons given for passing up the lunches are that many children, between ages 10 to 12, don't eat so large a lunch as the program serves; that the food is unpalatable; that there is no attention paid to ethnic tastes; that most children prefer to snack rather than to sit down at a table for a meal; that the lunch supervisors act more like police than like human beings.

The United States Food and Nutrition Service is responsible for the program. Tony Robin, a graduate nutritionist with grown children, is a nutrition consultant to the service.

"Why won't those who are so quick to criticize the school lunch program stop to think of the underlying purpose — to get a decent amount of wholesome food into a young child's stomach?" Mrs. Robin says. "We are striving to upgrade the food and the method of serving it. We are constantly trying out new recipes and methods to get some ethnic food to school areas. Our purpose is to get one-third of the food needed daily to a child at minimum cost or free to those who qualify. The privacy of the free lunch children is protected.

"In certain parts of the country, the South and Northwest, for example, we are getting schools to include food and nutrition as basic parts of education and to rank it as a subject right along with reading, writing and arithmetic."

Mrs. Robin warns parents that brown paper bag lunches, to be nutritionally adequate, will cost about as much as the school lunch — currently about 40 to 60 cents.

"We here in the Food and Nutrition Service are trying to educate the children in nutrition. That makes possible a better life ahead for them and their future families. The school lunch is often the only way they can learn different and better eating habits.

The meal plan begins with one-half pint of milk.

Also served are two ounces of lean meat, poultry or fish, cheese, one egg, or one-half cup of cooked dry beans or peas, three-fourths cup serving consisting of two or more vegetables or fruits or both.

Full-strength vegetable or fruit juice may be counted to meet not more than one-fourth cup of this requirement.

One slice of whole-grain or enriched bread or a serving of corn bread, biscuits, rolls, muffins, etc., made of whole grain or enriched flour or meal are served, with one teaspoon of butter or fortified margarine. It is obvious a well-rounded menu is available but getting the children to eat it is another major step.

Oil tanker will carry Soviet grain

SAN DIEGO (AP)—An oil tanker 10 stories high leaves San Diego today for New Orleans, where it will pick up 75,000 tons of grain sold to the Soviet Union.

The 900-foot Golden Monarch will take the American grain from New Orleans to a Soviet port, probably Odessa, said Martin Berger of Marine Shipyards Consultants, owners of the vessel.

Berger said the Golden Monarch was meant to carry crude oil, but can handle grain just as well.

The giant tanker carries a crew of 26 and is navigated with the aid of satellites orbiting 24,000 miles beyond the earth's surface.

Interesting experiment: dehydrating foods

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A good cool-weather project for do-it-yourselfers who have built everything else, perhaps, might be equipment for drying foods — oven-drying trays, dehydrators, sulfuring boxes or solar dryer.

Such equipment might be particularly useful in the event of shortages of canning-jar lids, a problem experienced recently in some areas during the height of the growing season, and it may be even more economical than freezer storage. In any event it might be fun as an experiment.

Before investing time or the money needed for building materials, one could have a trial run of drying foods in the home oven, suggests the Farm Journal's "How To Dry Fruits and Vegetables." The book provides directions for building dehydrators and other equipment as well as the instructions for drying and storing foods.

To test the idea, they advise making oven-drying trays by covering oven racks with one layer of cheesecloth. It should be pinned to the four corners, then to the front and back edges as you stretch it. Sides should be pinned around the first rung in from the edge to allow air circulation at the edges.

If you enjoy the foods you dry, you may want to use a more efficient method which might be as simple as a frame with screen. That kind of frame — a screen stapled or tacked to a butt-joint frame — can be made from almost any clean, dry, 1 by 2 scrap lumber (which is ¾ by 1½ when it is bought) that is free of pitch. Do not use yellow pine.

Aluminum screen material might be used, although some foods discolor and corrode it, but stainless steel hardware cloth (⅛ inch to ¼ inch mesh) is better although more expensive. Galvanized screen is not recommended by the farm group because the zinc and cadmium in it could cause "dangerous reactions" in contact with acid foods, they maintain. It is suggested too that screens of vinyl, copper and synthetic materials are unsuited for this purpose.

Wood slats (or dowels) may be used for the bottom of trays. Thin wood lattice, one-quarter-inch thick and about one and a half inches wide, may be nailed to frames with one-half-inch spaces between them. When small pieces of food are to be dried, the slats can be covered with cheesecloth.

A small family may need no more than that kind of tray. From 1 to 2 pounds of fresh prepared food may be spread on each square foot of tray space. A load should be no more than 4 to 6 pounds at a time and it should be distributed over two or more trays. An oven 18 inches high may hold four trays with 2½ inches of space between each tray and a minimum of three inches free at top and bottom. If an oven holds only two racks, additional trays could be used by stacking and separating them with small wood blocks. A framework to hold all trays could be built and used instead of oven racks.

The average oven temperature for drying is about 140 degrees, although different foods require different temperatures. Thermometers are needed as a check and the door must be propped open as a careful eye is kept on the food to see that it doesn't scorch.

That is one reason why people may prefer a portable electric food dehydrator. One made with half-inch plywood and 1 by 1 wood strips, 18 inches wide, 24 inches high and 24 inches deep holds five trays and is heated by nine 75-watt light bulbs, drawing "a little less than 1 kilowatt-hour of power each hour." Designed by Dale E. Kirk, agricultural engineer at Oregon State University, it uses five aluminum window screens for trays, thermostat, electric fan, aluminum foil, copper wire, butt hinges and door latch, among other things. It might cost more than $75.

There are directions also for a natural draft dehydrator which requires no thermostat.

Do-it-yourselfers in a low temperature area with dependable sunshine might enjoy building a solar dryer. The box resembles a cold frame and uses either plexiglass or glass with a single 4 by 8 foot sheet of ½ inch exterior plywood. It has vents that can be covered with nylon mesh to protect foods from insects.

Food drying may seem like a lot of work until one gets into the routine. It is easier perhaps to blanch some vegetables and toss them into the freezer or to can foods in the traditional way. But food drying has advantages — more food can be stored in less space, it travels well and it can be economical.

Wheat germ meatballs with sauce

Meatball fans usually think of serving this favorite of foods with a tomato sauce. However, variety prevails in planning today's menus. Next time the urge for meatballs rises whip up some wheat germ meatballs and top them with a cheese sauce. This combination goes well as a hero sandwich or pasta topping.

WHEAT GERM MEATBALLS IN CHEESE SAUCE

1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup toasted wheat germ
¼ cup catsup
¼ cup minced onion
1 egg
2 tablespoons minced parsley
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Cheese Sauce

Combine all ingredients except Cheese Sauce, mixing well. Shape into 16 balls. Brown in 1 tablespoon oil in skillet. Pour Cheese Sauce over meatballs. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

CHEESE SAUCE: Combine 1 (11-ounce) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup, 1/3 cup milk, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon celery salt and ¼ teaspoon dry mustard. Cook over low heat, stirring, until sauce is smooth.

Nixon film cancelled

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A film satirizing former President Nixon has been cancelled from further showing in the United States after its premier here brought boos and rock throwing, its producer said.

Alan Abel cancelled his 16mm movie, "The Faking of the President," after two performances in a scheduled three-day benefit.

Employes at the downtown Capitol Theater confirmed the benefit opening recently brought boos, yelling of obsenities, and rock throwing outside the theater.

An antipoverty group, The People's Free Way, had scheduled the movie to raise funds.

Abel said his decision was "not a reflection of intimidation per se, but rather the inability of people to comprehend the heinous misdeeds of our highest elected government officials and their criminal acts surrounding Watergate."

Original ads for the movie on newspaper theater pages showed a caricature of Nixon with his mouth wide open, subtitled "The Original 'Jaws'."

50-year-old Cocoa Exchange keeps supply coming

Chocolate: chocolate candy, chocolate syrup, chocolate ice cream. Who can't remember these delectable treats as a child? Who doesn't crave them today, even as an adult!

Yes, we've all grown up with chocolate. We've come to take it for granted, assuming that every newspaper stand, every supermarket, every candy, drug and variety store, will hold ample supplies of America's favorite flavor.

Of course, nothing should be taken for granted, especially something as fine as chocolate. One of the reasons chocolate is available continuously everywhere is the New York Cocoa Exchange, celebrating the 50th Anniversary of its founding. The exchange, the only one in the U.S., has made possible a smooth orderly flow of cocoa beans — the source of all chocolate and cocoa products — into this country.

To understand how the Cocoa Exchange works, one must first understand something about cocoa. According to the Chocolate Manufacturers Association, most of the cocoa beans are produced in Africa (about 70 per cent). The chief producers there are Ghana, Nigeria, the Ivory Coast and the Cameroon Republic. Brazil is the largest producer in the Americas and the third largest producer in the world.

While most of the cocoa beans come from Africa and South America, 80 percent of the world supply is consumed by North America, Western Europe and Russia. Typically, the peak harvest time is October through January — when the cocoa merchant is offered large quantities of cocoa.

Before the Cocoa Exchange came into being, the merchant had many difficult choices to make; they were fraught with potential financial disaster. If he bought too early in the season and the price dropped, he'd be hard-pressed to compete with other merchants or manufacturers. If he waited for the price to go down and it didn't — or it rose because of dwindling supplies — he was in just as bad a situation.

The inherent dangers and perilous nature of this system were realized in 1921 when speculative trading after World War I saw cocoa importers and dealers suffer staggering losses. Banks began restricting credit and calling loans. Holdings were liquidated and prices tumbled, causing the losses to speculators and the cocoa trade. Cocoa merchants, seeking to avoid this chaos in future, organized the exchange as a place to buy and sell cocoa; it is no more or no less. It allows a cocoa merchant to hedge his bet on the price of cocoa. It is a very complicated system but, briefly, this is how it works for a cocoa producer and a cocoa merchant.

The cocoa producer is very concerned about the price of cocoa. Let us say it is summer and his crop is maturing. He sees that the price of a December futures contract on the Cocoa Exchange is highly satisfactory. He can then sell the amount of his anticipated crop in the December futures market, thereby insuring a good price and an end to his worry.

The cocoa merchant has to carry a large inventory all during the year to sell as needed. This is risky because of the difficulty in predicting changes in prices. Let us assume that he has 450,000 pounds of cocoa beans. He sells an equivalent amount of futures on the Cocoa Exchange. In this way, he has shifted the risk of ownership to the futures market and is no longer concerned with fluctuations in the value of his inventory. If the price drops, his inventory loss is made up by the profit on his futures transactions. If the price rises, his loss on the futures trade will be balanced against the rise in inventory value.

The New York Cocoa Exchange was incorporated May 21, 1925, and opened for business October 1 of that year. It was the first exchange established anywhere in the world for trading in cocoa beans. Another important first was the election of its first woman member in 1935, and the second in 1941. No other commodities or securities exchange had made women eligible for membership up to that time, nor did one do so until several decades later. Currently, a young woman representing Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith joins the men at the exchange trading ring.

The man most closely identified with the New York Cocoa Exchange is its first president and principal organizer — a leader in the world cocoa marketing trade — Mr. Isaac Witkin, 83-year-old senior partner of the General Cocoa Company. Almost every day he is at the trading ring, active in the hectic business of buying and selling cocoa futures.

To celebrate the exchange's 50th anniversary, there was historic reenactment of the arrival and transport of sacks of cocoa beans into the Port of New York, just as it was done by cocoa traders in the early days. The beans were unloaded from a 19th century ship docked in the East River and hauled by horsedrawn dray to a small city park which Mayor Abraham D. Beame officially designated "Cocoa Exchange Square" in honor of International Cocoa Week festivities. Two 50-pound chocolate bars donated by Bache & Co., Inc. and Merrill Lynch, were auctioned at the exchange for the benefit of a local downtown hospital.

In addition to exchange officials, Ambassador Samuel E. Quarm of Ghana, the world's largest producing country of cocoa beans, was on hand.

AFTER-SCHOOL TREAT
Molasses Rounds
Milk

MOLASSES ROUNDS

4 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon cloves
1 egg
1 cup sugar
6 tablespoons each solid white shortening and butter or margarine, melted
¼ cup hot water
½ cup light molasses

Raisin Filling, see below

Sift together the flour, baking soda, salt and spices. Beat together the sugar and egg; add shortening and butter and the hot water; mix well. Add molasses. Gradually stir in flour mixture until dough is smooth. Wrap tightly and chill 1 hour. Using a prepared pastry cloth and stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out dough — ¼ at a time — to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut with a floured 2½-inch round cookie cutter. Place ½ of the rounds on lightly greased cookie sheets. Spoon a teaspoon of the Raisin Filling onto each round; top with another round and seal edges with fork tines. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until edges are lightly browned — 10 minutes. Makes 3½ dozen.

Raisin Filling: Stir together ¾ cup sugar and 4 teaspoons flour; add 1½ cups raisins (chopped), ½ cup orange juice, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind, ½ teaspoons grated lemon rind and ½ teaspoon salt; mix well and simmer 5 minutes; cool.

With slow cooker, follow directions very carefully

By Cecily Brownstone

When an electric slow cooker came into our kitchen, the first dish we wanted to use it for was "baked" beans. A glance over slow cooker cookbooks suggested several methods. The following recipe gives one we found successful. Here the beans are rinsed, turned into the slow cooker and precooked in water for eight hours; other ingredients are added and the cooking is finished in another 10 to 12 hours.

"Baked" beans cooked this way are tender throughout but still have a little bite — al dente as Italians say. We served half the beans right after cooking; the rest were refrigerated for several days and quickly but thoroughly reheated in our countertop microwave oven — a plus for eaters who want their beans on the really soft side.

It's only fair to say that several factors influence the results. "A Teaching Manual on Slow Cooking" published by the manufacturers of the slow cooker we used sums these up in the wisest words we have yet seen on the subject. Their home economist writes: "In longtime, low-temperature cooking, the proper softening of beans depends on the age and moisture content of the package when purchased, and the hardness of water." She also warns that in preparing "baked" beans in the slow cooker it is necessary to precook the beans in water first because when sweetening or acids are added before this precooking they cause the beans to harden "so that no degree of cooking will provide proper softening."

The apples in this recipe are an interesting addition. The idea hails from Michigan and is said to be popular in families of bean and apple growers in that state. It's easy to understand why!

SLOW COOKER "BAKED" BEANS (Michigan Style)

1 pound (2 to 2½ cups) dry red kidney or pea (navy) beans
3 cups water
4 slices bacon, cut into ½-inch crosswise pieces
3 cups chopped pared tart apple
2 cups chopped onion
½ cup dark corn syrup
½ cup catchup
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Rinse and pick over beans; turn into an electric slow cooker with water; cover and set control at low. Cook 8 hours. Meanwhile stir together bacon, apple, onion, corn syrup, catchup, salt, mustard and pepper; cover tightly and refrigerate — as long as 8 hours if you like. After beans have cooked with the water for the required time, stir in the apple mixture. Keep covered, with control set at low, and continue cooking until beans are tender throughout but still firm enough to have some bite — 10 to 12 hours. Makes about 2 quarts.

Note: If you work away from home, you can cook the beans in the water overnight and prepare and then refrigerate the apple mixture overnight. The next morning, add the apple mixture to the beans and let cook while you are away during the day. The dish will be ready to serve for supper.

Football fare for fans

Pushups and countdowns are quickening the pulse of sports fans across the land. It's time to get out the football gear and let the team know how you feel. Whether you play or spectate, it takes a lot of energy to get through the season. Most cooks instinctively respond to increased appetites with more stick-to-the-ribs food.

Fresh Apple Turnovers are fine fare for this season. It's National Apple Month and there's a bountiful harvest of high quality apples moving into supermarkets. Most cooks have a favorite variety of apples they like to use for pies and desserts — Rome, Stayman, Golden Delicious, Jonathan and McIntosh to name a few. This recipe for Apple Turnovers yields 24 servings easy to make at one time. Extras may be stored in the freezer ready to go on another outing.

A turnover is a filled pastry made by turning half of the crust over the other half. The pastry is pie dough and the packaged mixes work very well. Filling may be made of canned, frozen or fresh fruit. Because it's fresh apple season our recipe calls for fresh apples. And because so many people like cheese with apple pie, there's sharp cheddar cheese in the crust. So the turnover becomes a complete dessert, with hot coffee or apple cider for a beverage. In some parts of the country cooks prefer fried to baked turnovers. Directions for both are in the recipe.

Whether football or autumn colors initiate the family outing, you'll save on time and money if you pack a lunch. A picnic or tailgate service is the practical approach. Keep accessories to a minimum. Serve finger foods like hearty sandwiches. Raw vegetable relishes, pickles and a beverage don't call for a plate or fork. The turnovers are easier to transport than apple pie and offer no problems about portions. When the meal is over a basket of fresh apples for munching while riding will help to clean the teeth, massage the gums and subdue hunger pangs if they still persist.

FRESH APPLE TURNOVERS

2 packages (11 ounces each) pie crust mix
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
6 medium apples, peeled, cored and chopped
¼ cup flour
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Prepare pie crust mix according to package directions adding cheese to flour mixture before adding water. Roll out crust on a floured surface with a floured rolling pin to ⅛-inch thickness. Cut dough into 5-inch rounds. In a bowl, mix apples, flour, sugar, nuts and cinnamon. Place 1 heaping tablespoon filling on each round of dough. Brush edge of dough with water. Fold over enclosing filling and press edges together with the tines of a fork. Place on ungreased cooky sheet. Chill for 2 hours. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake 18 to 20 minutes or until golden brown.

FOR FRIED PIES: Preheat oil for deep fat frying to 175 degrees. Drop turnovers into fat and fry 2 to 3 minutes on each side. Remove with a pancake turner and drain on absorbent paper. Serve warm sprinkled with confectioners' sugar.

Delicious return of Spanish onions

Welcome back the Spanish onion! In the early fall that sweet and late-maturing vegetable returns to markets and stays with us until early spring. During this time you can use it to make some delicious dishes that just do not taste as good when other onions are used.

One of these is a German creation — Zwiebelkuchen. Zwiebel means onion. Kuchen means cake. But the savory dish we call Onion Kuchen is a far cry from the dessert Americans regularly call cake. The biscuitlike or breadlike base for Onion Kuchen may be made with a "quick" leavening or with yeast. Its topping is a delectable combination of Spanish onion gently cooked in butter, eggs and sour cream — and sometimes caraway seed. The following recipe is a shortcut version because it calls for buttermilk baking mix for the base.

When we tested this recipe we served the Onion Kuchen with fried chicken and snap beans for a main course our tasters found tempting. But the Onion Kuchen is equally good with German or Polish-style sausage and red cabbage.

ONION KUCHEN (Zwiebelkuchen)

1 large (about 1 pound) sweet Spanish onion
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 eggs
1½ cups commercial sour cream
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon caraway seed
½ cup milk
1¾ cups buttermilk baking mix

Peel and quarter onion; slice into thin strips — there should be about 3½ cups not packed down. In a 10-inch skillet in 4 tablespoons of the butter, gently cook the onion, stirring often, until wilted and yellowed — 20 to 30 minutes.

In a medium mixing bowl beat 3 of the eggs until yolks and whites are combined; gradually stir in the sour cream, keeping smooth. Stir in the salt, caraway seed and cooked onion; set aside.

In a 6-inch skillet melt the remaining 2 tablespoons butter; set aside. In a medium mixing bowl beat remaining egg with milk to combine; add the melted butter and the baking mix; stir just until dry ingredients are moistened — dough will not be smooth. Turn into a buttered glass baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil and spread evenly. Spread onion mixture over dough. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until dough is browned and topping is set — 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve at once.

Makes 8 servings.

USDA moving toward uniform grade names

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has proposed establishing uniform nomenclature for U.S. grades of fresh fruits and vegetables. The uniform grade names would be adopted for individual fruits and vegetables during the normal process of revising or establishing grade standards.

The proposal, made by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), would establish U.S. Fancy, U.S. No. 1, U.S. No. 2, and U.S. No. 3, as the grade names for all fresh fruits and vegetables. USADA will accept comments on the proposal until Feb. 15, 1976.

U.S. grade standards provide a common language for wholesale trading and a means of measuring value or a basis for establishing prices. The grade standards define levels of quality by specifying the characteristics — such as shape, color, texture, and freedom from defects — for each grade of a commodity.

The proposed nomenclature would represent the following levels of quality:

U.S. Fancy — Premium quality; covers only the top grade produced.

U.S. No. 1 — The chief trading grade; represents good, average quality that is practical to pack under commercial conditions; covers the bulk of the quality range produced.

U.S. No. 2 — Intermediate between U.S. No. 1 and U.S. No. 3; noticeably superior to U.S. No. 3.

U.S. No. 3 — The lowest merchantable quality practical to pack under normal conditions.

According to AMS officials, simplified terminology has become more important with the increased complexity of produce marketing as well as increased consumer interest in grades and standards. Although the standards were originally designed for use in the wholesale trade, distributors label some consumer packages — such as apples, potatoes, onions, and citrus — with U.S. grade names.

The proposal for establishing a system of uniform nomenclature was published in the Oct. 6 Federal Register.

Comments should be sent in duplicate to the hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Comments will be available for public inspection.

Pears in market

Those creamy-yellow, long-necked beauties called Bartletts will be on the market in record numbers through October, according to marketing specialists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Oregon and Washington pack is expected to reach 2,636,000 standard box equivalents for fresh market, exceeding the 1974 pack by 600,000 boxes.

That's not all. In California the pack for fresh market of 3,846 carloads has exceeded the early season estimate by more than 300 carloads, and 1974 shipments by nearly 800 carlots.

Bartletts are referred to as the Golden Harvest. Not only their color has given them this name, but their goodness as well. They've survived and thrived since before the invention of the wheel. Even Homer saluted them for their perfection and taste, while Greek physicians hailed pears for their thereapeutic value.

Don't pass them up if they look green and appear hard at your market. Pears are picked and packed green, and seldom are tree-ripened. The pear is one of the few fruits whose texture and taste are improved when not fully tree-ripened.

If the pears you buy are slightly green, let them stand at room temperature for a day or so. When they turn a creamy-yellow color and yield to slight thumb pressure, they are ripe and right for eating.

They've a versatile fruit — for salads, for desserts, for preserves, or for eating out-of-hand.

STUFFED PEARS AU CHOCOLAT

6 to 8 fresh Bartlett pears
1½ cups granulated sugar
2 and 1/3rd cups water
6 lemon slices
3 teaspoons imitation rum flavor
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese
¼ cup powdered sugar
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
Salt
2 envelopes (1 ounce each) unsweetened baking chocolate
3 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pare, halve and core pears. Combine 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, lemon slices and 2 teaspoons flavoring in shallow pan. Bring to boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Add half of pears; simmer, basting with syrup, turning as needed until fork-tender, about 8 minutes. Remove pears to shallow dish; cook remaining pears in syrup. Chill all pears in syrup several hours. Mix cream cheese with 3 tablespoons syrup from pears and powdered sugar; beat until smooth and fluffy. Blend in lemon rind and pinch salt. Drain pears. Put pear halves together with cheese mixture; chill. Serve with Chocolate Sauce.

To prepare sauce combine 1-3rd cup water and chocolate in saucepan. Cook, stirring, over low heat until blended. Add ½ cup sugar and dash salt; cook stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Remove from heat; stir in butter and 1 teaspoon rum flavor. Serve warm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Beat together the eggs, flour, salt, sugar and vanilla until smooth. Gradually beat in the water, scraping bowl and beater blades several times and keeping smooth. Using a well-buttered, hot 8-inch skillet and a scant ¼ cup of the batter for each, make pancakes one at a time; grease skillet well for each pancake and fry on one side only before turning out. When you add the batter to the hot greased skillet each time, swirl off heat to spread thinly. Place about a tablespoon of the Cheese Filling toward one edge on the bottom side of each pancake and roll up, folding in two of the edges in envelope style. Fry rolled pancakes in hot butter, browning on both sides. Serve at once with sour cream. Makes 10 to 12.

Fresh vegetables offer cooks built-in convenience

In preparing food, remember the built-in "convenience" of fresh vegetables! There's nothing easier. They have wonderful taste, delightful texture, great variety and important nutrition. Fresh vegetables are quick to prepare and easy to cook, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association reminds us.

Many fresh vegetables are well served without cooking — celery, lettuce, carrots — and so many more! When cooking, it's a sad truth that some people over-prepare fresh vegetables which adds unnecessary time and effort. There is no need to peel a fresh eggplant or a zucchini, the green Italian squash. The peel is colorful and has important nutrition to offer. Don't throw it away, or make work for yourself paring it off. This goes for many fresh vegetables. Think before you peel.

Many people cook fresh vegetables too long. This, too, tends to cancel their innate convenience. Most fresh vegetables are served at their best when cooked briefly in a minimum of water. Green leafy vegetables, for instance, such as spinach, are well-cooked in only ten minutes, and will have that delicious freshness of taste and texture that is such a treat.

To retain the maximum convenience factor in fresh vegetables, choose the most convenient way of cooking them. For instance, you need never peel a sweet potato if you choose to bake it rather than boil it. You will have a luscious vegetable course to serve in its own natural container (the peel) and no pans to wash after cooking these potatoes. Just set the scrubbed potatoes on a cookie sheet or in any pan in the oven, prick the peel with a fork to allow steam to escape, and bake for about an hour.

Serve with butter or margarine, and salt and pepper or fresh lemonjuice. It's a shame to overlook convenience as natural as this — and it doesn't come along with additives or expensive processing and packaging.

Try serving some vegetables raw. You may discover new convenience in fresh vegetables by serving some raw that you have always cooked, or cooking some that you have always served raw. Cabbage is a good example. If you have served this vegetable only in coleslaw that required shredding, try cutting cabbage in serving-size wedges and cook till only just tender. This is a delicious vegetable that goes particulary well with ham or corned beef, and almost any casserole.

If you have only served carrots raw as a nibble vegetable, try them cooked in large pieces. So quick and colorful for any meal. On the other hand, if you have always cooked white turnips, you will find serving them raw in sticks like carrots makes a very pleasant snack. They are crisp, earthy, and spicy-sweet.

Have you ever eaten mushrooms raw? They make a gourmet salad item, with practically no effort. Mushrooms are convenient to use if you don't make the mistake of peeling them. The peel has important flavor and good texture, so leave it on. For a beautiful touch for green salads, slice the whole mushrooms lengthwise, very thin, including the stem. You'll have pretty pieces of mushroom that look like little parasols to scatter in your green salad, and a flavor note that is truly gourmet. And all that this fresh elegance takes in preparation is just to wash and slice the mushrooms!

Fresh onion is incomparably superior seasoning for dozens of dishes. If onions make your eyes tear, just peel them under cold water, and that will put an end to the difficulty.

Fresh green peppers are very important ingredients in many styles of cooking. For instance, Italian cookery features Veal and Peppers, and Chinese cuisine includes green pepper in many of the famous stir-fry dishes. How easy it is to prepare this glossy-green, crisp fresh vegetable for use. Just a couple of twirls of a paring knife removes both ends, the seeds tumble out, and you're in business to slice in any size you want.

NATURAL "CASEROLES"

There are many squash in the market now — butternut, acorn, crookneck. Both butternut and acorn quash come in their own "casseroles" for built-in convenience. Just cut them in half, discard seeds, and bake them right in their peel for a delicious vegetable course. They may have a really festive harvest look and taste. A little butter or margarine and bit of honey or brown sugar brings out the flavor of these squash. As for the crookneck, never peel them. Just cut them in pieces, and cook in a minimum of water — ready in 10 minutes; cooking time.

There is all the difference in the world in a meal that includes raw and delicious fresh-cooked vegetables. Such meals have more variety in color, differences of texture, taste — and there is excellent nutrition. There is a balance to a meal that contrasts a fresh vegetable, a white potato or sweet potato course, with a well-chosen and well-cooked meat. And there is eating satisfaction that everyone recognizes. Just think how the phrase "fresh-cooked" attracts people to a restaurant, and you realize the difference.

Fall is squash season

Fall is a good time to take advantage of a variety of fresh squash in most part of the country. For attractiveness and taste select an acorn squash with its scalloped edges. Cut it in half and bake with a dab of butter or brown sugar, stuff with vegetables or ground meat. Or cut the acorn into rings and bake with orange juice and a sweet glaze. When buying acorn squash see that the outer shell is sound and free from decay. Store at room temperature only for two or three days before use.

GLAZED ACORN RINGS

- 2 acorn squash
- 1/3 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup light corn syrup
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 teaspoons grated fresh lemon rind
- 1/8 teaspoon salt

Cut off ends of squash. Cut crosswise into 1-inch slices and remove seeds. Place in a single layer in a large shallow casserole or baking dish and add orange juice. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Combine brown sugar and remaining ingredients in a small saucepan; simmer for 5 minutes. Pour over squash rings and bake uncovered for 15 minutes longer, basting occasionally.

STUFFED ACORN SQUASH

- 2 acorn squash
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh celery
- 1/3 cup chopped fresh onion
- 1 1/2 cups chopped cooked ham
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 1/8 teaspoon allspice

Cut acorn squash in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Place cut side down in baking dish with one-half inch water. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Meanwhile prepare stuffing. In small skillet or saucepan melt butter; add celery and onion and cook until tender. Add ham, sugar and allspice. Heat. Invert squash. Fill cavities with ham mixture. Cover and bake 15 minutes. Remove cover and bake 15 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings.

Big Red Machine gets some help

Progress Bulletin
Sports
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, October 15, 1975

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Big Red Machine is in the driver's seat of the World Series, thanks to some sudden power and a spark from a home plate collision.

The Cincinnati Reds unlimbered their big guns and turned a controversial play at home to their advantage for a 6-5, 10-inning victory Tuesday night and a 2-1 lead in baseball's Fall Classic.

In tonight's fourth game, the Reds send left Fred Norman against Boston right-handed ace Luis Tiant at 5:30 p.m. PDT.

"We won tonight because we're lucky...because the good Lord takes care of us," said Manager Sparky Anderson.

Anderson could think of no other way to describe the Reds' bittersweet victory in Game 3— a pulsating, tense affair that had everything, including the most talked-bout play of the 1975 World Series so far.

This was the situation: with the game tied at 5-5 and a runner at first in the 10th inning, Anderson ordered pinch hitter Ed Armbrister to lay down a sacrifice bunt. Armbrister did as expected, but something unexpected followed.

The ball hopped a few feet in front of home plate and Boston catcher Carlton Fisk charged to field it. He had difficulty getting to it, however, because Armbrister was in his way.

When Fisk picked up the ball, he threw toward second base in an attempt to get the lead runner. But the throw was wild into center field and the Reds suddenly had runners on second and third base because of the error.

The play triggered a protest from the Boston bench, particularly Fisk and Manager Darrell Johnson. They felt that the batter had interfered with Fisk's play and therefore should have been called out by home plate umpire Larry Barnett.

The play became all the more crucial, because the Reds loaded the bases and went on to win the contest on Joe Morgan's single.

A seething Fisk had nothing pleasant to say about Barnett after the bitter defeat at Riverfront Stadium.

"He blew it two ways," the Boston catcher said of Barnett. "The first time was when he didn't call interference on the play. The second time was when he didn't call the man out because I probably tagged him after I got the ball.

"You might as well throw a cross body block on the catcher, knock him down and go to first. It's a damn shame to have a call like that in such a game. I think it was a double play ball except for the interference. Instead, I get hit, throw the ball into center field and they wind up with runners on second and third with none out."

Johnson was equally incensed.

"I don't need to read the rule out of the rule book," he said. "We all know the rule and Armbrister did interfere with Fisk. The man is entitled to run to first base, but the runner can not come into contact with the fielder before he has the opportunity to field it.

"I went up to the plate umpire and when I didn't get any satisfaction, I went to the first base umpire. I didn't get any satisfaction from him, either. He just shrugged and didn't say anything. Their interpretation of the rule is obviously different from mine."

Barnett, of course, had his own interpretation of the rules, as did the Cincinnati camp.

"I ruled that it was simply a collision," Barnett said. "It is interference only when the batter intentionally gets in the way of the fielder. I signalled that the ball was fair and in play."

Dick Stello, the first base umpire who backed up Barnett during the heated Boston protests on the field, said: "It was not interference. In such a situation, the batter has as much right to go to first base as the fielder has to go for the ball. To make it interference, the batter would have had to intentionally try to impede the fielder from going for the ball. He did not do this."

As was expected, Armbrister swore up and down that he did nothing intentional to block Fisk's way.

"I hit the ball in front of the plate and it bounced high," said the player in the middle of the dramatic controversy. "I started to break for first and Fisk just came from behind and bumped me. The play was behind me, and if he hit from behind, I would say he interfered with me."

If it wasn't for what Sparky Anderson called his "stupid" mistake, the whole business wouldn't have happened.

The Reds had a 5-3 lead going into the ninth inning with reliever Will McEnaney seemingly in control of things. The Reds' left-handed bullpen ace struck out Fred Lynn for the first out and the crowd of 55,392 at Riverfront settled back for what looked like a comfortable Cincinnati victory.

Then McEnaney gave up a single to Rico Petrocelli and Anderson brought in Rawly Eastwick to face Dwight Evans. He didn't face him too long, for the Boston outfielder promptly parked one of his pitches into the left field seats to tie the game and send it toward its unpredictable climax.

"I made a dumb mistake, it's as simple as that," Anderson said. "I should have had Eastwick in of course to pitch to Petrocelli. I waited one batter too long to bring in a right-hander against Petrocelli."

Disappointed by the Boston lightning in the ninth inning, Morgan said the Reds weren't down by any means.

"We had the same situation in Pittsburgh (in the playoffs)," Morgan said. "We didn't panic. I just told Rawly to get them out and we would get a run."

Cesar Geronimo got things started in the 10th with a single and moved to third on the controversial bunt play. The Red Sox issued an intentional walk to Pete Rose to load the bases. Pinch hitter Merv Rettenmund struck out before Morgan came through.

Earlier, Johnny Bench hit a two-run homer for the Reds in the fourth. And Dave Concepcion and Geronimo blasted homers in the fifth, when Cincinnati scored three times. Before Evans' game-tying wallop, the Red Sox got solo homers from Fisk in the second and Bernie Carbo in the seventh. The total of six shots tied a World Series record for most homers by two teams in a game.

Boston catcher Carlton Fisk argues with first base umpire Dick Stello that he was interfered with when Cincinnati's Ed Armbrister brushed him at the plate after bunting.

Cal Poly may be building a basketball powerhouse.

No, we're not talking about Coach Don Hogan's men's team. Even though Hogan's Heroes appear stronger this year and are tackling an ambitious schedule against several big time opponents.

It's the women who are making the big jump thanks to the efforts of Coach Darlene May.

This is May's second season at Poly and she is expecting big things to happen.

"We should be right up there this year," she said. "We've recruited several junior college transfers and freshmen and will be hosting an invitational tournament in December."

May has three scholarships to work with in basketball. One of them is going to Musiette McKinney, a freshman from Ganesha High.

The eight-team tournament is scheduled for Dec. 19-20 at Kellogg Gym with the field consisting of Fresno State, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Long Beach State, USC, UC Santa Barbara, Cal State Los Angeles, Biola and Poly.

"We're trying to get some exposure and need to make some money so we can afford to enter national competition," Darlene stated. "We'll have a season ticket package this year."

Poly compiled a 16-6 record last year and placed fifth in the national small college finals of the American Intercollegiate Association of Women (AIAW) at Pueblo, Colo.

Oversees program

Besides coaching basketball and volleyball, May also oversees Poly's entire women's athletic program. There are six other sports under her direction.

May also is enjoying personal success.

She was recently licensed as an international official to become the first U.S. woman to earn the honor.

"About three weeks ago, I received a letter asking me to apply for the license with the test," she explained. "I passed and just got my license. I guess the international organization wanted to get some Americans into officiating."

May's first assignment will be serving as one of two officials accompaning a touring woman's team from the People's Republic of China.

The tour opens on Nov. 18 at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion where the Chinese will play a strong Cal State Fullerton team. Other stops will be at Memphis, Rochester (N.Y.), New York City and Washington, D.C. against various opponents.

"I'm really excited about this," Darlene exclaimed.

The Poly women's athletic director does have officiating experience as evidenced by working in the large colleges' AIAW finals the past two seasons.

Her dream now is to be selected to officiate in the 1976 Olympics at Montreal.

"I would think the desire of adding American officials would mean something for the Olympics," she said. "This will be the first Olympics our women's team will compete in. I feel there is a possibility I could be selected for the Olympics."

Notes from here and there:

La Verne College product Jack Maloof finished the Southern League season with a .317 batting average. He was honored by Topps Chewing Gum Company as the league's Player of the Month for July when he hit .332.

Mitchell Page, who played for Coach John Scolinos at Cal Poly, hit 22 homers and drove in 85 runs at Shreveport in the Texas League. He was the league's All-Star leftfielder.

Damien High graduate Joe Baumgaertner scored a touchdown on a four-yard run for Stanford in the Cardinals' 67-14 rout over Army.

Nobody asked me to vote but I would select Cincinnati's Joe Morgan and Boston's Fred Lynn as the Most Valuable Players. My choices for the Cy Young Awards would be Randy Jones of the Padres and Jim Palmer of the Orioles.

Can you believe all the ink the Heisman Trophy is already getting in the metropolitan press. It's a little early to be thinking too seriously about it.

Former Garey High football star Cornell Webster is currently on the sidelines at the University of Tulsa where he is recovering from a broken collarbone.

UCLA QB wins honor

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Sciarra, who guided the UCLA offense to 472 yards total offense in an important Pacific-8 football victory over Stanford, was today named the conference's Offensive Player of the Week.

The Bruins' quarterback ran for 121 yards, averaging 5.8 yards per try, and passed for 64 in the 31-21 victory at Stanford.

Linebacker Phil Heck of Cal was selected as the conference's top defensive player Saturday. He made 13 tackles, intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble in a 34-7 victory over Oregon.

Wilt's free to deal

NEW YORK (AP) — Aging superstar Wilt Chamberlain, who along with Bill Russell ruled basketball's backboards in the 1960s, finally is a free agent today, but there appear to be some strings attached.

National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien announced Tuesday that he had given the 7-foot former Philadelphia 76er and Los Angeles Laker the okay to deal with any NBA club he wants.

Chamberlain's attorney, Seymour Goldberg, was not happy with the commissioner's action, calling it "a fraud, an absolute fraud."

Chamberlain, 39 years old and off the court for two years, last played with the Lakers and, up until Tuesday, had a valid contract with the team at a reported $450,000 a year. The contract continued through the coming season, although whether the Lakers would honor it almost assuredly would have wound up in the courts.

Since the Lakers already had acquired two centers, including Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Chamberlain became an unnecessary commodity. The former All-Star didn't want to report to camp because he said the Lakers as much as told him that he wouldn't make the team anyway.

In a statement read to The Associated Press by O'Brien's office, the commissioner stated flatly that he had taken the action to get the Lakers out of an "untenable position."

He said: "Previously I stated and reiterated that Wilt Chamberlain must report to the Los Angeles Lakers and if the Lakers elected to utilize his services, I would personally intervene in any resulting controversy in order to determine the 'respective rights of the parties including the rights, if any, the Lakers retain in Chamberlain's services.'

"However, weeks elapsed and Chamberlain has not fulfilled this requirement. His attorney has written letters and issued innumerable press statements, but in no way has there been a good faith effort to resolve this controversy.

"With our season a scant nine days away, these tactics have created an increasingly untenable situation for the Lakers in terms of their roster and for the NBA."

However, Seymour said in his conversation Tuesday afternoon with Mike Burke, president of the New York Knicks, who have expressed interest in obtaining Chamberlain, he learned that O'Brien's office had not told all.

Goldberg, contacted in Encino, Calif., said: "There is something missing in O'Brien's statement. Each owner got an additional line that wasn't in the statement which was released to the press.

"The additional line says, in effect, that in the event that Wilt Chamberlain signs with any other NBA franchise, the commissioner shall expect, according to league rules, for that team to adequately compensate the Lakers.

"I promised Jack Kent Cooke (Lakers' owner) that he would not get anything. He's not entitled to anything. It depends now on what Mike Burke wants to do."

Chamberlain jumped from the Lakers to the San Diego American Basketball Association team in 1974 to become a player-coach. A judge ruled, however, that he couldn't play for any team except the NBA Lakers, who held Chamberlain's NBA rights.

Goldberg added he was considering no legal action and would wait to see what kind of an offer the Knicks might come up with.

The San Diego ABA franchise also got into the act Tuesday. Frank Goldberg, a part owner of the Sails and no relation to Chamberlain's attorney, contended Chamberlain was still beholden to the ABA. He "owes us some more years—in fact, he probably owes us three," Frank Goldberg said.

O'Brien's action "doesn't affect our dealings with him at all," said the Sails' co-owner. "If he decides he still wants to play basketball, he still has a contract to fulfill here. We expect to protect any and all rights under our contractual agreement with Chamberlain."

Seymour Goldberg, however, said when the ABA team, then owned by Leonard Bloom, went into bankruptcy and became the Sails, those contract obligations were invalidated.

"I've never heard from the man (Frank Goldberg) before," Chamberlain's attorney said. "He never called me. If he wishes to pay the debt to Wilt, we'd be happy to talk things over with him.

"Things are owed to Wilt that we were unable to do anything about because Leonard Bloom went into bankruptcy," the attorney said. "At that time, Wilt's contract became void. If he (Frank Goldberg) had anything, he would have contacted me a long time ago."

Lakers' owner Jack Kent Cooke was not available for comment. However, Pete Newell, Lakers' general manager, said: "The league has been making the statements throughout on this, and this ruling is entirely theirs."

Newell said there is no such thing as a compensation rule, as such, in the NBA, but "rulings of that sort are made by the NBA commissioner."

Carter, Krzysiak Players of Week

The Progress Bulletin's Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week in the high school ranks hail from San Dimas and Chino highs respectively.

Offensive honors go to San Dimas halfback Fred Carter. The defensive award was won by Chino's Pat Krzysiak, a linebacker.

Both players will receive plaques presented by the Pomona Elks Lodge next Monday at the weekly PB football luncheon at the Castaway Restaurant in Pomona.

Carter won the award for his great game against Gladstone last Friday. The Saint runner gained 167 yards on 17 carries, an average of almost 10 yards per tote. He also scored two touchdowns on runs of 11 and 31 yards to pace a 37-0 San Dimas win, which was the school's first of 1975.

Krzysiak accounted for nine unassisted and six assisted tackles from his linebacker spot in leading a Chino defense which blanked San Antonio League foe Ganesha 21-0 last week.

The 6-2, 200-pound junior also added a pass interception to his big night.

USC cage coach stresses defense

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern Cal's basketball team went on a scoring spree at the beginning of last season, rolling up more than 100 points in each of its first three games.

Trojan coach Bob Boyd was impressed. He was so impressed, in fact, that he may have forgotten about the other end of the floor.

"Our thinking got twisted around last year," said Boyd, who will be starting his 10th season at Southern Cal when the Trojans open practice today.

"We scored so well early in the season and got so caught up in Gus Williams' scoring that we forgot that consistency of winning is based on defense."

Boyd said that, in the past, he was usually asked to speak on defense at basketball clinics. This year, however, he said clinic sponsors wanted him to talk about the Trojans' new offense.

The "new" Trojan offense may shortly become the old Trojan offense.

Boyd indicated that, in addition to emphasizing defense this fall, he's considering shelving his high-low post offense in order to make the best use of his personnel.

Gone from last year's Trojan team are Williams, John Lambert, Biff Burrell and Clint Chapman, and 6-8 Bob Trowbridge is the only returning starter. But they have sixth man Greg White back, plus two highly-regarded sophomore, 6-10 Steve Malovic and 6-6 forward Earl Evans.

White is coming off a broken foot which sidelined him the latter half of the past season, and Malovic moved into a starting role the final five games of the campaign.

Boyd will also have his son Bill, a 6-7 senior forward, coming back after an injury last season.

Others vying for starting roles up front are 6-8 Norm Kelly and 6-5 Cleve Porter, both non-lettermen last year, and Oregon's prep Player of the Year, 6-9 Mark Hoisington.

Marv Safford, a 6-2 junior, and 6-3 Casey Jones will be competing with a pair of high-scoring freshmen for starting jobs in the backcourt.

Mark Wulfemeyer, who averaged 36.5 points per game last season at Troy High at Fullerton, and 6-2 Neil Arnold, who scored 24.8 points an outing at Long Beach Wilson, will be battling Safford and Jones for starting spots.

Forum debut for Dionne

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings, who open their 1975-76 home season tonight against the Washington Capitals, did not fare very well in a brief opening road trip, and Coach Bob Pulford was beginning to worry.

Pulford's team dropped 9-0 and 7-0 decisions to Montreal and the New York Islanders before finally beating the New York Rangers 6-4 Sunday.

That victory buoyed Pulford's spirits a little.

"I thought we played very well in the first two periods against the Rangers. I hope thats a sign," Pulford said Tuesday.

"We played poorly in those first two games, but I'm not panicking yet."

Tonight's game will mark the home debut of new King Marcel Dionne. Dionne came to Los Angeles from Detroit during the off-season in a swap for Terry Harper and Danny Maloney.

The high-scoring Dionne has been held to one goal in the Kings' three games, but Pulford said he doesn't expect that to last long.

Los Angeles center Vic Venasky has so far been the surprise for the Kings. Venasky initially gained notice by leading the Kings in preseason scoring with four goals and four assists.

The Kings are expected to be at nearly full strength against the Capitals.

Pulford said defenseman Shelly Kannegiesser, suffering from a chipped bone in his thumb, is the only question mark for tonight's game.

The Capitals come into the contest seeking their first victory of the season. They lost their fourth game Tuesday night, a 7-2 setback in Vancouver.

Saints snap out of slump

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Correspondent

Coach Bob Baiz of the San Dimas High Saints saw his team break out of a scoring slump in a big way Friday.

After practically forgetting what a goal line looks like in the first three games of the season, the Saints entered the unfamiliar end zone six times to route Gladstone, 37-0.

In their first three contests, the Saints had scored just one touchdown and a total of seven points.

"We waited a long time to get going," said Baiz. "Now that we have, I just hope we remember what it was like."

Assessing the difference between the 37-point explosion and the earlier scoring drought, Baiz said, "We didn't fumble the ball at all. We went from eight fumbles the week before (in a 14-7 loss to Bonita) to none against Gladstone."

Baiz' ground attack ran over the Gladiators for 376 yards. Halfback Fred Carter amassed 167 of those yards in an effort that earned him the Valley's Offensive Player of the Week award. He scored touchdowns on runs of two and 37 yards and broke away for a 60-yard gainer.

Fullbacks Rosey Johnson and Bob Pleasant chipped in 105 and 34 yards respectively while halfback Jim Campbell added 64.

"We ran well against Bonita, too (226 yards), but we fumbled too many times," said Baiz. "We only punted once in that game — the rest of the time we gave the ball away." (In addition to recovering six of San Dimas' eight fumbles, Bonita intercepted a pair of Saint passes.)

Turnovers will have to be kept to a minimum Saturday when the Saints meet Royal Oak at Charter Oak's field at 8 p.m. The Romans, ranked second in the CIF 2-A poll, have rolled over four opponents by scores of 12-10, 20-6, 34-12 and 31-7. Royal Oak's 34-12 win came against Gladstone, the only opponent the Romans have had in common with the Saints.

"There's no question that they're a great team," Baiz said of the Romans. "They're an offensive machine and they have a fine defense. But we tied them last year, 0-0, so we'll have a shot at them."

The San Dimas coach feels that his defense is fully capable of handling the offense-minded Romans. The Saints have posted two shutouts and allowed a total of 30 points in four games.

"Doug Gates, Don Millet and Doug Spahr control our defense," said Baiz. Spahr is a quick defensive end while Gates and Millet, both linebackers, lead the squad in tackles. "And Sonny LaFargue (6-1, 215) and Don Edwards (6-0, 180) give us strength at the tackle positions."

They will have their hands full with Royal Oak halfback Chris Tribble (328 yards rushing on the season) and quarterback Jim Garcia (303 yards rushing). But the Saints have their own offensive weapon in Carter, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, who has carried 65 times for 370 yards — a rushing average of 5.8 yards.

The San Dimas secondary could make Garcia sorry if he elects to go to the air. The Saints have already intercepted 10 passes, including two each by Carter, Gates and O. D. Hollinquest.

"If we get past Royal Oak, we'll be in a good position for the title," assessed Baiz, whose Saints are 1-1 in Hacienda League play and 1-2-1 overall. "If we don't, we'll be looking uphill the rest of the way."

Elsewhere in the H.L., undefeated Walnut should have an easy time against winless Gladstone at Citrus College Friday at 7:30 p.m. Half an hour later, Bonita (2-0, 2-2) will host Alta Loma (1-1, 1-3) while Ontario (0-2, 1-3) faces Sierra Vista (0-2, 0-4) at Baldwin Park High.

Webster still leading scorer

Garey High's Stanley Webster continued to lead local prep gridders in the latest Progress Bulletin Scoring Derby.

The fleet Viking running back has amassed six touchdowns, good for 36 points, in his four outings thus far, holding a six-point lead over Walnut's Kevin Morgan.

In team statistics, Damien and Ontario Christian continued to lead in offense and defense respectively.

The Spartans were held to only nine points in their last game but still hold a big advantage over second place Chaffey on the offensive charts.

OCHS gave up its first score of the season and first in 16 quarters of football last week against Valley Christian, but the Knights still command a big lead in the defensive stats over Walnut. The Mustangs have shutout their last two opponents and have not been scored upon in their last 10 quarters of football.

Poly seeks 7th straight

Cal Poly's water polo team will seek its seventh consecutive win this week when they meet UC Santa Barbara Friday.

Game time is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. in the Gauchos' pool.

In last week's game action, the Broncos notched victories against Long Beach State (7-2), Cal Poly San Luis Obispo (10-3) and Fresno State (13-5). Their season record now stands at 6-5.

Following Friday's game with Santa Barbara, Poly will return home Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. for a rematch with UC Irvine. The Broncos lost to UCI, 8-4, earlier in the season.

No secrets from Garey

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Garey High coach Lawson Bush says there's no secret formula for his team's somewhat surprising 2-0 start in San Antonio football action.

"We just come at 'em," is the way Bush describes his bunch of Viking gridders.

Not too many folks felt the Vikings would be 2-0 at this point in the SAL season, but Bush's squad has started to make believers out of local football followers. After a season-opening 19-0 loss to Morningside, Garey has rattled off three straight wins.

Everybody knew the Vikings had a super runner in Stanley Webster, and the senior halfback hasn't disappointed, having amassed 560 yards rushing in only four games. However, what has been surprising is the fact that the Garey offense is more than just "Stanley the Steamer's" efforts.

Quarterback Milt Banks has proved he can throw or run with the pigskin effectively, while fullback Doug Brissette, only a sophomore, has looked very impressive as a blocker and runner.

"We can throw or run," said a confident Bush. "If a team keys on Webster to try to stop him, and I figure most everybody will, Brissette can hurt you on the ground or Banks can go to the pass. Our offensive line has been doing a great job, both on rushing and passing situations. They're the ones who make the offense click."

Bush is also pleased with the Garey defensive unit which held Claremont to one lone field goal in last week's win.

However, this week the Vikings take on what will be their toughest test so far, as they play Upland High.

"Upland is a very tough team and we are not taking them lightly', Bush pointed out. "However, we have been successful playing our own type of football so far and I'm not going to change anything now."

Upland has added a new dimension on offense as quarterback Jay Morton is now back on the squad following a suspension. Morton is regarded as a better passer than the other Highlander signal caller, Bob Dalquest, and clearly the Scots have a potent running attack already in Mike Rees, Mark Chapman and Gary Carr.

Damien is the only other SAL squad besides Garey unbeaten in league outings. The Spartans have squeaked by Upland and Pomona by one point, and coach Dick Larson sees the same sort of action the rest of the way.

"I hope we don't have any more of those one-point wins, but in this league they all are going to be tough," Larson commented. "I expect another close game against Montclair this Friday."

Larson offered good news for Spartans rooters with word that starters Rick Davis and Bob Alexander should be back in uniform soon after missing the past couple games with injuries.

However, Larson also pointed out that Davis' subs, Brian Sullivan for placekicking and Steve Gaston at wide receiver, have done an outstanding job, as has fullback Leo Burke filling in for Alexander.

Pomona mentor Mike Clifton is still upset about his squad's narrow loss to Damien, but what is even more upsetting to the Devil coach is his team's 1-3 season mark.

"We have played well enough to be 4-0 right now. I just hope we can start winning the close games from this point on," said the wishful Clifton.

"This week we go against Ganesha, and they are like us, just waiting to explode on somebody. I expect another close game, I'm hoping we can avoid mistakes."

Clifton did announce that Charles Cole, who missed last week with illness, will be back in uniform Friday. However, the Devil senior will be playing defensive back instead of his usual running back slot.

"I know that Ganesha can throw the football real well, that's why I think Charles can help us more in the secondary. With him, Jim Middleton and Michael Hall back there we should be very strong against the pass."

Clifton said that Andrew Pilcher would fill in for Cole at running back, completing an offensive backfield which will have Harold Walker at the other halfback slot, Hank Zibell at fullback, and Mark Soto starting at quarterback.

Bad news for the Devils is that linemen Steve Stearman and Sam Barreras are both doubtful for Friday's game due to injuries.

Pomona's foe Friday, Ganesha, has also had its share of problems.

The Giants missed the services of quarterback Joe Madrigal in last week's 21-0 loss to Chino, although Madrigal is recovering from a bout with bronchitis and is expected to play Friday.

"We just have not come together as a unit," explained Giant coach Garry Norvell in reference to his team's 0-4 record. "It's been a disappointing season so far. We have not hit well, and that's something I can't coach the kids. They just are going to have to stop being a team of individuals and start wanting to win more."

What Norvell is hoping for is for his team to be fired up for Pomona, since two schools carry on a traditional city rivalry.

"If we can't get up for Pomona, then I guess we really are hurting. But I still think we have the potential to win a lot of games, and our guys are starting to make noises like they want to play at their best for Pomona."

Chino, coming off a most impressive win over Ganesha, is rapidly becoming one of the teams to beat in the SAL.

"I thought we played well against Ganesha," Chino coach Jim Rawls said. "We came back real well after our disappointing loss to Pomona. Right now, I'd say we have a definite chance at the league title as I can't see anyone going undefeated in league games. But we'll just take 'em one week at a time and see what happens."

Rawls' Cowboys go against Claremont this week, and the Wolfpack has been slowed by injuries of late while Chino has stayed relatively free of bumps and bruises.

"Claremont has good size and is a well-coached football squad," Rawls notes. "They also have an added offensive weapon in kicker Jim VanZee, who is just about automatic on field goal attemps.

"However, we have a fine kicker of our own in Edwin Marquez. This is Edwin's first year ever of football, although he is a standout soccer player here at school."

Marquez' lack of gridiron experience is understandable — he hails originally from Guatemala.

Poly travels to Westmont

Cal Poly's cross country team will be competing in a four-way meet at Westmont College Saturday at 10 a.m.

Along with Cal Poly and host school Westmont, the meet will also include Pomona-Pitzer and Cal State Los Angeles.

The Broncos recorded a fourth place finish last weekend in the Long Beach Federation Meet while Cal State Los Angeles captured first place honors.

In dual meet competition this season, coach Jim George's squad sports a 2-0 record with wins coming over Chapman College (16-41) and Whittier College (15-49).

New home, new name

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The front office will be completely new, and new players are being hired for the Baltimore Comets, who also may get a new name.

The Comets were transferred to San Diego by the North American Soccer League with a new owner, Kenneth W. Keegan, a distributor of foreign cars at Los Gatos, Calif.

"It was a unanimous decision at the league meetings to move a club down here," Keegan said in an interview Monday.

After a 10-8-2 record in the 1974 expansion year, the Comets lost 13 games and won only 9 at Baltimore last year.

League C-C action continues

San Antonio and Hacienda League cross country dual meets continue Thursday and Friday, with some interesting matchups looming.

In the SAL, co-league leader Claremont (2-0) should be challenged by Chino (1-0). The Cowboy runners surprised the Wolfpack in dual meet action last year and are capable of doing the same thing this time around. Chino won its first SAL dual meet against Ganesha without difficulty and the Cowboys also looked impressive earlier this year in winning the Chaffey Invitational Tourney at Alta Loma High.

Claremont would seem to have a slight edge on paper, however, as the Pack has one of the top runners in the area in Blake Wood and some impressive talent to go with him.

Also shaping up as a possible thriller is the Pomona-Ganesha meet. The Devils have an outstanding runner in Barry Boettcher but the Giants are an improved squad and could upset Pomona.

The schedule for the weekend league meets looks like this: San Antonio League (all meets Thursday) Pomona at Ganesha, Garey at Upland, Montclair at Damien and Claremont at Chino. Hacienda League (all meets Friday) — Bonita at Alta Loma, Sierra Vista at Ontario, Gladstone at Walnut and Royal Oak at San Dimas.

All league meets are slated to get underway at 3:15 p.m.

Outdoor Wood™: the economical alternative to Redwood.

No doubt about it, Redwood is a fine building material. However, there is another wood just as attractive and less expensive . . . it's called Outdoor Wood.

Outdoor Wood is a highly-selected, appearance grade of Western fir pressure-treated with Wolman® preservative chemicals. This treatment permanently protects the wood from decay and insects. You can paint it or stain it if you want to, but you don't have to. If left natural, it weathers to an attractive driftwood gray. And it's priced below comparable grades of Redwood.

Rams expect Bartkowski

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Coach Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams declared Tuesday that his club won't key on Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski's injured arm when the teams battle Sunday.

Bartkowski, the rookie star from California, was hurt as his Falcons beat the San Francisco 49ers 17-3 last Sunday.

He was listed as "questionable" for the game in the Los Angeles Coliseum, but Knox said, "We expect him to play."

Asked by newsmen if the Rams would go after the wounded elbow, Knox answered emphatically, "No." We've never said 'go out and injure someone.' We don't believe in it. We're all in the game together. It's our livelihood."

Knox termed Atlanta a good club which seems to have stablized itself from the problems of last season when Norm Van Brocklin was fired as coach.

"Bartkowski has a great arm. He fires and the ball goes 'zoom' as it travels so hard. We weren't at all surprised that Atlanta drafted him No. 1."

Los Angeles goes into the game 3-1 and Atlanta 2-2 with both in the West division of the National Football Conference. A Falcon victory would tie the two at the top of the division.

Although they have won their past three games, the Rams have been criticized for not making stronger showings after being tabbed as a prime Super Bowl candidate in the preseason.

Of the 13-10 overtime victory over winless San Diego in the latest outing, Knox said, "It was a good game, but I'm not completely pleased with our performance. We'd like to score more points and win without going into overtime. I was closest to being totally pleased with the overtime drive that took us from our 14 to their six."

Tom Dempsey kicked his game winning 22-yard field goal from there.

"I think we can play better offensively, defensively and the special teams can play better," Knox told sportswriters and sportscasters at his Tuesday breakfast session. "We can improve in all areas.

The coach has worries because of injuries in his secondary. Cornerback Charlie Stukes was injured earlier and is out for the season. In the San Diego game, Al Clark suffered a broken leg.

That leaves rookie Monte Jackson from San Diego State as a starter and veteran Steve Preece as the only reserve. When it becomes necessary to send Preece into the game, he'd be a safety and Bill Simpson would move to a corner.

Knox blames turnovers for much of his club's problems, pointing out the Rams are the only club in the NFC with a winning record and more turnovers than takeovers.

"We generated enough offense in the past two games to put more points on the board," he said. But overall the Rams have given up the ball three more times than they've taken it away.

POPPED HIS BUBBLE — Kurt Bevaqua of the Milwaukee Brewers won the bubble gum blowing championship of the major leagues Tuesday night with a bubble that measured 18 inches before it broke all over his face. The contest was held before the start of the World Series game between Boston and Cincinnati at Riverfront Stadium.

McKay rates Bell high

LOS ANGELES (AP) — University of Southern California tailback Ricky Bell isn't as well known as his Ohio State counterpart Archie Griffin, but "Bell has as much talent as Griffin and Ricky is a definite Heisman Trophy candidate."

That's the opinion of a man who knows what a Heisman Trophy winner looks like. John McKay has coached two of them.

However, McKay declined to compare the 215-pound Bell, the nation's leading ball carrier, and Griffin, the Buckeye star who won the coveted Heisman award last year.

"Ricky is still learning to play the position," said McKay, "and Griffin has shown for a long time he can do the job. But if Ricky continues to run the way he's running—to do the things he's been doing—it would be hard not to think of him as a Heisman Trophy candidate. He's big, fast, tough and has tremendous power and acceleration and he's operating with a very young team.

"Some people think he's only a power runner, but he made some cuts last Saturday that some of our backs in the past never would have made."

McKay switched Bell from fullback last year to tailback this season, a new position for him. In five games, the powerrunning Bell has gained 940 yards, averaging 6.2 yards per carry.

Griffin, with 673 yards and a 5.8-yard average, is third among the nation's rushers behind Arkansas' Jerry Eckwood, No. 2 with 727 yards on just 79 carries.

McKay noted that Bell didn't mind carrying the ball 38 times last Saturday in a 28-10 victory over Washington State because "he's getting used to carrying it that much." Bell gained 217 yards in that game.

McKay defended asking Bell to run the ball that much, arguing that if Bell isn't carrying it, he'll be blocking.

"Bell is a hard worker and he has another thing other good backs have. He doesn't get down on himself if he doesn't score a touchdown on his first two carries. You have to be at ease or the tension of the game will tire you out. The tension of a ball game is likely to tire you out more than running 40 times.

"Ricky is relaxed, or he never would have been able to carry the ball 151 times so far."

McKay, saying he was suffering through "the most serious group of injuries since I've been here, announced two more starters injured and out for long periods. Sophomore linebacker Mario Celotto has had knee surgery to remove cartilage and and senior cornerback Ted Roberson suffered a broken fibula.

Rod Martin, a 6-1, 195-pound junior, replaces Celotto and junior Ron Busch, a part-time starter, replaces Roberson but McKay said tackle Gary Jeter has worked out at linebacker in case someone else is needed to replace Celotto, a 6-foot-4, 230-pounder.

The No. 3-ranked Trojans play winless Oregon this Saturday and they travel to South Bend, Ind., the following week for a game with Notre Dame. McKay said he wasn't at all tempted to work on plays he'd expect from the Irish.

"We never work against a team two weeks ahead," he said. "If you do, you go into the dressing room this week and try to tell the kids Oregon can beat you. Then they laugh and say, 'Well, why were we working all week on Notre Dame?' You can't look ahead."

Murtaugh will return

CINCINNATI (AP) — Danny Murtaugh said today he will return as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates next year.

Murtaugh, who first took over the Pirates midway through the 1957 season, guided the Pirates to a first place finish in the National League's Eastern Division this year before losing to the Cincinnati Reds in the playoffs.

"I like to manage and this has been a pretty good year healthwise," said Murtaugh, 58, at a news conference while he was attending the World Series.

"I was only really ill one time. As long as I feel good, there's a possibility of me managing," he said.

General Manager Joe E. Brown gave Murtaugh a vote of confidence, saying, "I'd like him to manage until he decides not to."

Brown said Murtaugh's contract is the usual one-year pact.

Troy's Bell moves near 1000 yards

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ricky Bell's record-threatening running pace for the Southern California Trojans has moved him to within 60 yards of the 1,000 mark.

By maintaining his average of 188 yards per game, Bell would become the first player in major college football history to reach 2,000 rushing yards in one season. The standing record is 1,881 yards by Cornell's Ed Marinaro in 1971.

Bell's 940 yards in five games give him a 295-yard edge over California's Chuck Muncie in the Pacific-8 individual rushing statistics released today. UCLA's Wendell Tyler is third, with 567 yards to Muncie's 645.

Tyler, who gained 180 yards against Stanford Saturday, has the best per-rush average of the threesome, 7.5 yards. Bell has gained 6.3 yards per try, Muncie 6.1.

Stanford quarterback Mike Cordova remains the Pac-8 passing and total offense leader, with 211 yards per game throwing. Other individual leaders include Southern Cal's Danny Reece, averaging a phenomenal 26.2 yards per punt return, and Stanford's Tony Hill who has caught 30 passes for 449 yards.

The California Bears have the best team offensive average, 418 yards per game, but are just fourth in the scoring statistics led by Stanford with 31 points per game. Southern Cal has the stingiest defense, allowing 284 yards and 9.2 points per game.

Golf tourney helps Scouts

Red Hill Country Club in Cucamonga will be the site of the annual Old Baldy Council, Boy Scouts golf Tournament Friday.

Entry fee for the tourney is $50 per golfer or $200 per foursome. Part of the fee is a contribution to the Old Baldy Council Boy Scouts, while the remainder covers green fees, cart and dinner.

Prizes for winners include the use of a Datsun 710 for a month and round-trip air fare to Lake Tahoe.

The tournament is open to anyone interested in golfing and scouting. Reservations may be made by telephoning the Old Baldy Council, 626-3551.

Captains of the teams are: Kings, Bill Batrus; Bruins, Jerry Keating; Flyers, John Garner; Canadiens, Jack Caswell; Penguins, Ron Constantine; and North Stars, Bob Eilek.

Casts to greet girl gymnasts

The Claremont Casts gymnastics team will host a Class III preliminary meet on Sunday, Oct. 19, at the Claremont High gymnasium.

Ten girls' gymnastics teams are expected to compete in the meet. Competition is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

This is the third year the Casts have been in existence. There are currently eight Class II and 21 Class III rated girls on the Casts teams.

Vic Nicoles and Paul Dyer coach the team. Nicoles competed at Pomona High, Mt. San Antonio College and Cal Poly and has coached at Pomona High and the Pomona YWCA. Dyer has coached at Ganesha High, Covina and Diamond Bar YMCA and competed for Ganesha High and Poly.

Information on the team is available from Nicoles or Dyer at 624-4531, ext. 262.

Quiet WFL stays alive

NEW YORK (AP) — There had been indications that the World Football League, suffering woeful financial losses, would fold. After a two-day meeting, however, it has become apparent they won't face liquidation—for the time being, anyway.

"All 10 teams are returning to their cities with new and innovative marketing plans which, in effect, should increase fan attendance and thereby continue to firm up the stability of the league," said WFL President Chris Hemmeter Tuesday, when the decisive meeting broke.

It was one of the few comments Hemmeter would make, adding that the second-year enterprise no longer would discuss its problems in public.

"We will not entertain questions about the future of the league because such questions always end up implying that the WFL is weak and its future is questionable," said Hemmeter. "We are not going to indulge in any more speculation about the viability of the league because its viability, to us, has never been questionable."

That left others to ask what future looms for the league when its Philadelphia Bell averages 3,705 per game. And what of other cities—like Portland and San Antonio—where franchises languish in pools of red ink? The Thunder was in such trouble last week that the nine other teams were assessed $300,000 to keep it going. The Wings, according to a published report, need $450,000 to finish the season.

"Revenues are far less than my associates and I anticipated," Hemmeter admitted in a statement underscored by the league's average attendance: 13,323.

The Hemmeter plan of player payment, which functioned largely on a break-even attendance of 17,000 per game, has fallen by the wayside in many cases because teams haven't approached breaking even at the gate. Most players had signed contracts promising one per cent of their team's gate receipts against a minimum of $500. But that figure has whittled down to $250 in San Antonio and at Jacksonville, where forecast losses are $700,000 this season.

Hence the 15 hours of meetings here, which included discussion of the alternatives remaining to the club owners. "We are exploring all directions to save the league," Hemmeter had said Monday. "We just don't want the league to go down the tubes."

The possibility had existed that the weaker teams would be dropped while others continued.

National title near for Petty

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Can Richard Petty find happiness by finishing last in the four final races on the Grand National stock car schedule?

No is the obvious answer, but should such an unlikely situation occur, Petty would still win an unprecedented sixth national point championship and end the season with well over $300,000 in winnings.

All he has to do is start in the remaining events.

Petty, one of the more than 50 entries in the 11th annual American 500 here Sunday, unexpectedly finished last in the recent Capital City 500 in Richmond, Va., for the first time in nine years and 361 starts. He left the race on the 34th lap with mechanical problems.

"I've had the most luck this season, but I don't see how anybody can be rated a favorite in any race with all those good drivers and good cars," said Petty, who has won 12 of the 26 Grand National races this year.

"A good break for one team and just a little bit of bad luck for the others can mean all the difference," he added.

The famed Dodge driver, who has won six Rockingham races in the past ten years, goes into Sunday's 500-mile chase with 4,245 points for the championship.

The $114,550 American 500 also has attracted David Pearson, A.J. Foyt, Cale Yarborough and Buddy Baker, promising a rematch of the frontrunners in the National 500 in Charlotte two weeks ago.

Wooden party a success

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They gave John Wooden the traditional retirement watch Tuesday night.

They also gave him a powder-blue Mercedes Benz.

Five thousand well-wishers sang "Happy Birthday" to Wooden at a retirement party in Pauley Pavilion, where his UCLA basketball teams won 149 games and lost two.

It marked the end of the 27-year Wooden-UCLA era, one of the most spectacularly successful in sports history, as the coach turned 65 and officially retired.

Mayor Tom Bradley, Bob Hope and 100 of Wooden's players took part in the ceremonies.

"John Wooden has had many big nights in his lifetime," said Bradley, himself a UCLA graduate. "This may be the biggest."

A slim, erect Wooden and his wife Nell entered to the first of several standing ovations, passing through a double column of his players, including three-time All American Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

Wooden agreed with Bradley that the event was special. "When somebody asks me what my most memorable experience in athletics has been, now I'll be able to tell them," Wooden said. "This is my most memorable moment."

The coach watched films of his teams' 10 NCAA championships. He heard himself quoted by team trainer Elvin (Ducky) Drake as telling his players before games: "Winning basketball is not the most important thing in life, but it is for the next two hours."

Wooden joined the laughter for Bob Hope's quips: "When they told Wooden that Jabbar had charisma, the coach said, 'tape him up and we'll play him anyway.' .... Wooden is such a considerate coach that he grew organic alfalfa in his backyard so Bill Walton could have a decent lunch."

Claremonters enjoy 6-0 win

Pomona Valley PSL junior teams won three games, tied one, and lost one in league play last Saturday.

The Division II Spittin' Image Claremont Kings tied the Torrance Vikings, 2-2. A questionable penalty shot and a last-minute goal allowed the Vikings to tie the Kings who had led 2-0 with only 10 minutes to play. Larry Ryan and Van Evers scored for the Kings with Lance Folden and Ryan being credited with assists.

The Division III Claremont Stars defeated the Torrance Arsenal 6-0. Allen Pitts (3), Phil Adams (2), and Henry Gonzalez scored for the Stars. The Pomona Renegades lost to Cerritos 3-1. The Renegades scored first and had a 1-1 tie until the last 15 minutes of the game when Cerritos scored twice. Tim Thompson scored for the Renegades.

Both Division IV teams won: the Diamond Bar Kickers defeating the Torrance South Bay Gunners 5-2 and the Claremont Stars defeating St. Stephens 14-1. Down 2-1 at halftime, the Kickers came back strong in the second half to remain undefeated in Division IV play. Paul Caligiuri and Brian Mullan each scored twice for the Kickers and Mike Brocki scored once. Rusty Lansford (6), Matt Hough (3), James O'Brien (3), James Lindsay (1), and Bob McGwire (1) scored for the Stars in their lopsided win.

This week the Kings entertain Torrance Fram in a Div. II game scheduled for 1:30 p.m Saturday at El Roble Intermediate School. The Pomona Renegades have a bye and all the other PSL teams have away games. In Division IV the Claremont Stars play Torrance Arsenal and the Diamond Bar Kickers play Bellflower. The Div. III Claremont Stars play last years Div. III champion, the Torrance Gunners. Both teams are undefeated this year and the winner will take over first place in Div. III.

WHOA THERE, DURN IT!!—Former Pomonan Brent Lunger was uninjured when his car took a nosedive over the chicane after he lost control in the esses at Watkins Glen, N.Y.

Great field in Cal Prix

RIVERSIDE — Winners of nine Indianapolis 500 classics, eight Daytona 500s, two world driving champions and just about every other major motor race held in the world are in the field for the California Grand Prix at Riverside International Raceway Oct. 25-26.

Those other races include the LeMans 24 Hour, Southern 500, Targa Florio, Nurburgring 1000, Pikes Peak Hillclimb and — well, what's important? Name it.

Sponsored by First National City Travelers Checks, the premiere event on Riverside's racing calendar features two heats of the International Race of Champions and the season finale of the SCCA-USAC Formula 5000 series.

The field for the double barreled event is the most impressive ever assembled in Riverside's 19-year history and perhaps for all time in this country. It includes:

Indy 500 winners A. J. Foyt (1961-64-67), Mario Andretti (1969), Bobby Unser (1968-75), Al Unser (1970-71) and Gordon Johncock (1973).

Daytona 500 winners Richard Petty (1964-66-71-73-74), Andretti (1967), Foyt (1972) and Benny Parsons (1975).

Two-time world champion Emerson Fittipaldi, 1972 and 1974.

LeMans winner Foyt (1967), plus winners of the Nurburgring 1000 and Targa Florio (Brian Redman, both of them) and so many Pikes Peak wins that the folks in Colorado Springs have considered renaming their famous mountain in honor of Bobby and Al Unser.

As for the granddaddy of all NASCAR super speedway races, the Southern 500 at at Darlington, S.C., Riverside has cornered former winners Petty (1967) and Bobby Allison (1972-73-75), not to mention NASCAR's All-time super speedway winner, David Pearson.

Andretti, Al Unser, Johncock and Redman — the two-time Formula 5000 series champ — are facing a talented array of drivers in the Formula 5000 main event. They include such world class road racers as Jackie Oliver (Monza 1000 and 24 Hours of Daytona), Warwick Brown (current Tasman Series champ), Jody Scheckter (1973 Formula 5000 series winner) and Graham McRae (three-time Tasman winner and 1973 Indy 500 rookie of the year).

Palomino 8-5 choice

LOS ANGELES — Carlos Palomino, 15-1-2 with seven knockouts, is rated a 8-5 pick over Phoenix' Milo Leyva, 16-2 with 10 knockouts, for Saturday's 10-round main event at the Olympic Auditorium.

A.J. aims at next year

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The disappointment lingers some five months after the fact, but A.J. Foyt says it only flames his desire to do better.

Last May, he was scheduled to make history at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway by becoming the first man ever to win racing's most prestigious event for the fourth time.

But a series of not-so-funny thing happened on his way to victory lane.

There was an unscheduled pit stop for a flat tire caused by debris on the track, still more problems when another tire lost air pressure and, finally, rain stopping the race just when Foyt seemed ready to close on the leaders by making one less pit stop.

A third-place finish behind Bobby Unser and Johnny Rutherford doesn't sit well with someone who's become almost obsessed with that fourth Indy victory.

"I guess it's losing that gives me the desire to keep going," Foyt said during a visit to an automobile tire's executive offices here.

"And, believe me, the day I lose that desire, I'll quit racing," the big, gruff Texan added.

Though he didn't pick up his fourth Indy victory this year, 1975 has proved fruitful in the form of his sixth national U.S. Auto Club driving championship, another of the many records he holds.

"Sure, it's nice winning the title, but I'd trade all my wins this year (four) if I could have won Indy," he said.

So the 40-year-old Houston native already is looking forward to next year.

"I'm working on two different engine programs right now," he said. "There is a chance that I'll have something different there next year, although I can't say what it might be.

"And I'm here to see the Goodyear people about the possibility of a new Indy tire, one that just might help us run a little faster.

"It's a funny thing," Foyt said. "Johnny Rutherford turned a lap at 199-plus miles an hour a few years ago (at Indy), so they took about 300350 horsepower away from us. It cost us about 12 mph right off the bat, but it provided better racing for the public.

"But Goodyear's development program has brought it back to where I ran a lap at 195-plus this year. In that respect," Foyt noted, "you can say that racing is predictable in that cars will progress as fast as other areas of technology.

"Unfortunately," he said, "you can't predict much of anything else. I tried this year at Indy and lost the race. And all I can forecast now is that if hard work can win the race, I sure deserve it.

"Because nobody works harder than I," Foyt said, "And nothing makes me work harder than losing."

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — The fall schedule of events will continue at Irwindale Raceway. Fun and grudge racing continues tonight for all types of cars and motorcycles. SRA motorcycle races are slated Thursday night starting at 8 p.m. This is the next to the last event of the season.

Surprising Cubans lead Yanks in gold medals

MEXICO CITY (AP) — What was supposed to be a rout is instead—suddenly, shockingly— a race.

After just two days of competition in the VII Pan American Games, the Americans find their ranks somewhat stunned, in disarray, trying to regroup in the face of a headlong assault by the upstart Cubans.

The heavily favored U.S. effort, backed by more than a million dollars, was tied with Cuba in total medals, 26, but trailed by a decisive 14-11 margin in gold medals.

Brazil was next with 12 medals, including three golds. The Canadians also had three golds and 11 total, with Mexico next with 10, including two golds.

Seventeen more events were scheduled for finals today—six in weightlifting, where so far the Cubans have cleaned, pressed and jerked the heck out of their opposition.

Featherweight Roland Chang and his bantamweight counterpart Carlos Lastre won all three gold medals in each category Tuesday, accounting for six of Cuba's nine golds in the second day of competition here. On Monday, Cuba's Francisco Casamayor got the hat trick in the flyweight category.

Cubans also accounted for the two Games' records bettered Tuesday.

Two Americans, Martha Watson and Kathy McMillan, appeared to have finished 1-2 in the women's long jump—both having broken the record of 21 feet 2¾ inches—until Ana Alexander managed an astounding 21-9 on the last jump of the day.

The petite Cuban had qualified poorly and was not considered a threat.

Earlier, young Silvio Leonard won the men's 100-meter dash with such reckless abandon, he plunged down a tunnel opening at the end of the course. Leonard, who suffered an ankle injury, traveled the distance in a record 10.15 seconds.

He was helped to the elevated winner's stand by the second and third place finishers, Hasley Crawford of Trinidad-Tobago and fellow Cuban Hermes Ramirez. There were fears Leonard would be unable to compete in the 200-meter dash and on the 400-meter relay team later this week.

The best any American could do in the 100 meters was a fifth by Clancy Edwards of Santa Ana, Calif.

Herschel Anderson, a 38-yearold Army sergeant from Columbus, Ga., won a gold medal in individual air rifle Tuesday, and that, coupled with a victory Monday in the free hand pistol event, made him America's only double gold winner.

It appeared some of the anti-American tide might be turning after an impressive game in basketball between the Yanks and the highly regarded Mexico team.

The United States won 99-70 but Coach Marv Harshman praised the losers. "They played awfully well," he said. "They really tied us up at times with their zone. And for a time there in the first half, they took control of the boards away from us."

The game started with the familiar catcalls and whistling from the fanatically partisan crowd of about 17,000. But by the end of the game, the home fans showed at least tacit respect for the winners.

Harshman said the game was the best yet for his team, but he has warned his players about Puerto Rico, Brazil, Canada and of course the Cubans.

"They must all be looked at with a lot of respect," he said.

The Cubans vanquished the U.S. women's volleyball team with relative ease in another Tuesday night contest.

In baseball the Americans downed El Salvador 7-0. And in field hockey, the U.S. team and Mexico tied 1-1.

Other U.S. gold medals Tuesday went to David Ross of Houston with 598 of 600 in the English match shooting. The performance helped the U.S. team to a gold medal in the same event.

Pamela Jiles of New Orleans won a gold in the 100-meter dash with a time of 11.38 seconds.

James King of San Diego edged favored Ralph Mann of Pullman, Wash., with a time of 49.8 seconds in the 400-meter hurdles. Mike Manley of Eugene, Ore., loped to victory in the 3,000-meter steeplechase.

WEIGH-IN — These 8-day-old long-tailed macaques are the first monkey twins to be born at the University of Washington's Primate Research Center. Their mother was brought to Seattle from Java last summer and has been keeping a close eye on her twin sons. She was given a tranquilizer while the boys were examined.

TILL JAIL DO US PART — Mr. and Mrs. Horace Roberts spend their last moments together in Miami before being separated to serve jail terms. The former Miss Jeanette Bell has been sentenced to two years in prison for robbery and burglary, and the bridegroom must serve 10 years on the same charges. A Miami judge gave permission for them to be married before sentences were carried out.

Bank with casual look doing brisk business

LA MESA (AP) — The fellow in the wild sports shirt is the president of Grossmont Bank. Those other men without suit jackets or neckties are the other bankers.

It's the casual look which many customers say they like about the 3-year-old bank with brightly painted walls of browns and yellows.

A few other innovations include Saturday banking, auto loans as low as 10 per cent, and local ownership of stock.

The bank's deposits total only $23 million, a little below the $51 billion of Bank of America, but the growth rate at Grossmont Bank has been one of the highest in California.

In the first nine months of 1975, the bank earned $220,000 or $1.41 a share, exceeding 1974's total profits of $72,000 or $1.15 a share.

There are 150,000 shares outstanding, all sold in Grossmont's original offering for $10 a share. For more than a year, the price of thd stock has been $18.

Although it does some business out of the La Mesa area at San Diego's eastern limits, president Donald L. Clague says, "We have declined more loans than we've made outside this area, by a substantial margin."

Clague and Art Butler Jr., his executive vice president, formerly managed branches of California First Bank. Clague was once regional vice president of that bank, then called Southern California First National.

Last year 13,943 persons — including policemen and firemen — learned about first aid, mother and baby care, home nursing, and other health and safety measures at classes and programs conducted by the American Red Cross, United Way's campaign partner.

Wisecrack backfires

BONN, West Germany (AP) — "You should raise the price of films, then they wouldn't take so many pictures." Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani told West German Finance Minister Hans Apel recently as they posed for news photographers.

"You have already raised the price because the films are made from crude oil," Apel replied.

The two ministers spoke at an energy symposium.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLICATION OF PETITION AND NOTICE OF INTENTION TO APPLY ON NAMED DAY FOR ORDER DECLARING STATUS OF NEWSPAPER AS ONE OF GENERAL CIRCULATION
No. EAC-20645

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES

In the matter of the petition of MARTIN WEINBERGER to have the standing of the CLAREMONT COURIER as a newspaper of general circulation ascertained and established.

Petitioner MARTIN WEINBERGER alleges:

I. Petitioner is the editor and publisher of the newspaper known as the CLAREMONT COURIER.

II. Said newspaper is a newspaper of general circulation published for the dissemination of local or telegraphic news and intelligence of a general character in Claremont, Los Angeles County, California. The business address of this paper is 112 Harvard Avenue, Claremont, California.

III. Said newspaper has a bona fide subscription list of paying subscribers, numbering 3,500 in Claremont, California, and, elsewhere outside the city, and has an average bi-weekly circulation of 4,250.

IV. Said newspaper has been established and published at regular intervals of not less than weekly in the city and judicial district for which it is seeking adjudication for at least three years preceding the date of adjudication.

V. Said newspaper has a substantial distribution to paid subscribers in the city and Judicial district in which it is seeking adjudication. It has maintained a minimum coverage of local or telegraphic news and intelligence of a general character of not less than twenty-five percent of its total inches during each year of the three year period. It has only one principal office of publication and that office is in the city and judicial district for which it is seeking adjudication.

VI Said newspaper sought and obtained an adjudication that it was a newspaper of general circulation prior hereto, on May 1, 1936, in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for a judgment ascertaining and establishing said CLAREMONT COURIER as a newspaper of general circulation as defined in Sections 6000 and 6008 of the Government Code, for the City of Claremont, for the County of Los Angeles, and for the State of California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on October 30, 1975, at 9:00 A.M. or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in Dept. A of the Superior Court, County of Los Angeles, East District, located at 400 Civic Center Plaza, Pomona, California, petitioner intends to apply for an order declaring said newspaper to be a newspaper of general circulation.
